Parking Ticket Can Lead You to Jailhouse

By DON MADDOCK

The door of a City Jail cell can close behind the motorist who stays a minute too long in a parking zone.

All he or she has to do to sample jail life is to forget to pay the $1 or $2 fine within the allowed 10 days, then ignore the subsequent courtesy warning letters extending the chance to settle accounts for $3 or, eventually, $10.

Then the police warrant detail takes over.

* * * *

THREE LOCAL officers work all day, and two others all evening, serving warrants on law violators.

A few are for felonies such as cashing bad checks.

Most are for minor driving matters, including overtime parking.

The officers have the authority to take errant motorists from their homes — even their beds — to police headquarters.

The magic lines are on the face of the warrant:

"You are therefore commanded to forthwith arrest the above-named accused and bring him before the judge in said Municipal Court of Long Beach Judicial District.

"THIS WARRANT CAN BE SERVED AT NIGHT."

Once a scofflaw is apprehended, he can count on spending at least several hours in a cell, no matter how minor his offense.

Detail members figure that anyone who'll ignore one ticket may be wanted for similar forgetfulness in other jurisdictions. So, after booking their prisoner, they run a record check on his name.

That takes time — time which the offender consumes behind bars.

Then the prisoner is released ONLY if he posts the required bail.

* * * *

THE OFFICERS ADMIT it's rough on a respectable citizen to be yanked from his home over a ticket.

But they can't feel sorry for the offender.

After all, he ignored his responsibility of settling his account with the city.

If his "crime" was overtime parking or other traffic violation which calls for bail of less than $25, he received at least one warning letter.

If a policeman stopped him for a moving violation, he was informed by the officer that signing the ticket meant only that he promised to appear at the traffic bureau to post bail within 10 days.

Police have an understandable lack of sympathy for anyone who doesn't live up to a promise.

WARRANT DETAIL officers don't wear good clothes on the job. They know anything can happen.

The guy sought on a minor traffic matter may turn out to be wanted for a felony in another jurisdiction. If so, he's likely to come out swinging.

One suspect screamed at his wife to get his gun and shoot officers Lloyd Berry and Grant P. (Bud) Lewis. (He changed his mind and hers, too, when a police special was stuck in his ear.)

Another time, Lewis was pushed into a bathtub.

Lewis and Berry, who work the night shift, often have to chase men down alleys and across fences. They will fire warning shots, but that's all.

"You never know," Berry commented. "Everything is fine one minute and the next all hell breaks loose."

ROLLER COASTER RIDER KILLED

Youth's Head Smashed as It Hits Brace

Tragedy Becomes Evident as Cars Reach End of Ride

A 19-year-old Torrance youth riding on the Nu-Pike roller coaster was killed Saturday night when he apparently leaned out and struck his head on a wooden brace as his car sped by.

George Doig, of 1924 Crenshaw Blvd., died instantly, his head crushed.

A trail of blood 400 feet long led investigating officers to the fatal brace.

* * * *

THE ACCIDENT went unnoticed by most of the shrieking occupants in the crowded cars until the coaster train roared out into the lights at the end of the ride, carrying its grisly cargo.

Doig was accompanied by two companions, Robert McClure, 19, of Los Angeles and Cayetano Belendez, 19, of 3142 Rosecrans Ave. Belendez was seated in the car in front of Doig's while McClure was directly behind the victim.

* * * *

McCLURE, WHO insisted Doig did not stand up, told police he saw the youth slump in his seat and shouted to Belendez, "Bob is curled up in the seat!"

Both companions told police they did not hear Doig cry out.

The youth's body was taken to Christensen-Pino Mortuary.

Ousted Security Risk Shot; Police Probe Red Links

VANCOUVER, B. C. (UPI)—Color photographs of secret radar sites and a box of Communist literature were found among the belongings of a man found shot to death in a hotel after he was fired from a Distant Early Warning line job as a security risk, authorities disclosed Saturday.

The pictures of DEW line installations were among papers that included a letter signed "Mom," from someone en route to Russia.

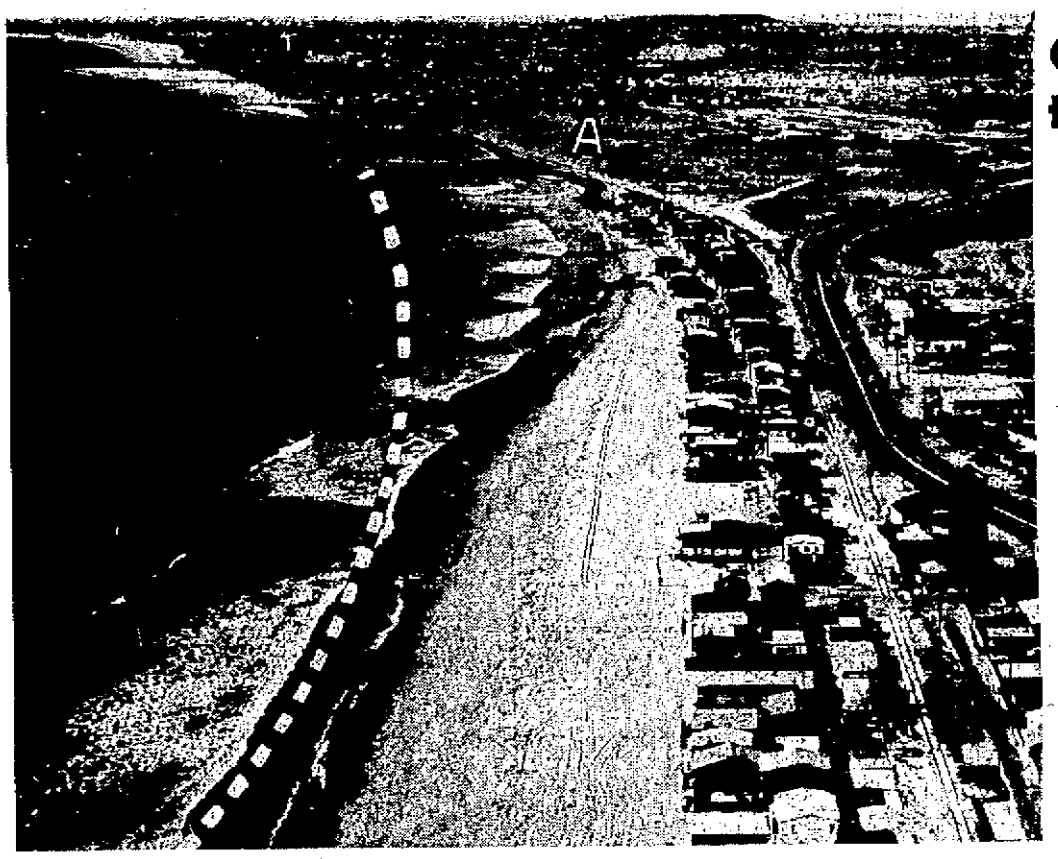

The DEW line is a chain of radar installations across northern Canada designed to alert the North American continent in case of a Russian attempt to launch a sneak air attack across the North Pole.

Surfside Girds to Battle Ocean

WHERE BATTLE LINES ARE DRAWN

Broken line drawn along this aerial view portion of Surfside Colony depicts beach area eroded since 1955 when a million cubic yards of sand were deposited on shore in dredging of Seal Beach Naval Ammunition and Net Depot harbor (A). Left of "A" is sea wall built by Navy. A rock wall extending down beach from the Navy wall is being built by Colony residents as bulwark against erosion.

Colony Piles Rock Wall to Gain Breathing Spell

By WARREN WALTERS

Like David and Goliath, staunch little Surfside Colony and the ocean are again measuring each other for a possible clash on a wintertime battlefield.

Traditionally, the Orange County beach area's sling and shot to ward off periodic Goliath-like onslaughts of wind, high tide and storm is sand.

In 1947 and 1955 the federal government acted to pump sand along the eroded beach frontage.

The sea gradually consumed the first deposit of sand. And in a 1953 wintertime battle, Goliath gulped four houses in the west end of the colony.

Once again, the sand pumped into the colony in 1955 is nearly depleted. To stave off Goliath, the residents are erecting a wall of rock in the west end of the colony.

* * * *

BASED ON A RECENT ON-THE-SPOT inspection of the colony, William Herron, chief of the Rivers and Planning Division of the Army Corps of Engineers Los Angeles office, said:

"The Surfside area in my opinion is vulnerable to damage in the case of a severe storm this winter." He added that damage could include the loss of homes.

Faced with a continuing erosion problem—a problem they feel has been caused by offshore federal structures—the residents hope the growing wall of rock will protect the colony's west beach area until permanent remedial action is taken.

For years, the residents have sought the answer to the problem by contacting county, state and national legislators. They feel their best hope is an extension of the Federal Breakwater.

Contacted recently by The Independent, Press-Telegram, these legislators said nothing is being done now to provide protection for the colony on either an immediate or long-range basis.

Without exception these county, state and national officials blamed the federal structures for the shoreline erosion problem in the vicinity of Anaheim Bay.

* * * *

IN SEEKING TO protect themselves from future damage, residents of the colony are confronted with a dilemma.

Collision of Trains Kills 30

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A speeding train slammed into the rear of a crowded commuter train stalled outside of Buenos Aires Saturday.

Police estimated that at least 30 persons were killed and more than 120 others were injured in the devastating collision. At least six of the dead were women.

The steam locomotive of a train bound for Pergamino from Retiro Terminal crashed into the stopped suburban train which was bound for Tigre.

Bodies were mangled by the impact. Arms and legs were severed from the bodies as the locomotive tunneled midway through the tail-end wooden coach which contained most of the victims. Newspapers and belongings of the passengers flew out the broken windows of five of the seven coaches of the Tigre train.

* * * *

THE ENGINEER of the Pergamino train, Humberto Bergara, was not hurt in the crash although his locomotive buried itself in the wreckage of the wooden coach. He was taken into police custody for questioning.

Bergara, when asked the cause of the accident, replied, "It was the signals." He would not elaborate.

None of the cars in either train was derailed.

Boxer Jordan Held in Arrow Assault

Lightweight boxer Don Jordan was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon Saturday night after he assertedly shot arrows at two women in South Los Angeles.

Sgt. Fred Jansen said the 24-year-old Jordan and Edmund Mancilla, of Los Angeles, got into an argument with two women in front of 7917 S. Figueroa St.

The detective said that Mancilla told Jordan "I've been insulted" and that Jordan fired two arrows which struck the women's auto.

The alleged victims, Arlene Enox and Kathryn Antoine, both 28, claimed that Jordan threatened to kill them.

* * * *

MRS. ANTOINE said she managed to escape from her parked car and run into a nearby house to telephone police.

Detectives said the boxer had been drinking.

Jordan conquered Gaspar Ortega in the first bout nationally televised from Long Beach Oct. 22 in the ballroom of the Lafayette Hotel.

They returned to their seats after a Nationalist Chinese delegate finished his statement.

Jred Wife's Bullet Kills a Stranger

A Long Beach bar patron was shot and killed Saturday night by a woman customer demonstrating "what she was going to do to her husband," according to police.

Spencer Thomas Pritchard, 57, of 1036 McFarland St., Wilmington, a Pacific Electric train engineer, was pronounced dead on arrival at Seaside Hospital.

Wanda Bowles, 32, of 1966 W. 20th St., was held for investigation of murder by police after patrons said a bullet from her gun struck the man down in a bar at 1645 W. Anaheim St.

* * * *

POLICE SAID William T. Walker, 46, of El Segundo, told of narrowly being missed by the vagrant bullet.

Walker told police Mrs. Bowles was seated next to him, flourishing a .38-caliber pistol and making threatening remarks about her husband when the gun went off.

The bullet went through a fold in Walker's shirt and struck Pritchard, who was seated on a bar stool, in the chest.

Kasper Found Guilty

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A jury of 12 white men convicted John Kasper Saturday of inciting to riot during Nashville school integration disorders here last fall. His sentence was set at six months in the workhouse and $500 fine.

The jury deliberated an hour and 16 minutes.

Judge Homer Welmar had charged the jury that Kasper or anyone else has a right to make public speeches but must answer for the consequences.

* * * *

THE 29-YEAR-OLD roving racist took the verdict with only a quick nod of the head. His followers, mostly women, flocked around him as he walked rapidly from the courtroom.

"I hope every one of them jurors is happy and I hope their grandchildren will be, too," one woman said with tears in her eyes. Others voiced similar disapproval of the verdict.

Kasper declined to comment.

* * * *

JUDGE WELMAR set Dec. 5 for hearing on a new trial motion. Bond was continued at $2,500.

Kasper was released Aug. 1 from a federal reformatory in Florida after serving 10 months for contempt of federal court in connection with racial disorders at Clinton (Tenn.) in 1956.

He was convicted again in 1957 in connection with the Clinton rioting and sentenced to six months. This case is on appeal.

Minister Seeks to Unfrock Rev. (Kid Mexico) Faulkner

By JIM McCAULEY

The minister who ordained Kid Mexico as a preacher demanded Saturday "the Kid" turn in his ordination papers because preaching and punching don't mix. "The ordination papers are out of order," fumed the minister.

Ex-boxer Tod C. (Kid Mexico) Faulkner plans to open a boxing training ring in Palm Springs in which he will teach boxers how to punch, then preach to them for a spell, charged the Rev. Olive Vaughan Henry.

Faulkner is the former bingo baron of Signal Hill who was ordained a minister by the Rev. Mrs. Henry last Aug. 8 after the Kid claimed he "got religion."

* * * *

BUT, COMPLAINED the Rev. Mrs. Henry, Faulkner has broken faith with her by:

1. Failing to do any preaching in his new lecture hall in Palm Springs.

2. Inviting the Chi Chi Night Club to sell liquor on Palm Springs property where Kid Mexico planned to preach. A deal reportedly also was offered to a dance hall.

3. Hatching a deal to mix boxing and preaching as part of a ringside training plan.

4. Altering the original ordination papers to make them look more impressive.

The Rev. Mrs. Henry said she was the only person who ordained the Kid, but that Faulkner wrote in the names of two other ministers as also performing the ordination.

Though Kid Mexico was ordained only in the Undenominational Church, he also wrote in the name of the Full Gospel Holiness Church on his ordination papers, asserted the Rev. Mrs. Henry.

* * * *

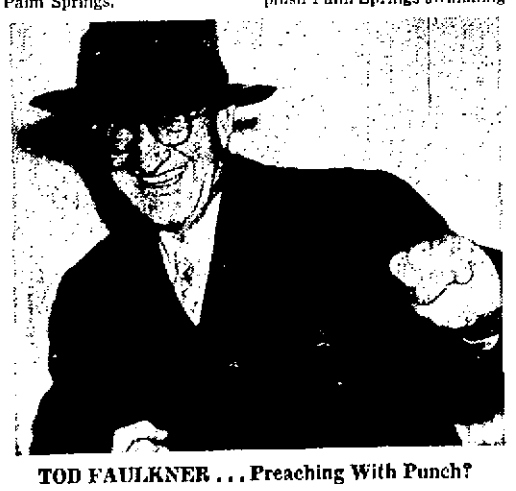

THE THING that really irked the Rev. Mrs. Henry: The Kid planned to build a plush Palm Springs swimming pool to use for baptizing persons.

The Rev. Mrs. Henry said she demanded Kid Mexico return the ordination papers. He refused, she said. "I want to talk to you," he told her.

The Rev. Mrs. Henry penned letters to both the state attorney general and the California secretary of state, urging that Kid Mexico's ordination papers be invalidated.

She wrote Kid Mexico directly:

"I will not register your name with my head church under this dark cloud. I pray the Lord's forgiveness for you."

Cubans Suspend Fighting

HAVANA (UPI) — Cuban government forces and rebel armies of Fidel Castro called a 30-hour truce Saturday night in a furious "battle for Santiago" in which hundreds have been killed or wounded in three days of fighting.

An army communique said at least 244 rebels and six government soldiers had been killed in fighting around Santiago, capital of Oriente Province and hotbed of rebel activity. Hundreds of rebels and soldiers were reported wounded.

The communique said the offensive against the Castro forces was spearheaded by the army and was supported by "intense air bombardment" and naval units.

Pilot Picks Wrong Field, Collision of Jets Kills 3

MARCH AIR FORCE BASE (UPI)—A jet pilot who apparently though he was landing at his home base 10 miles away collided with another jet which had just landed here in bad weather Saturday night, killing three men, the Air Force reported.

The public information office said a jet trainer from Lowry AFB, Colo., had just landed in instrument weather, when the pilot of another trainer from Norton AFB, Calif., also came in and struck the first plane on the runway.

"The second pilot was disoriented in a condition of low visibility and apparently mistook March for Norton," spokesmen said. "He apparently was in communication with Norton while landing here."

It was pointed out this was not definitely confirmed, however, and an investigation into the crash was under way. Identities of the three were not disclosed.

L.A.C. Says:

Inflation Scare

As one of the minority who supported Sen. Knowland in the recent election we may be accused of being prejudiced when we say the Democratic victory touched off a spiral of inflation. Actually the first evidence of a spiral started in the stock market where it is said mostly Republicans operate. But the fact is the stock market had two of its biggest days following the election. Experts say it was caused by heavy buying by investors who looked upon the new Democratic congressmen as big spenders—which reflects itself in inflation and devaluation of the dollar.

Whatever the reasoning may be it could not be based on the present earnings of the industries whose stocks were traded in. It is evident the stock market future earnings have already been anticipated by the prices paid for stocks over the past 10 months. With stocks at their all-time highs it will take all-time high earnings to justify the investments that have been made in them this year. The big question for investors and workers in those industries is—will inflation wipe out what they have gained by increased wages—and will their companies earn enough money to pay reasonable dividends on the amount of money invested in the new plants, machinery and materials needed to make new jobs?

These are fundamental economic problems which will affect every person in this nation during the coming few years. It places a responsibility on the Democratic officials now in control of state and federal legislatures. If many of the things they promised in their campaigns are voted into law it means the end of our economic system as we have known it. It would mean greatly increasing social security payments, providing a national medical insurance plan (a start of socialized medicine), greater subsidies to farmers, longer and higher unemployment payments and great expenditures for public power, aid to farmers and other programs (which have been costly to taxpayers wherever placed in effect).

There are good arguments for each of these projects. But they will cost so much money they can wreck the economy of the nation. This sounds like an alarmist reactionary speaking, but if the different projects so promised are added up no other conclusion is possible. The federal deficit is expected to be over $12 billion this year. Our state budget will be a quarter billion dollars more than income next year, just on present expenditures. But the California Democratic platform adopted early this year calls for most of the things enumerated above—and the general run of men elected are dedicated to the New Deal philosophy. Governor-elect Pat Brown is not included in that philosophy, but it is doubtful he can stop a legislature feeling its oats after its great victory.

These are not cheerful thoughts. But it is a situation facing the entire nation. The stock market serving millions of investors over the nation has shown its feeling over the results of the election. It is probable it reflects the feeling of people generally. That is the most dangerous factor we face. If the people generally start on buying sprees because they fear inflation it will send the spiral up ever faster—until it reaches its height—and then will come the smash. It is a good time for Democrats to inform the men they elected that social security and other extensions should be held within the costs the people are willing to pay—and not that they be put in effect dependent on deficit financing. By no other means can we escape real trouble in the next few years.—L.A.C.

S.F. Leader Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Ray W. Turnbull, 68, San Francisco civic leader and a retired regional vice president of the General Electric Co., died Saturday. He suffered a heart attack Friday at his San Mateo home.

Princess Held in Forgery

NEW YORK (UPI) — Princess Zina Hachevsky, Straus banking heiress, was held in $500 bail here Saturday on a charge of forging her millionaire grandmother's name on a department store sales slip.

The 26-year-old blonde, who was arrested for a second time last week on charges of possessing marijuana, was arraigned before Magistrate Thomas Fitzpatrick in felony court. Fitzpatrick set Nov. 14 for a hearing. She will answer the narcotics charge on the same day.

The princess was accused of charging the purchase of $884 worth of goods at Bloomingdale Bros. to the account of her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Simon W. Straus, widow of the banker. Police said the store has an affidavit from Mrs. Straus refusing to pay for the goods, including wall-to-wall carpeting, lamps and fabrics for the princess' three-room East Side apartment.

The heiress, daughter of a Russian prince, was at one time the only titled strip-teaser in Europe. She was formerly married to Count Bernard D'Harcourt of Paris and is now the wife of American actor Liam Barker. She was once engaged to Peter Howard, the American playboy whose party-giving in Rome made recent headlines.

of the gang were killed in the gun and grenade battle.

Police said documents seized in the raid indicated that the rebel extremists were plotting to attack the bank in downtown Havana this week. The documents also showed the rebels were planning a series of assassinations and a program of sabotage of official and industrial enterprises.

* * * *

AFTER 72 HOURS of almost continuous action in the Sierra Maestra mountains, the rebels and the government agreed to a 30-hour truce at the request of the Cuban Red Cross to enable the removal of wounded from the battle scene.

Under the terms of the truce, the Red Cross will receive the wounded, starting this morning at Dos Caminos de San Luis, near Santiago.

Castro personally conveyed the rebel acceptance of the truce in a radio broadcast directed to Col. Jorge Caballero of the Red Cross.

* * * *

THE BATTLE was the most violent in the recent stepped-up anti-government activities of the rebels who sought to disrupt the national elections Nov. 3.

The army said the government offensive started three days ago against rebel positions in the immediate vicinity of Santiago. Fierce fighting raged for three days.

The communique said government troops had been pressing, before the truce, to wipe out pockets of rebels who had not withdrawn to the mountains.

FIDEL CASTRO
Approves Respite

HAVANA (UPI)—Four top aides of former Cuban President Carlos Prio Socarras have been seized by police in a surprise raid on a private Havana home, informed sources said Saturday night.

The four, all said to be members of Prio's staff in exile, were identified as Sergio Mejias, former communications minister in Prio's government and a former member of the Cuban House of Representatives; Rodrigo Lominchar, ex-representative and former labor leader in the sugar industry; Sergio Perez, owner of a chain of laboratories, and Enrique Colas, former labor leader in Oriente Province.

Clyde Beatty Circus, Cole Bros. Combining

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — The Clyde Beatty Circus and the Cole Bros. Circus announced Saturday they have signed a 10-year merger agreement to make them the "biggest tented show in the country."

The new circus will be known as the Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Combined Shows.

The merged circus is owned by the Sarasota Equipment Co., headed by Jerry Collins of Sarasota. Randolph C. Calhoun of Sarasota is vice president and chairman of the board, and Mrs. H. E. Merwyn of Sarasota is secretary-treasurer.

Collins said the new circus will be "bigger and better" than ever before, including a new big-top tent, new acts from Europe and other new attractions. But, he said, the show will continue to be built around the animal acts of trainer Clyde Beatty.

The new circus is scheduled to open a six-week engagement next April at Palisades Park, N. J., in direct competition with the Ringling Bros. Circus in nearby New York.

Many Older People Praise New Type Eyeglasses

Today there is encouraging news for bifocal wearers who have difficulty reading merchandise labels on store shelves, seeing across the card table, checking the instrument panel on the car, etc. That aggravating "middle distance blur" can be eliminated because it is now possible to blend THREE ranges of vision inconspicuously in one lens. Thus your glasses will provide clear vision not only for general distance and near points, but also for MIDDLE distance. Continuous Vision Glasses banish headache and nervousness caused by faulty middle distance vision. We have served the people of Long Beach for 32 years. Come in and let us demonstrate how Continuous Vision Glasses (three sight ranges) may help you. Liberal credit terms. Dr. J. M. SOSS, Optometrist, 37 Pine Avenue. HE 5-6219; HE 6-6739. Spy Search Spurred by Slaying

27. His body was found in a hotel room last Sunday. A board of inquiry decided Friday his death was not suicide, but ruled there was not enough evidence to determine whether it was accidental or murder.

A friend of O'Donnell's testified the dead man had been fired after working on the DEW line for a transportation company for six weeks because he had been trying to organize a Seafarers' International Union local.

Norman Cunningham, port agent for the union here, said O'Donnell was fired for misconduct as a security risk.

Evidence was given that O'Donnell checked into the hotel three days before he died. He stopped at the hotel desk Sunday to pick up $250 he had left in the hotel safe.

Fifteen minutes later, a hotel guest found O'Donnell dead outside a washroom on the first floor of the hotel. A gun lay nearby.

Tests showed the gun was about two inches from O'Donnell's chest when he was shot.

2 Policemen Hurt in Football Riot

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—University of Tennessee and Chattanooga students, enraged when one of their buddies was dragged bodily into a police van, staged a mass riot after Saturday's Chattanooga-Tennessee game.

Thousands of students and many older persons battled police who had to use tear gas, fire hoses and billy clubs to quell the one-and-a-half-hour riot. Two policemen were hurt, possibly seriously, during the melee.

Patrolman John Collins suffered a brain concussion, according to Police Chief Joe Kimsey, and Patrolman Bobby Poynter suffered a possible broken ankle and a concussion. Both were hit on the head by bottles thrown from high atop the east stadium grandstand.

* * * *

KIMSEY estimated property damage at $2,000.

He said at least 11 persons were arrested. Three or four were older persons and the rest were students from the two schools. Kimsey said they will be charged with inciting to riot and malicious mischief.

The police chief also said that if an investigation determines who threw the bottles which injured the policemen they will be charged with felonious assault and attempted murder.

Chattanooga officials, headed by Mayor P. R. Ogliatti, pleaded for the Chattanooga students at the police station.

LT. HUGH AMMONS said, "We had to get Poynter out of the gutter when the students were beating him after he was hit over the head."

Poynter was evacuated by police car to University Hospital because an ambulance could not reach the scene.

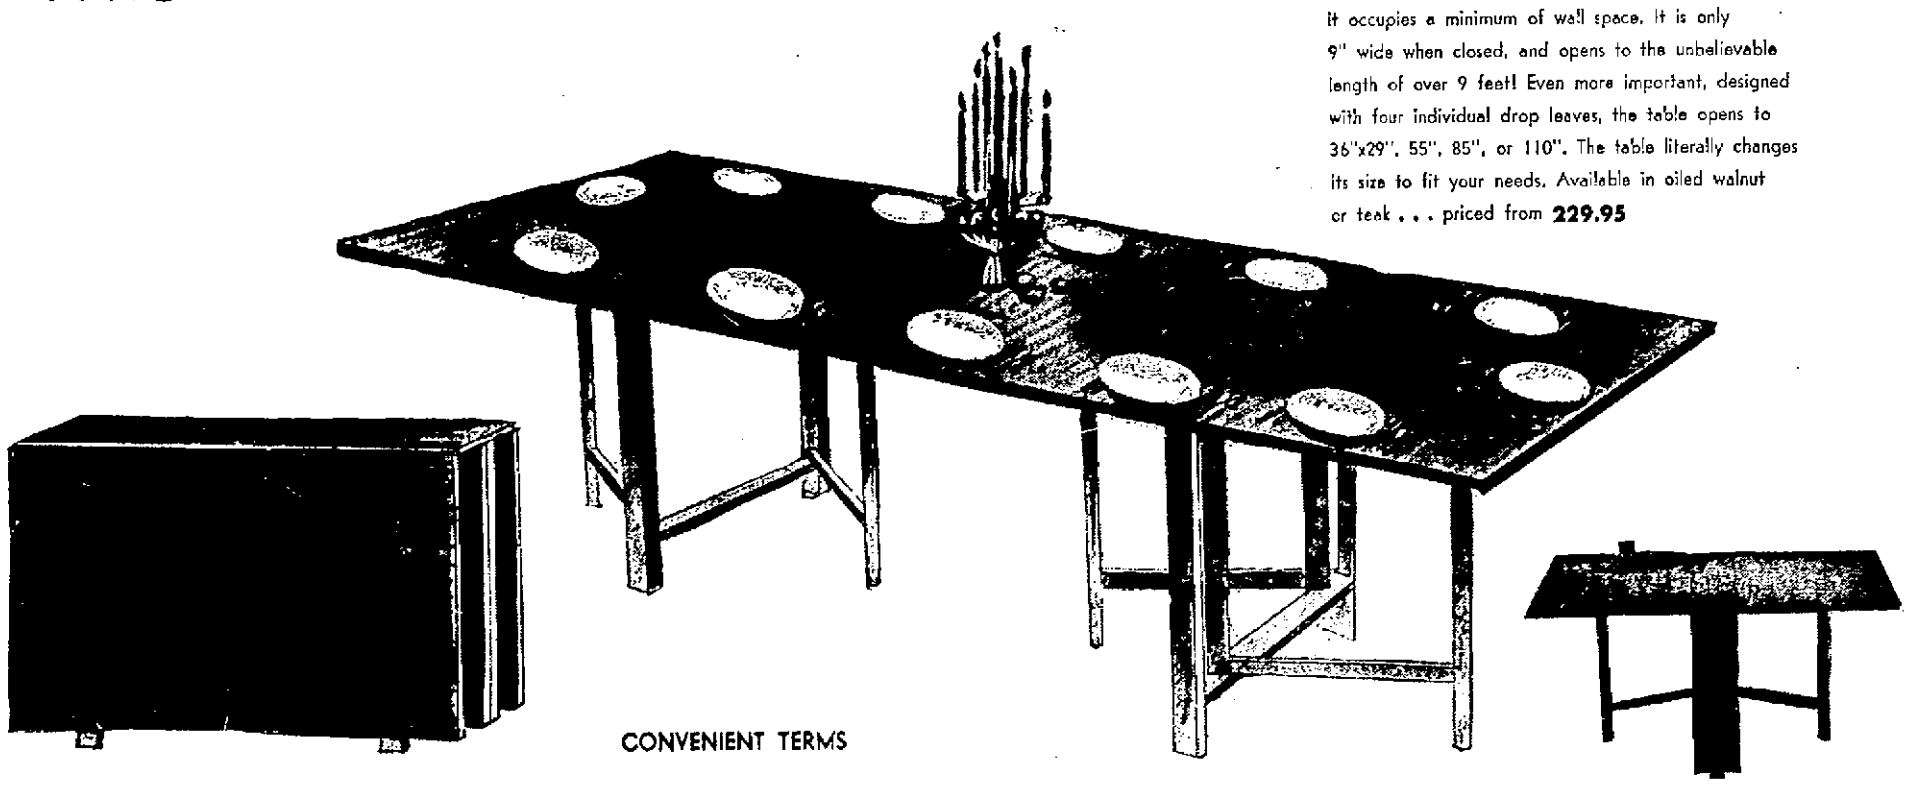

The riot started when two students began fighting immediately after Chattanooga defeated Tennessee 14-6, for the first time in the 51-year-old series.

Boy Scouts Saved From 300-Ft. Cave

CATAWBA, Va. (UPI)—Rescuers clawed through rock and debris 300 feet below ground Saturday night to rescue 14 Boy Scouts entombed by a rockslide in a mountainside cave. One of the boys suffered a broken wrist.

State police radioed that the other 13 were found unharmed other than being shaken by the ordeal in the deep cavern in the side of Cove Mountain about five miles west of here. The cave is about 20 miles northeast of Roanoke, Va.

Gene Whorley of Catawka, one of the rescuers at the scene, said seven of the Scouts, members of a troop from Richmond, Va., were brought out first. Then the other seven were reached by the rescue squads and cave explorers who were digging to reach the boys.

Whorley said one of the Scouts told him the entire troop was roped together as they descended into the cave, which stretches about 1,000 feet downward.

The boys, whose ages ranged from 13 to 17, apparently were trapped on a ledge some 300 feet below the surface when one Scout slipped on the rocks and caused a slide.

Several ambulances and about 100 rescuers converged on the scene and worked for nearly four hours to free the boys.

Stepdad Admits Slaying

FIRESTONE PARK—A Firestone Park auto worker was booked on suspicion of murder Saturday night after he assertedly confessed slaying his 12-year-old stepdaughter.

Homicide detectives said 43-year-old Woodrow C. Harley, of 7730 Wilcox Ave., admitted putting a chloroformed pillow over the head of Georgia Terry Channell and holding it there while he criminally assaulted her.

Harley telephoned the Firestone sheriff's station early Saturday and reported he had found his daughter dead in her bed. He said then that he had seen her go to bed about 11 p.m., but had no knowledge of how she had died.

* * * *

LATER, HOWEVER, when homicide sergeants Jack Lawton and Ward Hallinen confronted him with bedclothing he had hidden in a washing machine, Harley sobbed out his story.

He said he had intended only to render his stepdaughter unconscious and did not realize she was dead until he tried to awaken her several hours later.

The coroner listed the cause of death as asphyxiation due to strangulation. The girl was a freshman at Bell High School.

Park Beasts in Nairobi on Prowl

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Authorities Saturday proposed building a "Siegfried Line" around 40-square mile Nairobi national park to keep wild animals from straying into the suburbs of this city.

The annual report of the Royal National Parks of Kenya said leopards have been seen prowling around suburban gardens looking for their favorite dish — dogs. Lions have chased wildebeest into suburban streets. Baboons and other animals seek a change of diet in citizens' flower beds and vegetable patches.

The report said a barrier should be built but it ended on a despondent note. It said zebras sometimes dig under fences and lions can penetrate even barbed wire. There are 43 lions in the park.

Four Killed as Car Rams Train in Fog

FONTANA (UPI) — Four men were killed early Saturday when their car struck a freight train in a dense fog which hampered traffic over a wide area of Southern California.

Thirteen other persons were injured in a pile-up of 25 vehicles which occurred in fog on the San Bernardino Freeway near Pomona.

The four killed when their auto smashed into the train on Valley Boulevard were identified as Leonard Hilke, 29; his brother, Dale; Jack N. Welch, 24, and Monte York, 24, all of Upland.

Two cars which collided in fog led to the spectacular pile-up on the San Bernardino Freeway. Police and Highway Patrol cars took an hour to clear the resulting jam.

Three Badly Hurt in Lakewood Crash

Three persons suffered severe head injuries in a collision Saturday night at South St. and Clark Ave. in Lakewood.

Roy K. Henson, 36, of 12161 Morrie Lane, Garden Grove, and his wife, Margaret Francis, 31, both passengers in a car driven by Nicholas John Kerp, 36, of 4351 Studebaker Rd., were taken to Bellwood General Hospital.

* * * *

HENSON WAS in serious condition with a possible skull fracture and head lacerations. His wife suffered a concussion, head lacerations and back injury.

Also injured seriously was Gary Glenn Garrison, 15, of 16630 San Homero Wy., Buena Park, who was taken to Carobil Hospital with head injuries. He was riding in the second car involved, one driven by his brother, Henry Gale Garrison, 18, a sailor stationed at the Long Beach Naval Station.

Gen. Cummings Gets Orders for Korea

TOKYO (UPI) — Lt. Gen. Emerson L. Cummings, U. S. Army commander in Japan, has been assigned to Korea it was learned Saturday. There was speculation he would be named commander-in-chief of the United Nations Command.

Gen. George H. Decker now is U. N. commander and head of the U. S. 8th Army in Seoul. He has served 16 months in the job. In the past, U. N. commanders generally have held the post for only about a year.

Teenager Arrested in Tin-Snips Slaying

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—A teenage boy was arrested Saturday in the tin-shears slaying of Mrs. Zephyr Gubser, 84.

The woman, grandmother of Sheriff's Lt. Roy Gubser, was found dead in her apartment Thursday, her throat cut with a pair of tin shears found lying nearby.

Officers said they believed robbery was the motive.

Agents Nab Suspects in Betting Pool

HOLLYWOOD—U. S. Treasury agents raided the office of the "Pigskin Sports Guide" Saturday and re-arrested a man and wife who have allegedly been running a $10,000-a-week football betting business.

Norman Wellman, 35, and his attractive brunet wife, Bebe, 29, were taken into custody on suspicion of violating the federal wagering-tax statute, according to Virgil G. Crabtree, supervising agent of the Treasury Department's intelligence division.

The Wellmans were freed on $500 bail each following their arrest Oct. 22 on suspicion of bookmaking. They appeared in municipal court Friday and were bound over for trial with their superior court arraignment scheduled for Nov. 21.

The Treasury agents cleaned out the office at 1600 N. La Brea Ave., confiscating furniture and personal property as permitted under federal law.

The Wellmans reside at 3914 Lenawee Ave., Culver City.

House Group Hits Jump in High-Level Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House watchdog group Saturday censured what it called tremendous increases in the number of higher level jobs in the federal payroll.

Since 1942, it said, a general upgrading in jobs has added more than a billion dollars a year to the payroll while the number of workers has remained about the same.

The report, a study of the one million white collar workers, was prepared by a House Civil Service subcommittee on manpower.

"Our subcommittee has not always been impressed by the effort and enthusiasm of agencies to attempt to absorb more work or new programs with the existing staffs," wrote subcommittee chairman James C. Davis (D-Ga) in transmitting the report to Congress.

* * * *

HE SAID THE pay structure for the white collar workers has been rewritten and revised upward by administrative action.

In its findings the subcommittee said it recognized there are instances of justified promotions and upgradings.

But it added:

"At the same time, in the face of the record it must be concluded that the tremendous increases in the number of higher level positions and the general upgrading that has taken place are entirely disproportionate and largely cannot be justified on the basis of new and expanded programs."

* * * *

THE SUBCOMMITTEE reported that between 1942 and 1958 the average pay of a federal civilian worker increased by 153.3 per cent, from $2,175 to $5,510. Laws passed by Congress have accounted for only a 95 per cent increase in average salary, it said.

The subcommittee called upon officials in the executive branch to put a stop to unjustified upgradings.

The subcommittee said that in 1942 there were 11,000 employes in the top bracket pay levels while today there are 56,000—a 500 per cent increase in 16 years. Pay in these levels runs from $9,890 to $17,500.

Right-Work Forces 'Not Licked Yet'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Despite defeat Tuesday in five states, forces backing right-to-work proposals said Saturday they are "far from licked."

William T. Harrison, executive secretary of the National Right-to-Work Committee, noted that voters in one state—Kansas—approved a proposal to ban compulsory union membership.

Voters in California, Ohio, Washington, Colorado and Idaho turned down similar propositions on their ballots in Tuesday's elections.

* * * *

"WE CAN LOOK at the results with pride," Harrison said in a statement. "There were 18 right-to-work states on Tuesday morning; now there are 19."

Before Tuesday's voting 18 states, mostly in the south and west, had adopted right-to-work laws.

"We will not be cowed by the heavy guns of organized labor and their powerful financial superiority," Harrison said.

"We will keep on, secure in the knowledge that the courage of principle is superior to the evil forces of compulsory unionism led, in too many cases, by men who sponsor violence and intimidation as a means of enrichment of their personal treasuries and political power."

GOP State Chairmen Regard Nixon as Top 1960 Prospect

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nixon remains the leading candidate for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination but Nelson Rockefeller could be a contender for the prize.

That is the consensus of Republican state chairmen who replied to an Associated Press inquiry as to the leading possibilities for top place on their ticket two years from now. The chairmen will have a strong voice in the choice of 1960 convention delegates.

Of 38 chairmen who were reached, 20 said in varying degrees of firmness that Nixon is the leading candidate while only two put Rockefeller in this class. However, 10 viewed the contest as something of a toss-up between Nixon and Rockefeller, who won the New York governorship last Tuesday. Several were undecided on any candidate.

• • • •

ONLY TWO OTHER names cropped up among those mentioned for head of the 1960 ticket—Sen. Barry Goldwater, who won re-election in Arizona, and Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

While Rockefeller has turned away questions about possible presidential aspirations, L. Judson Morhouse, New York state chairman, indicated he thinks the new governor will be a contender.

GEORGE MILIAS JR.
Rocky for Veep

From other sections of the country there were suggestions for a combined Nixon-Rockefeller ticket.

California's GOP Chairman George W. Milias Jr. said that while he personally prefers Nixon "there is every likelihood of a Nixon-Rockefeller ticket."

"It's good thinking to me that, with Rockefeller as a new governor, he would settle for vice president," Milias said.

Wyoming Chairman Harry T. Thorson said such a ticket "would give us good east-west balance and satisfy two key states."

• • • •

NIXON APPEARED to have a backlog of strength in the south paralleling in some respects that which the late Sen. Robert A. Taft carried into several nominating conventions.

Texas GOP Chairman Thad Hutcheson said Nixon is "head and shoulders" above any other possible candidate. Louisiana's N. Bryant James held that the man for the nomination is "unquestionably Nixon."

North Carolina's GOP Chairman William E. Cobb said the vice president is the most acceptable candidate in his state. Arkansas' Ben C. Henley called Nixon "the only possible nominee." Virginia's Lee Potter also picked Nixon.

Rockefeller showed up with some southern support. GOP Chairmen G. Harold Alexander of Florida and William B. Shartzer of Georgia declined to choose now between Rockefeller and Nixon. Mississippi's Wirt A. Yerger Jr. picked Nixon, Rockefeller and Goldwater in that order.

• • • •

GREGG D. SHOREY JR., South Carolina's GOP chairman, said, "Our Great White Hope is Goldwater—he represents our only salvation."

West Virginia's Daniel L. Louchery said "Nixon is the man for us in 1960 and I personally expect to stick right with him."

Tennessee's B. Carroll Reece, once Taft's southern manager, said he needs more time to survey the situation before he makes up his mind.

In the east, Pennsylvania's George I. Bloom said he thinks Nixon is out in front now "but with Rockefeller's victory in New York he will be on the minds of many people who will watch him as a possibility."

Maryland's D. Eldred Rinehart felt Nixon was ahead "but there are quite a few other able personalities." He didn't name them.

Retiring Sen. H. Alexander Smith, serving temporarily as New Jersey's chairman, said that while Nixon is "most commonly talked about, it's too early to judge whether his position might be affected by the California situation." He meant the GOP's loss of a governor and senator in that state.

• • • •

IN NEW ENGLAND, Massachusetts, GOP Chairman Daniel E. McLean said, "Rockefeller certainly is a front runner—if he wants to be."

McLean said his favorite-son candidate is Lodge, adding: "I think he's the best man and would make the best president."

Rhode Island's William T. Broomhead picked Nixon and Rockefeller as top runners. Maine's B. Frederick Ayer put Nixon ahead. Connecticut's Clarence F. Baldwin called it Nixon and Rockefeller, in that order.

In the midwest, Wisconsin's Claude Jasper said he regards Rockefeller as only a "paper" candidate.

"Richard Nixon is the leading candidate," he said. "Rockefeller has no organization, no machinery such as is needed to get convention support. The party leaders will pick the candidate and Nixon, at the moment at least, should walk through."

Nixon campaigned in both Wisconsin and Nebraska. In the latter state, Chairman Richard E. Spelts Jr. said he thinks the vice president is the "one man who has all the qualities we need in a nominee."

"He is the man who can and will rejuvenate the party," Spelts said. "He understands party organization; he is very dedicated."

Rockefeller Off for Vacation on Venezuela Farm

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nelson A. Rockefeller began a vacation Saturday to rest from his strenuous, successful campaign for governor of New York and prepare to organize the Republican administration that will take over in Albany, Jan. 1.

Rockefeller and his wife, Mary, planned to leave New York by airplane for Venezuela, where he has an 860-acre farm.

ELECTION AFTERMATH

Winning, Losing Measures Listed

Of the 38 state, county and city measures which Long Beach voters considered at Tuesday's election, some required two-thirds majority for passage, some only a simple majority. Here is a guide to the requirements and the lists of winning and losing measures.

All 18 state propositions required only a simple majority.

County measures A through F, bonds, required two-thirds majorities according to the Government Code and certain bond acts. County measures G through M, charter amendments, are governed by the same simple majority rule applying to constitutional amendments. Measure N, flood control, required simple majority to provision of the Water Code and the Los Angeles County Flood Control Act.

Long Beach measures S and T required two-thirds majorities according to the Government Code on municipal bonds; measures U, V, W, X required simple majorities.

APPROVED PROPOSITIONS

STATE — No. 1, Veterans Bonds; No. 2, School Bonds; No. 3, Construction Bonds; No. 4, San Francisco Harbor Bonds; No. 7, Maintenance of state government in war disaster; No. 8, Shortens presidential vote residence requirement in state; No. 9, Lengthens general sessions of Legislature.

COUNTY—C, Bonds for security tuberculosis hospital; G, Bans discrimination in county Civil Service; H, Gives Civil Service employes of special government districts rights to transfer to county positions; I, Allows Supervisors to fix vacations in line with private industry; J, Elliminates Civil Serv-ban against leasing county-owned property for public purpose; L, Allows county-city agreement for city to perform county functions; N, Bonds for storm drain improvement.

CITY—U, gives Long Beach bidders 1 per cent preference in local bidding; W, Allows Harbor Commissioners to make 40-year leases.

PROPOSITIONS REJECTED

STATE:—No. 5, Allows legislators to set own salaries; No. 6, Requires publication of bond issue laws in newspapers; No. 10, Permits immediate possession of property for public airport or schools after 90-day notice; No. 11, Allows county or city to sell street bonds and repay with gasoline tax money; No. 12, Permits legislators to become notaries public; No. 13, Makes State Superintendent of Public Instruction appointive; No. 14, Permits pay increases during terms of county, township, city officers; No. 15, Permits boxing on Sunday and Memorial Day; No. 16, Repeals tax exemption on religious and private non-profit schools; No. 17, Reduces state sales tax and raises tax on higher incomes; No. 18, Right to work.

COUNTY—A, Bonds for new men's county jail; B, Bonds for women's jail; D, Bonds for out-patient clinics; E, Bonds for nurse quarters; F, Bonds for resident physician quarters; K, Enlarges Civil Service Commission from three to five members; M, Allows Supervisors to issue information reports on county recreation and cultural facilities.

CITY—S, Bonds for street improvements to attract tourist-convention business; T, Bonds for auditorium improvement, combined with S as "Jobs for Long Beach" program; V, Transfers city tax assessing and collection to county; X, Eliminates tax fund support of Municipal Band (The "no" vote was approval of continuing the band).

Nicosia Britons Get Guns

By Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Britain announced Saturday it will arm its civilians in this Crown colony for protection against attacks by EOKA, the terrorist Greek Cypriot underground.

The announcement came from Government House as public clamor sounded back in Britain for sterner action to halt a wave of slayings of Britons on Cyprus.

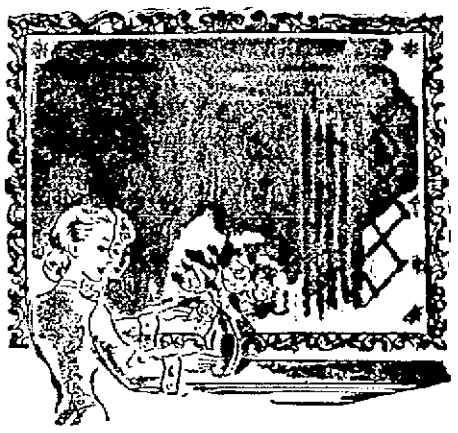

The announcement said district security committees throughout the island are authorized to issue arms to British civilians who ask for them.

EOKA gunmen have killed nine British civilians and 12 servicemen since starting a new offensive five weeks ago.

Colony Eyes Advance of Goliath Sea

As a privately-owned area, the colony cannot turn to Orange County for protection. The state lacks mechanism for taking action.

As a small area—280 parcels of land and 187 homes—the colony cannot raise the sums necessary for permanent remedial work.

Herron, in assessing the colony's present situation, based his opinion on an official report as well as upon his inspection.

The report is the Anaheim Bay Harbor Beach Erosion Survey Report prepared by the Army Corps of Engineers. Herron said the findings of the 1954 report still apply.

In the report, the cause of the beach erosion at Surfside and Seal Beach is described, shoreline problems from the Belmont Pier to the mouth of the Santa Ana River are outlined and suggested remedies are given.

• • • •

THE REPORT ATTRIBUTES EROSION in the area adjacent to Anaheim Bay to flood control projects and to offshore structures which have combined to cut down the supply of sand and accelerate erosion by modifying wave patterns.

Normal downcoast drifting of sand has been cut off by the Federal Breakwater and the jetties at the adjacent Seal Beach Ammunition and Net Depot, the report states.

The report makes it clear that Surfside is not an isolated segment of the beach erosion picture in the vicinity of Anaheim Bay.

Permanent relief for the area affected by Anaheim Bay, the report indicates, would be achieved by the extension of the Federal Breakwater. This was held unlikely immediately because of the cost.

• • • •

THE MOST PRACTICAL PLAN, as indicated in the report, calls for replenishing the sand and for periodically replacing the sand as it is eroded.

"The recommended plan for protection of this segment (the West Surfside area) comprises artificial beach nourishment at the rate of one million cubic yards every five years.

"This beach-maintenance program will incidentally nourish the downcoast beaches as far as any effect of the Anaheim Bay breakwaters might be felt."

Herron said the initial deposit of sand under this plan would cost $626,000.

Surfside residents say that since the damage was caused by federal structures, the federal government should pay the cost.

"Although legal precedent indicates the United States is not liable for shore damages that occur as a result of federally constructed harbor or shoreline structures," the report states, "provision has been made for federal participatin in erosion prevention."

This provision, a general shore protection and beach erosion act emodied in Public Law 727, is the only recourse open now to Surfside residents, Herron said.

• • • •

UNDER THIS ACT, and Public Law 826 which modified it to provide continuing federal participation, the federal government will pay one-third of the cost of remedial action. The local area must raise two-thirds of the cost.

Recently the state stepped into the picture and, as in the case of Seal Beach, will advance two-thirds of the local area's cost if the area can raise one-third.

In the case of Surfside, the federal government would pay about $192,000 of the $626,000 to deposit sand on the beach. The local area and the state would have to provide the rest.

Surfside residents say they are unable to raise a third of the sum.

Herron said a new study has been authorized in which the percentage of federal responsibility for shoreline erosion will be ascertained.

The effect might be, he said, to increase the share of the cost which the federal government would assume for erosion damage. He added, however, that funds to conduct such a report are not now available.

• • • •

HERRON EXPLAINED the Corps of Engineers has no funds and no authorization to take any action in the Surfside area in the event of an emergency.

Rep. James Utt, of Orange County, promised to seek disaster funds from President Eisenhower in the event of an emergency this winter at Surfside. Such funds, however, are usually reserved for major, wide-scale disasters.

Utt has sought the extension of the Federal Breakwater, was instrumental in getting the appropriation for the 1955 sand deposit and worked for a provision in the federal law which permits the government to participate in the restoration of private property.

He said he will again seek extension of the breakwater and promised to try to push through an appropriation for the contemplated study which would ascertain federal responsibility for beach erosion.

Orange County Assemblyman Richard Hanna and State Senator John A. Murdy are two other legislators who have sought remedial action for the Surfside-Seal Beach area.

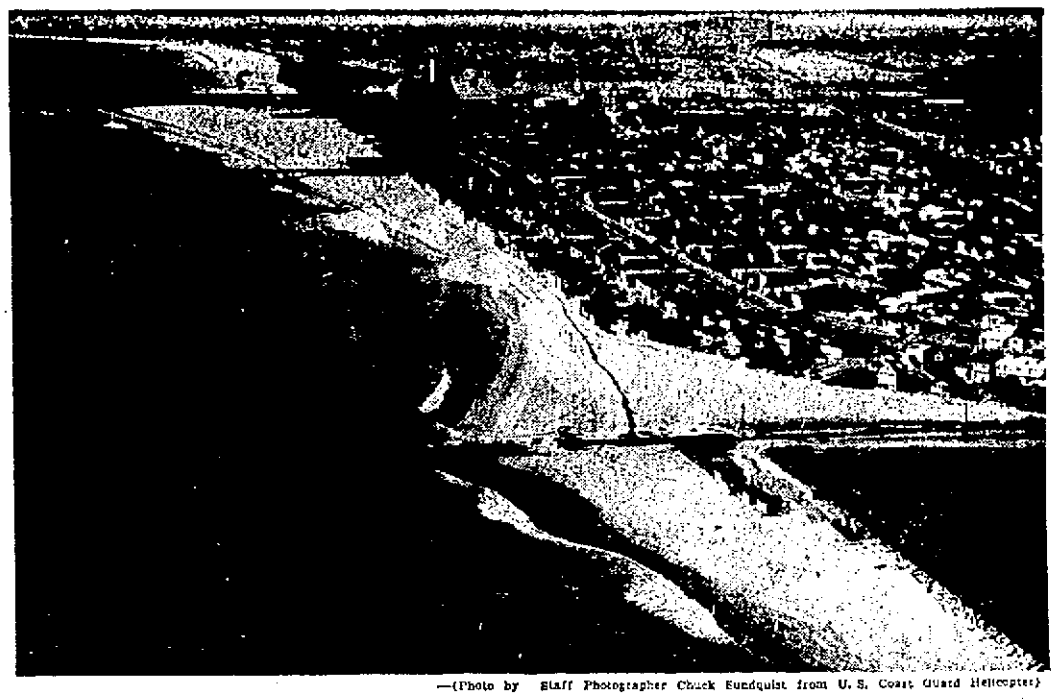

• • • •

BOTH REITERATED their interest in the situation when contacted by The Independent, Press-Telegram and said they would continue to work for a solution of the problem.

Hanna explained there is no state agency that could step into the picture in the event of an emergency. He said he would call the problem to the attention of the State Department of Natural Resources.

Another official who has worked toward the solution of the beach erosion problem is Orange County Supervisor Willis Warner. He was one of the legislators instrumental in getting the federal appropriation for the 1947 deposit of sand at the colony. He has since worked for extension of the breakwater and for studies of the area.

He said, however, "The County could take no action in aiding Surfside residents this coming winter. We are not at present contemplating any action with the view of protecting adjacent County-owned beaches."

WHERE SAND WILL BE ANCHORED

An erosion problem that has threatened Seal Beach's west beach area (from the pier at center almost to the Navy jetty in foreground) for several years is on the way to being solved. Plans approved last week by the Army Corps of Engineers call for the construction of a groin adjacent to the Seal Beach Pier. The groin will anchor sand.

PROJECT ADVANCES

Seal Beach Gains in Erosion Fight

Another hurdle has been cleared toward the solution of a beach erosion problem that has threatened apartment houses and residences along the east beach section of Seal Beach.

Plans drawn by a Long Beach firm for remedial work have been approved by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, a Seal Beach official said.

The next step is approval of the plans by the State Department of Water Resources.

• • • •

AN OFFICIAL at the firm of Moffatt & Nichol Engineers said advertising for bids on the $285,000 project is expected to begin within the next 60 days.

The project calls for the construction of a 700-foot-long concrete sheet pile groin adjacent to the Seal Beach Pier and for the pumping of sand from the city's west beach to the east beach portion. The sand will be anchored by the groin.

The remedial action is being done in line with federal provisions under which the government participates in correcting shore erosion problems.

• • • •

SEAL BEACH raised one-third of the total cost. The state provides the remaining two-thirds. The federal government will reimburse the state for one-third of the cost when the project is completed.

Frank E. Nichol of the engineering firm estimated the project will take five or six months to complete after the bids are let.

He said the project will have no effect on the erosion problem at nearby Surfside, but added, "We are confident the project will cope with the problem at Seal Beach."

L.A. Reportedly Favored for Demo National Meet

By ROBERT E. LEE
(of I.P-T Capital Bureau)

WASHINGTON — The Democrats next month will select a site for their 1960 presidential nominating convention and reports here are that Los Angeles may have the inside track.

Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler told a news conference Friday the 1960 convention site will be decided upon at a meeting of the party's national committee here Dec. 6. He listed in this order the cities he said were in the running: Miami Beach, New York, Atlantic City, Philadelphia, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

When a reporter asked if Los Angeles was a "pretty good bet," Butler said he wouldn't put it that way but added:

"They have a fine new building there and several things that a lot of people would like."

He had no particular comment on any other city.

• • • •

OTHER SOURCES at Democratic headquarters indicated that Butler personally is leaning heavily toward a recommendation of Los Angeles, largely because he was impressed on his last visit there by the new convention building scheduled to be completed next year. However, the decision will be made by a site subcommittee of the national committee and ratified by the full committee.

Butler said all seven cities had made appropriate financial guarantees, a major prerequisite to committee consideration, but did not specify any amounts.

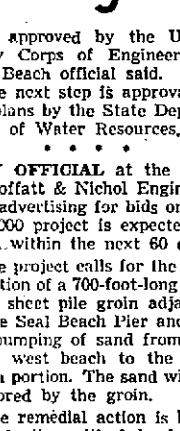

There has been no word from the Republicans about a possible site for their convention to nominate a presidential candidate. It is likely, however, that representatives of the two committees will consult informally before either makes a final choice. The ideal arrangement has been found to be a city on which both parties can agree. This saves money for the committees themselves, as well as for representatives of the press, radio and television who are spared vast expenses in shifting personnel and equipment from one convention city to another.

• • • •

IN 1956 BOTH parties appeared satisfied with their choice of sites — the Democrats in Chicago and the Republicans in San Francisco.

Yankee Moves His Family to N.Z. to Dodge A-Bombs

NEWTON, N.J. (AP) — John R. Perkins and his family are on their way to New Zealand because he believes the American public is indifferent to the threat of an atomic war.

Perkins, 46-year-old Blairstown attorney and the son of the late Congressman Randolph Perkins, announced the move last August. Friday, he bade goodby to friends and took off with his wife, Alice and their five children.

Perkins, a Princeton graduate, said the United States "is the most marvelous country on the face of the earth, but the moral and spiritual hearts of our culture have grown obscured and lax with soft living."

Perkins plans to live in the vicinity of Tauranga, a seaport, and plans to look for a job in law, banking or the lumber industry.

LONDON (UPI) — It takes two to argue: a judge threw out the case brought against a tenant by landlord Sygmunt Ziuziakowski, who claimed the tenant was rude to him.

"How can it be a nuisance," asked the judge, "if a tenant is rude in English to his Polish landlord who cannot speak a word of English and is stone deaf in the bargain?"

FTC Drive on Fake Price Cuts Backed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission said Saturday its drive against phony price advertising has drawn voluntary support from business organizations, advertising media and Better Business Bureaus.

The FTC announced a month ago plans to attack the shady business practice of exaggerating the original price of consumer products in order to make the selling price seem a bargain.

Charles E. Grandey, who is directing commission efforts to obtain voluntary compliance with FTC guidelines against such practices, said in a statement:

"The response to the guides by business leaders throughout the country encourages us to believe that solid results can be achieved on a voluntary basis."

The Assn. of Better Business Bureaus and its local affiliates have distributed 300,000 copies of the guides. In a letter to 10,000 business executives, K. B. Willson, national Better Business Bureaus president, said:

"We urge all national advertisers who have become enmeshed in deceptive pricing practices through competitive pressures, to accept the guides as an opportunity to free themselves of fictitious list prices, false pre-ticketing, inflated trade-in allowances and all other forms of phony bargains which are unworthy of American business."

The FTC said support for the campaign has come also from the National Assn. of Broadcasters, the American Newspaper Publishers' Assn., the Advertising Federation of America and the American Retail Federation.

Harry A. Babcock, deputy FTC executive director, said the commission has received more than 14,000 letters and telegrams from consumers since the guides were published.

"This indicates that the buyer is becoming alerted to the tricks of price deception and is better able to protect himself," Babcock said.

MAYBE you've wondered what they use for street addresses at Tin Can Beach, the "jungle" squatter community that has sprung up on Bolsa Chica Beach in nearby Orange County.

Well, here's how. A girl who came under the jurisdiction of the county probation officer here was asked for her address. She gave it this way:

Thirty-four telephone poles east of the firewood sign on Tin Can Beach.

IT'S COMING to that season again, and what about those old Christmas cards people don't want to throw away?

Every year, this dept. gets a lot of inquiries about places to send the old cards. In the past, I've been able to give a little help along that line.

But now, with the calls starting again, I'm stumped.

Georgia Glenn, who over the years has taken thousands of old cards and sent them to distant missions of her church, reportedly has all she can use for the moment.

If any individual, organization or agency will take old Yuletide cards, pls. check in. I'll be glad to insert a notice here, and I think I can guarantee a big response.

THE BIGGEST waste of money in the late political campaign was that spent for billboards, etc., by Democratic candidates seeking to make their names familiar to the public. They just didn't need to do it.

Ordinarily, of course, this would be a legitimate campaign enterprise.

But at this election, the name didn't make a bit of difference. Just that party tag after any name on the ballot would have elected.

In fact, I realize now that I witnessed this year's election way last February.

That was when the California Democratic Council met at Fresno to endorse candidates. With one exception, those endorsees came through finally as the elected officials—much to the surprise, I'm sure, of many of the people who participated in that convention, and perhaps to some of the candidates.

Let's take the case of Bert Betts of San Diego as an interesting example. When the Demos gathered, San Diegans let it be known that they were tired of being left out of things, and they wanted at least one endorsee out of the bunch.

They came up with Betts, an accountant from down there, as a possible endorsee for state treasurer. Three other candidates entered the contest for the endorsement, and it took four ballots to settle it. The final scrap was between Betts and Sander Johnson of L. A. Betts got the support that had left the other candidates, and was endorsed.

That's how a man who was unknown over the state a few months ago came to be the state treasurer, winning over an incumbent whose name had long been prominent in political news. All that was needed was that CDC endorsement—from then on, it was automatic. This year, all a man had to be was a Democrat to win. Little else counted.

At the close of the Fresno convention, there was a lot of speechmaking to the effect that the whole ticket would be elected. But there's always such talk at such affairs. The Demos at that time really had no idea what tremendous triumphs were in store for them.

DRIFTWOOD—A sign on a window at 3626 Santa Fe announces that spigetti is served there. . . . Californians yowl about the long ballot, but when given a chance to shorten it by making the office of state school supt. appointive instead of elective, they said no. . . . Somebody please explain why the mortuaries go so big for bus bench advertising. Are people who sit on bus benches supposed to be good morgue prospects?

City to Ask County for Park Aid

A Rolling Sweeper Gathers No Suits

Somehow It's Equipped With 'Divine Right'

By GEORGE ERES

The king of the roadways in California is not, as you may have been led to think, the Rolls Royce, Cadillac or Lincoln Continental.

It's the lowly street sweeper.

The sweeper may not move as fast as the big cars, or cost as much, but it's got more power.

Its power, in effect, is distantly related to the kings of England in the days when they could do no wrong. The street sweeper can do no wrong.

The sweeper may smash into your auto when it is parked legally in front of your house, and you can't sue the city. You could sue the operator, but these men are not notoriously wealthy. But, even the operator of the sweeper has a little of the "king can do no wrong" dust on him and there are instances when he, too, can't be touched.

• • • •

OH, YOU CAN bring suit, all right. But it won't do any good, unless some Philadelphia lawyer can figure out how to get a higher court reversal of the decision handed down in Barton vs. City of Los Angeles (L. A. County 48521), or the next session of the State Legislature changes the Motor Vehicle Code.

In Barton vs. City of Los Angeles, the court held that a section of the MVC, 453 B, exempts city vehicles working on the surface of a highway from liability as set forth in the code.

Some attorneys have claimed the decision means that a street sweeper apparently is not a vehicle. Such is not the case; the MVC knows what a vehicle is. The code specifically states that a motor vehicle is "vehicle that is self-propelled."

• • • •

THE WAY we get ourselves boxed in like this, according to Leonard Putnam, Long Beach deputy city attorney, can be traced back to the Divine Rights of Kings theory.

When the kings departed, states, counties and cities clothed themselves in this "Divine Rights" wrap of being incapable of doing wrong, Putnam said.

Down through the ages, however, public liability acts were adopted by legislative bodies.

These acts, considering the source, apparently erred in some respects, too.

The street sweeper that can do no wrong is a case in point.

• • • •

THE EXEMPTION of a "self-propelled wheel chair" from registration and licensing is another. The electric autos, for instance, known as "invalid chairs" get away from these regulations. Obviously, it's not only invalids that use them as "self-propelled wheel chairs." They're actually motor vehicles, but are not so treated, points out Putnam.

The exemption doesn't work, however, when you get down to motorized bicycles or the "toy" autos that are self-propelled and carry youngsters. These are supposed to be licensed. Drivers are supposed to be over 16. The vehicles legally are not entitled to use public sidewalks, but must be driven on streets. However, anybody can operate these vehicles on their own property where the MVC does not apply.

In suits against the city, in many instances, the city can and often does say, "sue and be ———."

The rasher of so-called police brutality suits recently brought are a case in point.

• • • •

PEOPLE CAN SUE till blue. It doesn't do any good to name the city a defendant in a police brutality case. The city can enter what is called a demurrer and the case is thrown out because the city doesn't give anybody the right to sue in these cases. The individual policeman, however, can be sued. Most of them carry insurance covering such possibilities—paid for by the policemen themselves.

The city, however, can and does defend itself in such suits. But, even if the city loses, it wouldn't have to pay, according to Putnam. "At least not until the state legislature says different," he pointed out.

"In certain cases, even if the city wanted to pay, it couldn't," said Putnam.

This business of sovereign immunity may be wrong, but it's the law. If a city pays bills it is not legally permitted to pay, that amounts to gift of public funds, which is illegal.

KING OF THE ROADWAY . . . No Royal Robe, but Clothed in Immunity

Matching Fund for El Dorado Is Goal

By GEORGE WEEKS

The City of Long Beach is about to ask for a substantial cash allotment from Los Angeles County for development of El Dorado Park, Asst. City Mgr. J. R. McHenry has revealed that preliminary negotiations with county officials are already under way.

Thus far the discussions have been tentative. No specific sum has been mentioned.

But Loren W. McCannon, administrative assistant to City Mgr. Sam E. Vickers, noted that the city has an investment of $2,500,000 in the 851 acres of park land.

"From our standpoint, it would be desirable for the county to match the city's investment," McCannon remarked.

• • • •

AS ENVISIONED by city officials, the county's share of development would be limited to the 567 acres east of the San Gabriel River, a portion of which is adjacent to unincorporated territory.

Park development would not cover the whole easterly area, for 51 acres is already being improved as a city tree nursery and 60 acres is reserved for highways and freeways.

The city expects to take responsibility for developing the 284 acres west of the river, of which 166 acres is reserved for a golf course.

Some $900,000 in municipal bond funds is available for El Dorado—enough for a beginning in the west area but short of the amount needed for an 18-hole golf facility.

• • • •

THE COUNTY has taken the initiative in developing numerous regional parks—some of them smaller than El Dorado. Some of these improvements are within municipal limits, but there is none in the Long Beach area.

County officials explained that they do not authorize contributions to recreational improvements on sites owned by cities where the facilities would be primarily for use within the cities.

But El Dorado, particularly the expanse east of the river, is at the edge of Long Beach. City officials contend it will be of benefit to all of southeastern Los Angeles County, including other municipalities as well as unincorporated areas.

• • • •

THE CITY has never sought aid in developing neighborhood parks, even when these were formerly in unincorporated areas. Long Beach assumed responsibility for Pan American Park shortly after annexation and is about to acquire title to Wardlow Park.

The possibility of seeking financial aid for the regional El Dorado Park developed from Councilman Charles R. Dooley's request for an investigation of a proposed $365,000 swimming pool to be financed from county funds in Southwest Sportsman's Park, Century Blvd. and Western Ave., Los Angeles.

County officials explained that this park is near the Los Angeles boundary, is regional in scope and thus is regarded as eligible for county money.

El Dorado Park meets those criteria also, in the opinion of the city manager's office.

McHenry said a formal request for submission to the Board of Supervisors is now under study.

Prop. Gives L.B. State $20 Million

Passage of state Prop. 3 means the beginning next year of a more than $20 million, five-year building program at Long Beach State College that will nearly double the value of the school's facilities.

The ballot measure authorized a $200 million bond issue which will be tied in with $300 million in general funds for an overall $500 million building program at the University of California and state colleges.

Long Beach State College has been allotted $20 millions of these funds under a schedule prepared by the State Department of Finance, said Dr. Francis J. Flynn, administrative dean in charge of development at the school.

He said the schedule of construction and the funds are subject to yearly revision, "but according to our present knowledge the money will be received." He added the date for the first construction in 1959 under the program has not been set.

• • • •

THE SCHEDULE for construction work at the college calls for seven new buildings, three major additions and equipment for buildings.

Here is a breakdown of the building program and costs:

1959—Equipment for the present science building, $1 million; equipment for the industrial arts building, $450,000; construction of an engineering building, $1½ million; an addition to the administration building, $650,000, and construction of a third wing on the fine arts building, $2½ million.

1960-61—Equipment for the engineering building, $750,000; equipment for the addition to the administration building, $65,000; equipment of the fine arts wing, $250,000, and construction of classroom building No. 5, $1,750,000.

1961-62—Equipment for classroom building No. 5, $175,000, and construction of classroom building No. 6, $900,000.

1962-63—Equipment for classroom building No. 6, $90,000; construction of an addition to the industrial arts building, $1,250,000, and construction of classroom building No. 7, $1,100,000.

1963-64—Equipment for the industrial arts building addition, $375,000; equipment for classroom building No. 7, $110,000; construction of an addition to the engineering building, $3,000,000; equipment for the engineering building addition, $750,000; construction of classroom No. 8, $1 million, and construction of a fourth wing for the science building, $4 million.

Dr. Flynn said facilities at the college and buildings under construction now value approximately $21 million.

Now under construction is an addition to the library, men and women's residences, a home economics building and a science building.

Ex-Navy Man Finds Self Outranked by His Students

John R. Blake, instructor of an industrial management course at City College, says jokingly he was forced to resign from the Naval Reserve "in self defense."

A lieutenant commander during World War II, he finds himself frequently outranked by his students.

"None of them pull rank, though," he explained. "They're really a wonderful group," he said of the 12 members of the military in his class.

The situation in which Blake finds himself lecturing to commanders and colonels points to what he terms an "amazing diversity of background" represented by his students.

Blake, chief industrial engineer at the Long Beach Naval Shipyard, has taught the industrial management course for five years at the college's Business and Technology Division.

• • • •

IN THE MILITARY GROUP are two colonels, two majors, three captains and a lieutenant from Ft. MacArthur, and a commander, a lieutenant commander and two lieutenants junior grade from the Naval Shipyard and the Seal Beach Ammunition and Net Depot.

Teaches Top Brass

"Several of the officers told me they will be retiring shortly," Blake said, "and they want to go into management jobs where they can utilize their executive experience."

Most of the service personnel are holders of college degrees. Fourteen of his students have either bachelor or master's degrees.

Two of the 36 students in the class have the two-year associate in arts degree and 17 are high school graduates.

But, again reflecting the diversity of background, three of his students never got beyond grade school.

• • • •

THE ELEMENTS of diversity in the class led Blake to list five teaching challenges he has encountered.

1. Teaching Navy, Army and civilian students in the same class.

2. Teaching from lieutenants to colonels in the same class.

3. Teaching shipyard, ordnance depot and civilian students in the same class.

4. Teaching students whose educational background ranges from grade school to holders of doctorates.

5. Teaching students from management and labor in an industrial management class.

• • • •

IN COPING with the spread of educational backgrounds, Blake said, "You can't shoot for the midpoint, you have to aim your material at the overall group."

Many students came to class from their jobs in automotive, petroleum, aircraft and machine tool industries.

Blake said that because of the caliber of these students, "I find I learn as much as I teach."

NEW OFFICER

Kenneth B. Bingham, a veteran of 25 years in aircraft engineering, has been appointed reliability manager of the Long Beach division of Douglas Aircraft Co. His department is responsible for performance and reliability of Douglas-designed equipment.

Machinists Meet

Long Beach Lodge 1235, International Assn. of Machinists, will have its second call for nominations at 7:30 p. m. Nov. 17 at 726 Elm Ave. Officers will be elected Dec. 1.

L.B. Score on Traffic Improved

Long Beach traffic safety is still far ahead of last year's record—but the city ranks 14th among 20 of its population class in latest ratings published by the National Safety Council.

During the first eight months of 1958 the city's 20 traffic deaths gave it a rating of 2.2 per 10,000 registered motor vehicles on an annual basis.

Scores of comparable cities ranged from 1 per 10,000 for Wichita, Kan., to 6.7 for El Paso, Tex. The average for all the 20 cities was the same as Long Beach's rating.

In the corresponding period of last year 38 fatalities were recorded here.

Current police records show 28 deaths, compared with 47 on the same date in 1957.

65 Students to 'Boss' Lakewood for 1 Day

Seniors from Lakewood and Mayfair High Schools will take command of the top posts of city goverment, business and industry Thursday in the third annual Lakewood Youth Day.

Sixty-five students from the two schools, selected as acting officials and observers for the one-day affair, will assemble at 9 a.m. at the Lakewood City Administration Building.

Arrangements for Youth Day were completed Saturday by the Lakewood Rotary Club, sponsor, the schools and the city.

• • • •

THE STUDENTS will tour the city hall before going to their various assignments with the community leaders whose places they take.

Bob Gates, 16, of 4203 Greenbrier Rd., will take over Angelo M. Iacoboni's position as mayor of Lakewood. "Mayor" Gates and the acting city officers will conduct a mock city council session after the tour.

Students serving on the mock city council with "Mayor" Gates will be "Councilmen" Robert Cooper, Steve Wall, Marilyn Pitman and Gene Austin.

All of the students and their adult counterparts will be guests at a Rotary Club luncheon at Lakewood Country Club. Parchment certificates will be presented to the participating students by Principals Vernon Hinze of Lakewood High and John Prasch of Mayfair.

Two L.B. Youths Get Scholarships

Earl Kidder, 3134 Easy Ave., and Gary Mitten, 6550 Cerritos Ave., have received scholarships from Pepperdine College for the current year. Kidder, a graduate of Poly High School where he played football and baseball, is a freshman history major. Mitten, graduate of Hanford high school where he was on the tennis team, is a freshman business administration major.

Don't Let Tots Chew on Painted Objects

Health authorities are not referring to guns when they warn parents to beware of "lead poisoning" among children.

Dr. I. D. Litwack, M. D., Long Beach City health officer, warns that youngsters between the ages of 18 months and three years are in danger of poison when they chew on painted objects.

Many kinds of paint, including most outdoor paints, contain lead. Eating leaded paints may cause death or lasting harm to a child, he said.

Dr. Litwack urged parents to contact their doctors immediately if their children show signs of severe stomachache, frequent vomiting, constipation, frequent headaches, fretfulness or convulsions.

Sciots Honor Leslie de Capp

Leslie de Capp, of Long Beach, was named Pastophori of the California Sciots Saturday in convention at Santa Barbara.

Named Supreme Pharoah was Robert Rolfe, of Santa Barbara. Other officers are I. Jacobsen, San Diego, Mobib; Marvin Howard, San Francisco, Armeses; George R. Wishart, Stockton, Scribe; Waldo F. Postel, San Francisco, Lecturer, and Ben H. Schmidt, San Rafael, Chancellor.

Bank Stays Open

Long Beach office of California bank, 129 E. Broadway, will remain open for business Veterans Day, Nov. 11, it was announced by R. A. Reid, vice president and manager.

Rites Monday for Ida Stone

Ida Margaret Stone, 67, who taught art for several years in the Long Beach Unified School District, died Friday at her home in South Gate after an illness of several months.

Funeral services will be at 2 p. m. Monday at Lynwood Mortuary.

Women Hold Top Honors in Chest Campaign

Women working for the United Neighbors Community Chest campaign hold all the top honors in the drive among group leaders, James G. Craig Jr., campaign chairman, disclosed Saturday.

"Only two men, Robert Bothner, chairman of men soliciting security firms, and Henry H. Clock's advance gifts B team, were able to break into the first 16 ranking places," Craig said.

Craig expressed concern that 10 groups with quotas totaling nearly $30,000 have made no reports at all.

• • • •

THESE SECTIONS include restaurants, osteopathic physicians, dentists, engineers, the Coast Guard, Signal Hill city employes, building maintenance and repair firms, the Army, the Air Force, and business and office service firms.

"With the drive halfway over, all sections should be at least 50 per cent done," the chairman stated. "We have had no answer as yet from 65 per cent of firms, either."

Announcing that the drive's third meeting is slated for Thursday noon at the Veterans Memorial Park Clubhouse, Craig said:

"According to schedule we must have more than 75 per cent of our $953,953 campaign goal by Thursday to be successful."

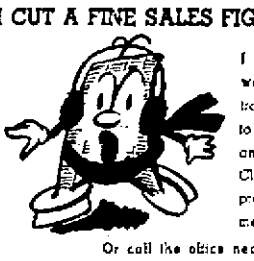

• • • •

BRONZE PLAQUE awards won by Long Beach Iron Works, Procter & Gamble and Insurance Securities, Inc., will be presented at Thursday's meeting for having reached firm, executive and employe goals.

Awards for "fair share" firm treasury contributions will be made to Dean Van Lines, Signal Hill Machine Works, Ellis Paint Co., Globe Pacific Hoist Co., Gaines Electric Supply Co., Shepard-Pendleton, Ltd., Hess Construction Co., Norco Construction Co., Norcross Construction Co. and L. B. Federal Savings and Loan Assn. Firm and executives' awards will go to Craig Shipbuilding Co.

Arctic Rescue Crew Decorated After Landing With IGY Party

ICE ISLAND SCIENTIST GREETED

WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP)—Six strategic Air Command crew members were awarded medals here Saturday night for rescuing a 20-man scientific team off a disintegrating floe in the frigid Arctic Ocean 300 miles from the North Pole.

The six men, assigned to the 8th Air Force's 4087th Air Transport Squadron at Harmon AFB, Newfoundland, landed at this sprawling air installation in western Massachusetts along with 13 of the 20 rescued International Geophysical Year party.

• • • •

THE PLANE landed at 7 p.m. (EST).

Maj. Gen. Walter C. Sweeney Jr., commander of the 8th AF, pinned the Distinguished Flying Cross on Maj. Basil L. Commons of Hopkins, Mich., and Capt. Joe B. Sullivan of Kansas City, Mo. The four members of Capt. Sullivan's crew received the Air Medal from the Air Force commander. They are: Capt. Virgil L. Gross, co-pilot, of Ottawa, Ill.; Capt. Kenneth E. Garrett, navigator, of Shawnee, Kan.; Staff Sgt. Hoyt M. Jones, radio operator, of Jamestown, N.Y.; and Airman 2/c Billy B. Kress, loadmaster, of Davis, W. Va.

Capt. Sullivan piloted a Fairchild C123J which landed on the 2,200-foot ice runway in Arctic darkness to evacuate the marooned scientists. Maj. Commons, airborne commander, flew the C 54 which escorted the rescue plane to and from the floating ice station.

• • • •

GEORGE CVIKANOVICH, chief scientist of the IGY expedition in the arctic, said that 30 per cent of the floe beneath them was lost in a storm about two weeks ago. Another 40 per cent broke away in a storm last Sunday.

The IGY group had been floating across the arctic making scientific observations.

Cvikanovich said the rescue plane "was the most welcome sight I have ever seen coming out of the air."

Maj. Commons lauded Capt. Sullivan. He said Sullivan turned in "the finest piece of flying I have seen in my 15 years of service."

Debs Gainer Over Roybal in 4th Count

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Ernest E. Debs picked up another 312 votes Saturday over Edward R. Roybal in the fourth count of ballots in their battle for county supervisor.

The latest tally, third recount of Tuesday's election results, gave Debs 141,011 votes to 128,974 for Roybal.

The third recount was requested by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn "for the sake of the candidates and for the sake of public confidence."

Originally Debs had been in front, then Roybal forged into the lead and, subsequently, Debs regained the lead. Tabulating errors and the temporary loss of votes from 19 precincts marred the counting.

Roybal's campaign manager, demanded a new election in the third district.

"We feel that, whatever the outcome may be after this tragic five-day comedy of vote-counting errors, we cannot accept whatever new and different total vote that is reported," he said.

Upset Auto Pins Driver, Breaks Ankle

LYNWOOD — An elderly motorist was pinned by his small foreign car Saturday afternoon when the vehicle overturned after a collision at Imperial Hwy. and Century Blvd.

Grant W. Lee, 65, of Inglewood, was admitted to Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Los Angeles with a fractured ankle he suffered when his leg was caught under the overturned auto. Lee also suffered a broken rib and cuts and bruises. Bystanders righted the car by hand.

Mrs. Molly Anderson, 26, of 8307 Howe St., a passenger in the other car, driven by her husband, Nelson, 32, was admitted to St. Francis Hospital here with a broken nose and face cuts.

AIR FORCE 'SUCCESS' NEWS BLUNDER A MYSTERY

Army Ready to Take Turn at Trying Moonshot

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is the Army's turn to try a moonshot next and its space-project boss says preparations are on schedule.

The Air Force fired off the last of its present series of three lunar probe shots Saturday. Two of the three had been far short of success. Including the attempt Saturday from Cape Canaveral, Fla. The other one traveled out about 90,000 of the 220,000 miles to the region of the moon.

Under the program originally set up by the Defense Department but subsequently transferred to the over-all direction of the new National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the Air Force was ordered to make three lunar probe launchings, the Army two.

After the third Air Force shot, the Army was asked by newsmen if it was prepared to make its first launching effort early in December, the next period when the moon will be in position for launching a rocket in its direction.

The Army provided this reply from Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, boss of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency which also is in the satellite and space business:

"So far, we are on schedule, but the Army does not announce firing schedules in advance."

The equipment to be used in sending an instrument-packed vehicle toward the moon is on hand or en route to the Cape Canaveral launching site, the Army said.

Medaris' statement appeared to mean that if the space agency ordered an attempt during the first weekend in December, the Army would be ready.

However, Army rocketeers have been reported as preferring to make further test firings of a missile weapon which will be used to hurl the moon vehicle on the first phase of its flight. This could mean that the Army might choose to pass up the December shooting date and wait for another month or two.

To fire its lunar-probe vehicle, the Army will use the Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile, with its fuel capacity and speed increased. The thrust of the normal Jupiter power plant is about 250,000 pounds. This is well in excess of the thrust produced by the Army's Redstone missile — the basic power plant used for sending up earth satellites.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A false announcement of success for the moon shot that failed early Saturday threw news coverage into an uproar and left the situation generally confused.

Hours later there still was no adequate explanation of how the fantastic error occurred.

Maj. Gen. Donald N. Yates, commander of the missile test center, was not available for questions.

At 2:40 a.m., 10 minutes after the giant rocket blasted up and out of sight, the Air Force information office handed this mimeographed statement to newsmen waiting on their specially prepared observation platform:

"Staging and firing of the first three stages of the United States experimental space vehicle have been successful. The launching of the experimental space-probe vehicle has now been accomplished."

The Air Force operates the test center here for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and for all the military services.

Reporters rushed to their telephones with this first official indication that the impressive launching had been a success.

Radio and television announcers spread the good news around the world. Papers in many cities prepared to headline the announcement.

The excitement of success hung over the launch news center here for a pleasant quarter of an hour. Then came the shocker.

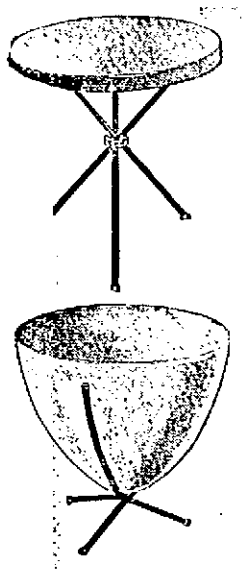

Maj. William Coleman, Air Force information officer, read aloud a two-sentence pronouncement that further radio information now indicated that the third stage had failed to ignite.

Faubus Vows to Keep Schools Closed

CRESTVIEW, Fla. (UPI)—Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus, accompanied by shouts of "Faubus for President," vowed Saturday he would never reopen Little Rock high schools under present circumstances.

He said if the schools were opened, they would be opened illegally by the federal government.

Nothing was said, however, about rumored attempts to form a third party, and Faubus emphasized he was a loyal Democrat and planned to remain one.

Faubus, addressing a crowd sponsors estimated at about 4,000 at an annual old folks picnic, said he would never reopen Little Rock schools because he would not be responsible for harm that would come to the people.

SPONSORS OF the rally had promoted the picnic as a major rally of southern States' Rights-ers, but only a few of the invited guests showed up. Most major political figures stayed away.

Faubus said Arkansas was ready to use the schools now to educate children, but said the state had been halted from doing so by injunction powers of the federal government.

The governor briefly outlined for the throng of cheering people the events in Little Rock during the past year and pointed out that a plan to provide education for students by giving them funds to go to any school they chose was found unconstitutional by the U. S. Supreme Court.

• • • •

SHOUTS OF "come on over here and take over," and "we'll give you Leroy's (Florida Gov. Leroy Collins) job," were heard throughout the hour-long speech. When Faubus finished, hundreds of people ignored the rest of the program and rushed to the platform to shake hands with him.

Faubus said the integration battle is but part of the fight between believers in constitutional government and those who want a strong central government.

There was no talk from the platform of a break from the Democratic Party. Faubus said emphatically: "I am a loyal Democrat and the only way they will get me out is to kick me out over my protests."

"I have fought in the battle not as a segregationist or an integrationist, but as a defender of our democracy . . . I don't want an all-powerful central government," he said. "I want the power to govern to remain in the hands of the people."

Britain Jobless at Postwar Top

LONDON (AP) — Britain has announced plans to pump more money into state-run industries to cope with rising unemployment. During October, the number of jobless reached a postwar peak of 514,000, representing 23 out of every 1,000 of the working population.

Claim by Peru on Fish Reaffirmed

LIMA, Peru (AP)—The Chamber of Deputies reaffirmed last night Peru's claim to fish and other marine resources up to 200 miles off its Pacific Coast.

The 200-mile limit was fixed in a pact signed some years ago by Peru and its maritime neighbors, Chile and Ecuador.

Pope Sends Blessing to Two Cardinals of 'Silent Church'

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John XXIII has sent special apostolic blessings to the two Cardinals of the "church of silence" held behind the Iron Curtain by the Communists, it was announced Saturday.

The new Pontiff sent telegrams bearing the blessing to Josef Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary at his refuge in the U. S. Legation in Budapest and to Alois Cardinal Stepinac of Yugoslavia, who is ill and confined by the Begrade government to his native village near Zagreb.

The Pope told both cardinals of his "profound sorrow" that they were prevented from attending his coronation this week in the Vatican.

• • • •

AUTHORITIES DID not disclose when the telegrams were sent or how they were delivered.

Neither prelate was allowed to leave his homeland to attend the funeral of Pope Pius XII and the conclave of Cardinals which elected John his successor.

Cardinal Mindszenty has been in asylum at the Budapest legation since the Soviet counterattack of Nov. 4, 1956 smashed the Hungarian revolution. There would have been fears for his safety if he tried to leave the building to go to Rome.

If Cardinal Stepinac left Yugoslavia, he probably would not have been allowed to return to his homeland.

• • • •

THE ONE CARDINAL from behind the Iron Curtain who freely came to Rome, Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski of Poland, celebrated a special Mass Saturday morning in the Madonna of Czestochowa Chapel in the Vatican grottoes under St. Peter's Basilica.

A number of Polish refugees attended the Mass in the chapel dedicated to the "Black Madonna" who has been the symbol of Poland's opposition to oppression for 1,000 years.

The Pope has held private conferences with the Polish Cardinal, presumably on church-state relations in Communist countries.

Canoe Pirates Off Indonesia

JAKARTA (AP)—Pirates still ride the seas off Indonesia in swift sailing canoes called proas.

The Japanese vessel Surabaya Maru reported on arrival here that pirates armed with knives attacked in Central Java's Semarang Harbor and made off with textiles and other goods.

123 Seized in Brazil Air Ruckus

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — War Minister Henrique Teixeiro Lott cracked down today on antagonistic air force officers with a total of 123 reported under arrest.

They were among those who signed a manifesto protesting Lott's appointment as temporary head of the air force during a visit to the United States of Air Minister Correa Melo.

Lott acknowledged that disciplinary measures were being taken in the air force but he insisted there was no crisis, as some government opposition newspapers have suggested.

• • • •

THE PROTEST letter still was being circulated and the number of arrests is expected to rise to 200. Lott was reported placing the 123 officers under 30-day arrest.

The powerful war minister has not been popular with the air force since 1955 when, with army backing, he ousted President Carlos Luz, a favorite of the air force and navy. He said he did so to prevent an attempt to block the inauguration of President-elect Juscelino Kubitschek. With Kubitschek's assumption of power Lott became one of the most influential members of the regime.

RINK ROYALTY

BEAUTY ROLLS ALONG

Judy's Wheeling Her way to Fame

The 17-year-old daughter of Ellis Wampler, Compton College co-ordinator of engineering, is a beautifully designed coed who is engineering a sparkling career as a roller skater.

Judy, whose parents live at 3391 Oak Knoll Dr., Los Alamitos, is a Compton College freshman recently chosen as a homecoming princess.

Her curvy assembly of 119 pounds on a stature of 5 feet, 3 inches helped her win second place and a trip to Las Vegas on a TV beauty contest with 150 rivals.

• • • •

CHOSEN QUEEN of the Hippodrome Skating Rink in Long Beach last year she was awarded a modeling course at Audrey Share's studio. Judy models without fee to maintain her amateur standing as a skater.

Being queen of something or other is getting to be a habit. Judy won the West Coast Roller Skating Queen title in 1957 and 1958, took third in the nationals last year and second place this year.

Seven years ago in Lynwood, Papa Wambler reports, Judy strapped on wheels for the first time and won a "street" roller skating speed contest. Four years ago she started skating in earnest.

Since then she has wheeled home with 41 awards, including 16 medals, eight trophies and awards for "specials, jumps and tests," as the events are known in the technical jargon of the rink.

• • • •

THE LISSOME COED can dance with skates on better than almost anybody can without. Competing naturally with 80 persons in the Gold Medal Dance Test, she was one of two Californians to pass.

One of these days Judy expects to spin right into a career as a TV model.

Here is a "boneless" moccasin which can bend double — like an acrobat. Its leathers are as supple as a Siamese dancer's muscles, the sole is hand laced, the shapely wedge heel higher than usual. The low heeled copy of this shoe was the success of the season, and this version promises to be even more popular. In perfect brown, and black.

Like Grandpa Used to Make

THEY DO, TOO, make cars like they used to! 1958 versions of the 1901 Merry Oldsmobile are being marketed at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. "The Car With the Backward Look," complete with Klaxon bulb horn, has one-cylinder, 4 h.p. motor, perks along at 35 mph, 67 miles to the gallon. The old Olds sold for $650, FOB Detroit. The new old Olds is $1,495, FOB Ft. Lauderdale. Production schedule calls for 2,000 cars this year.—(AP Photo)

Russia Betrayed Allies to Japan, Admiral Says

BOSTON (AP)—The Russians gave Japan important information about the Allies' secret plans to liberate the Philippines in World War II, says a seafaring historian.

Rear Adm. Samuel Eliot Morison, USNR (Ret) disclosed the incident in "Leyte," 12th volume of his prodigious history of U. S. naval operations in World War II, to be published Monday by Little, Brown & Co.

This is how he tells the incident:

"When the battle of Leyte Gulf opened, the Allies were congratulating themselves they had "caught the Japs flatfooted," but the contrary was true. Although the Japanese had obtained little advance intelligence from reconnaissance, an important piece of information came from Moscow.

* * * *

"THE JAPANESE ambassador there learned from the Soviet Foreign Office that, through a diplomatic 'leak,' they had heard that U. S. air forces based in China would make attacks designed to isolate the Philippines.

"That an Allied diplomat's tongue should have been loosed at a Russian vodka party is understandable, but why did the 'People's Commissariat for Foreign Affairs' impart this indiscretion to their ally's enemy, the Japanese?

"It seems probable that official Russia did not exactly approve American efforts to win victory promptly, and hoped that the Pacific war would drag along until such time as the Soviets found it convenient to come in."

Morison withholds identification of the tongue-wagging diplomat.

The admiral considers the battle for Leyte Gulf the greatest naval engagement of all time, even larger than the Battle of Jutland in 1916.

He points out that in the latter, 151 British and 99 German ships were engaged, while at Leyte 216 American, 2 Australian and 64 Japanese vessels were involved.

The great battle, in his opinion, probably will stand as the last battle-line engagement.

* * * *

"THE BATTLE OF Surigao Strait (part of the Leyte operation) marks the end of an era in naval warfare," he comments. "It was the last battle in which air power played no part, except in the pursuit. It was the last engagement of a battle line. Here an old sailor may indulge in a little sentiment."

Morison's new volume gives an interesting sidelight on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's return to the Philippines. It was contributed by Gen. Yamashita, "Tiger of Malaya." Yamashita did not believe MacArthur had landed on Leyte, thinking photos showing him wading ashore were "mock-ups, done in New Guinea."

Had he known, Yamashita said, "He would have thrown the whole strength of the Japanese air forces into the suicide raid on MacArthur's headquarters, and avenged the death of Admiral Yamamoto."

Trial of Beck Tax Case Set for Monday

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — The thrice-postponed trial of Dave Beck Sr., former Teamsters' Union president accused of evading $240,000 in income taxes, starts Monday in federal court here unless some legal maneuver leads to further delay.

For Beck, it is another development in troubles that started when he was called before the Senate rackets-investigating committee and took the Fifth Amendment when questioned about his finances.

* * * *

HE SUBSEQUENTLY retired on a $50,000 annual pension from the Teamsters' Union and still lives in the Seattle home he sold to the Teamsters for $163,000 during his years as president.

A grand jury in Tacoma indicted Beck on the income-tax charge. The government contended the $240,000 represented income taxes Beck should have paid for 1950-53.

* * * *

IN DECEMBER, 1957, Beck was convicted in state court at Seattle on charges of embezzling $1,900 in the sale of a union-owned Cadillac, and was sentenced up to 15 years in the state penitentiary. The conviction is being appealed.

Beck's income-tax case first was scheduled for trial last April 14.

Police Nab Suspect on Bad Checks

GARDENA — A New Jersey man sought by several western states as a passer of bad checks was arrested Friday at a local card club.

Police arrested Louis M. Bellows, 38, whom they said is wanted for cashing worthless checks.

Bellows was turned over to Manhattan Beach police, who said they want him for allegedly passing five checks there. He also said he is wanted by authorities in Nevada, Utah and several California cities.

Bellows had 23 check books with him when arrested, detectives declared.

They said the 1958-model car he was driving when captured had been paid for with a worthless check in Reno.

Filibuster Choke-Off Brightens

WASHINGTON (UP) — Advocates of a change in Senate rules to make it easier to choke off filibusters said Saturday their prospects are much brighter as a result of Tuesday's elections.

Southern senators who have bitterly resisted any weakening of the filibuster weapon they have used in the past against civil rights measures are well aware that this is undoubtedly the case.

The battle will be joined almost with the opening bell of the 86th Congress in January. A group of northern Democrats and Republicans will move to adopt new Senate rules.

• • • •

THEIR TARGET is senate rule 22, which requires the affirmative votes of two-thirds of the entire membership to halt a filibuster and force an issue to a vote. In the past, this has meant the votes of 64 senators were needed. In the new Senate, with its membership swelled to 98 by the addition of two senators from Alaska, the requirement would be 66.

The controversy will put a quick strain on the unity of the Democrats' new topheavy majority in the Senate. Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, can be expected to do his utmost to fashion a compromise and avert a damaging intraparty fight.

Leaders of the move to modify rule 22 are Sens. Clifford P. Case (R-NJ), Jacob K. Javitts (R-NY), Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn).

283 Mountain Climbers Killed in Europe in '58

ROME (UP)—Alpine climbing in Europe took 283 lives this year, 100 less than last year's tragic record.

Few Alpine guides saw any decrease in the foolhardiness of amateurs, which had been blamed in part for the previous year's heavy toll, but weather was considered a factor.

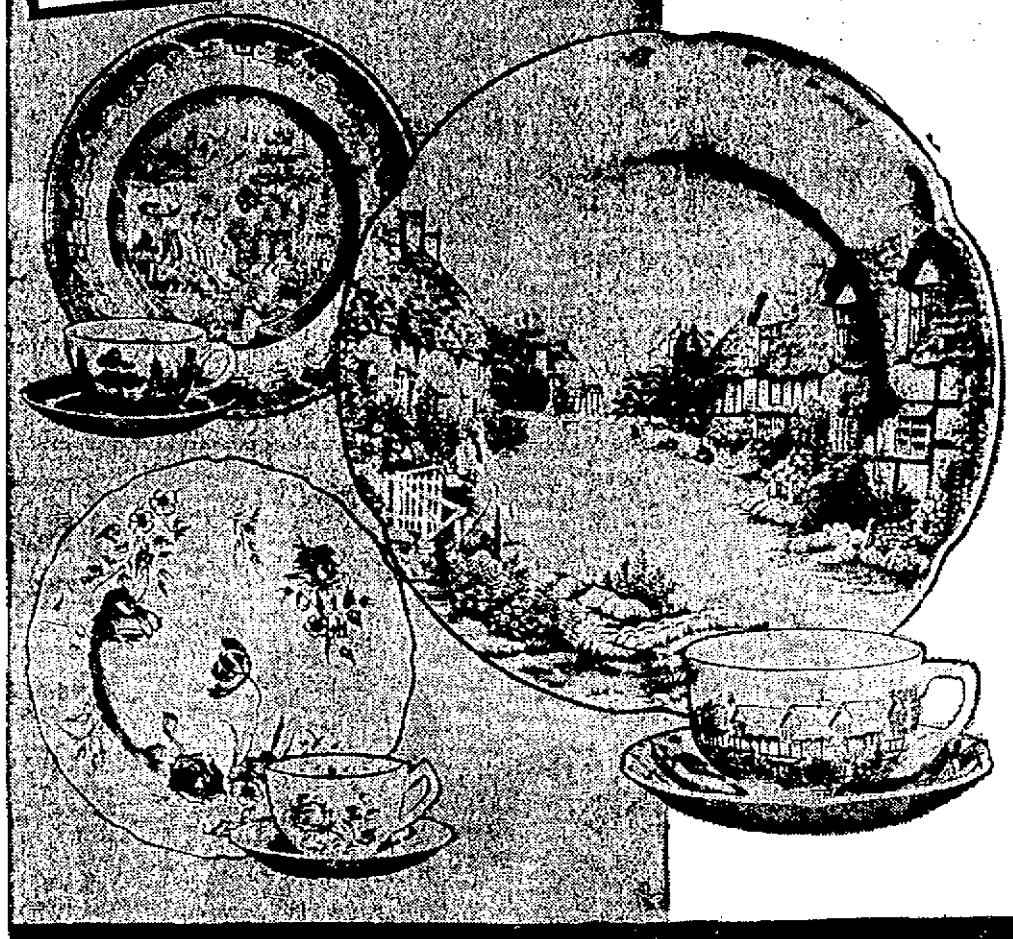

The toll by countries with last year's deaths in brackets: Austria, 104 (114); Italy, 64 (80); Switzerland, 51 (111); Germany, 40 (44); and France, 24 (34).

Is Liz a Home Wrecker?

Beauty Keeps Mum About Rumors of Big Romance

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What kind of woman is Elizabeth Taylor?

Is she the femme fatale, the home wrecker as Debbie Reynolds claims? Or is she a great beauty with the emotions of a child and the body of a woman, a description she gave herself at age 16?

Is she the deeply bereaved widow of Mike Todd, a girl of such natural friendliess that she innocently whirlpooled herself into the biggest Hollywood scandal since L'Affaire Bergman?

"I will love Mike Todd to the day I die. No matter what I may do in the future nothing will ever change that," she says.

About romance with singer Eddie Fisher, Todd's best friend, she has nothing to say at this time.

"Everything I've said so far has been taken out of context and given a meaning that I didn't intend, so now I keep my mouth shut.

"Let them say what they want as long as they don't attack my marriage with Mike—and my love for him."

* * * *

AT THE MOMENT, Liz and Eddie are a romance. Whether they were at the time of that publicized New York night club spree is up for conjecture.

A mutual friend insists the publicity backfire from the New York incident catapulted the two from strong friendship into love.

When Liz and Mike were married, Liz became friendly with Fisher because the two men were old friends.

Liz and Debbie, contrary to many reports, never were close friends.

Most explosive incident of the New York trip—and the one that riled Debbie the most was that when Liz and Eddie went up to Grossingers, the Catskill resort. That was where Eddie and Debbie were married three years ago.

Fisher, who got his show business start there, was invited to dedicate a new swimming pool. Liz went along with a junketload of other celebrities.

"Eddie did not invite me to Grossingers," says Liz. "Jennie Grossinger asked me as she did all the others on the trip. I had a good time. None of the New York columnists who went along reported anything wrong in my being there."

LIZ' PRESENCE in New York was planned to be only temporary. She had rented a villa on the French Riviera.

"I had just started coming out of my shell after Mike's death and I thought the trip to the Riviera would do me good," she says. In New York, I met Eddie and some other friends. I guess I needed to come out of seclusion. It was really the first time I had gone out.

"I guess I laughed more than I had in six months. It did me good because for the first time I was able to force myself to look at pictures of Mike and think of the happiness we shared.

"It helped a little bit to erase the tragedy."

Liz said she returned to Hollywood because the New York visit accomplished all that she had hoped for the planned Riviera trip.

"And I got homesick for the children," she recalls. "Maybe if I had gone on to France, there never would have been any headlines."

Then she adds: "I know that Mike would want me to be happy. Mike, of all people."

Did that Manhattan fling break up the supposedly idyllic marriage of Debbie and Eddie?

"No," says Liz. "No," chooses Eddie. "Yes," says Debbie.

Hollywood evidence supports the former. Insiders knew the marriage had rough periods from the start. Todd once confided that all was not smooth at the Fishers.

"Eddie is a nighttime boy," said Mike. "Debbie is a home girl."

* * * *

TWO BABIES hold the marriage together and then last summer about the time Eddie opened at a night club in Las Vegas things looked shaky. Columnists hinted that all was not well after Debbie left Fisher alone in Las Vegas.

Then came the Fisher-Taylor headlines. Debbie laid the blame squarely on Liz as did Debbie's mother. Fisher gallantly said Liz did not break up the marriage, that he alone was the heavy.

Debbie was the classic suffering wife, home alone with two babies.

Liz was cast as the home wrecker. Only time will tell if she was miscast.

At age 26, Liz Taylor has lived 10 lifetimes.

One of the most beautiful children in movie history, she became one of the screen's most beautiful and talented stars.

But as actresses go, Liz is one of the most un-actressy. Last year when she said she would retire to become Mrs. Mike Todd, Connecticut housewife, her close friends knew she meant it.

* * * *

LIZ IS ONE of those exciting beauties that producers always seek—and seldom find. Even if she couldn't act, she would be a big star.

But Liz comes with a bonus. Pictures like "Giant" proved her talent. "Raintree County" gave her her first Oscar nomination. This year her performance in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" makes her a top contender.

There are some who say the headlines will cost her an Oscar. Even Liz says: "I bet I don't even get nominated now."

But Liz does not want an Oscar on sentiment or ballyhoo. Last year, Todd outlined an Oscar promotion campaign that had MGM publicity men drooling.

He had won an Oscar with "Around the World in 80 Days," his first picture as a producer. One of the greatest promotional experts who ever lived, Todd wanted to make it his and hers.

But Liz nixed the campaign.

"If I win, I'll win on my own," she said. "If not, I'll be at the party with the rest of the losers—crying in my beer."

Some of Liz' critics have laid her penchant for headlines to an immaturity.

"When will she grow up?" asked one woman columnist recently.

But Todd once had an answer for that.

"When was she ever a child?"

"I was rushed into womanhood for the movies," she recalls sadly. "It caused me long moments of unhappiness and doubt."

AT 16 she was cast believably as Robert Taylor's wife in a movie. It was then that she uttered her oft-quotetd appraisal: "I have the emotions of a child in the body of a woman."

What about the future?

Romantically, only she knows the answer.

Career? That was already been answered for her. "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" is MGM's box-office blockbuster. The headlines made no dent in the receipts.

Seven Arts productions just signed her for "Two for the Seesaw," now a broadway hit.

She asked her price—and got it. Some say it is the highest recorded salary ever paid a woman—$500,000 against a 10 per cent cut of the gross.

Says a studio bigwig:

Fumes, Hose Kill Family of 7 in Car

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UP) — Hunters Saturday found a Hampton couple and their five children dead in an automobile filled with exhaust fumes, in Virginia's dismal swamp.

Police said the exhaust pipe of the car was stopped up with a wadded rag. A vacuum cleaner hose had been connected to the muffler and extended into the auto.

The dead were indentified as Mr. and Mrs. Earl H. Lewis of Hampton. Lewis' father listed the children as Allison, 11; Earl Jr., 6; Martin, 4; Douglas, 17 months, and Martha, 6 weeks.

* * * *

THREE CROW hunters discovered the car in woods near Portsmouth at 8 a.m. They did not investigate. But in early afternoon they noticed the car still there and the motor running.

Daniel J. Scheepers of Norfolk, one of the hunters, approached the car and found its occupants dead.

The hunters notified police.

Early Saturday, Lewis' father Bennie Lewis of Hampton, told police the son and his family had been missing since 10 p.m. Friday.

INTO HER OWN

Eileen Farrell Sings 'Medea' Beautifully

By RACHEL MORTON

An American girl came into her own Friday night at the Shrine Auditorium, when the San Francisco Opera Company gave "Medea" by Cherubini.

I left a half hour after the last curtain and they were still screaming and yelling for Eileen Farrell. The other principals of the cast knew that it was a Farrell triumph and after the first few curtain calls, they generously left the stage to her alone.

We have had some magnificent singers this season, but Eileen Farrell topped them all! For her's is a rare blend of lyric soprano and rich mezzo, all in one. The voice pours out in golden lava, spreading tonal beauty all around. It shatters space with opulent sound and it can be floating as thistle down. It caresses, it sobs, it thrills. And always it is exquisitely beautiful. Eileen Farrell is also a great actress; Friday night a tragedienne.

* * * *

HER DENUNCIATION of her faithless husband, Jason, was drama worthy of the traditions of the Old Greek Theatre, while her capitulation from murder-intent, when she drew her two small sons to her breast, was heart-breaking. Why do we Americans fuss and fume for the favors of a Tebaldi and Callas when we have such fabulous singers in our midst as Leontyne Price and Eileen Farrell?

Richard Lewis as "Jason" held his own, vocally and dramatically. Giuseppe Modesti as "Creon, King of Corinth," sang with sonorous tone and looked every inch, a king. Claramae Turner made much of the part of the handmaiden, "Neris," and her singing in the second act was warm in color, quite the best I have heard from her this season. "Glauce," Creon's daughter was sung by Sylvia Stahlman and the difficult aria in the first act was smoothly handled. Her voice, however, is not a great one.

The whole opera was gripping from beginning to end. The graceful patterns of the dance of the Vestal Virgins in the Temple was esthetic perfection. The choral singing was the finest we have yet heard and the frequent changes of position in groups, added to the dramatic intensity of the action. With a chorus all from San Francisco and four of the five principals, American, will someone explain why the opera was not sung in English? Jean Fournet conducted ably the beautiful music that is Cherubini's "Medea."

3-Man Regency Council Will Replace Hussein

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — King Hussein will leave by plane Monday for a three-week vacation in Europe. A threee-man regency council will assume royal functions in his absence, a palace announcement said Saturday.

The young monarch's decision to leave on vacation was taken as evidence he believes the situation calm enough to permit him to be away for a while. All the British troops called in last summer to ward off any pro-Nasser coup now are gone.

Legion Head Sets 7-Point Security Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The national commander of the American Legion said Saturday there is dangerous public apathy to the danger of internal communism.

Preston J. Moore, head of the war veterans organization, also said recent rulings of the Supreme Court in the field of communism have had the effect of nullifying laws and upsetting regulations designed to protect the nation from subversion.

Moore proposed this seven-point program which he said would further the interest of national security:

1. "Governmental control over the issue of passports to known subversives."

2. "Effective anti-subversive legislation which will counteract the nullifying actions of recent court decisions."

3. "Strict governmental control of the influx of communist propaganda from abroad."

4. "Continued exposure of the fraudulent claim of the communist party that it is a legitimate political party independent of the Soviet Union."

5. "The blocking of communist efforts to halt the work of the congressional investigating committees, particularly in the field of subversion."

6. "Defense of American law enforcement from scurrilous, unwarranted attacks designed to render ineffective its counter-subversive work."

7. "Continuous reminders to the American people that communism is dedicated to our destruction and that peaceful coexistence is communist double talk which to them means peaceful submission by a demoralized America."

Cough! Cough!

LONDON (UPI)—A scheduled television performance of the play "Fear in the Fog" was canceled Saturday.

Television officials said technicians couldn't produce a studio fog "without suffocating everyone in the studio."

L.B. Hog Callers Cut Loose

'SOOOEEEYY . . . PIG! PIG! PIG!'
Charles (Chowtime Charlie) Baldwin, 87, calls down the thunder from the skies and the pigs from the upper 40 with his prizewinning hog call at the Good Ol' Days pig-calling contest on Pine Ave. Saturday.—(Staff Photo.)

Iowa-Taught Hollerer, 87, Tops 'Em All

By BOB WELLS

Charles (Chowcall Charlie) Baldwin, 87, stepped to the front of the Good Ol' Days bandstand at Broadway and Pine Ave. Saturday, cupped his hands to his mouth and shook the afternoon with a wild "Soooeeeeyy . . . Pig! Pig! Pig!"

Three blocks away, two sailors crossing the street stopped as if stricken.

"Shall I tie thee to the mast, Ulysses?" the apprentice seaman asked his buddy.

Seven blocks away, at Miller's Cafe, there were a few anxious moments as a shot glass was removed from a patron's throat.

The curious telephoned the newspaper to inquire what building had fallen.

It was the annual Good Ol' Days Holler for the Hawgs, and Charlie Baldwin, who learned his porker piping in Spencer, Iowa, was adjudged the champeen Poland-China banshee of them all.

* * * *

CHARLIE HAD to outshout as distinguished a field of all-American hog-callers as has ever been assembled in front of one trough. There were shoat-shouters from Oklahoma, Berkshire-bellerers from the Dakotas, razorback-roarers from Arkansas and Tennessee, and one shy and pretty Brooklyn miss who admitted her only previous hollering had been at a boy friend in an Iowa Pork Shop.

The judges, however, were all from Iowa, except for Chester Conklin, who, as everyone knows, is from the Keystone Kops. The other judges were Mac Moore and Marshall Craig.

There were no pigs at the pig-calling classic. Downtown Long Beach Associates, sponsors of Good Ol' Days, had carefully made sure beforehand that every porker in the county was safely under lock and key.

* * * *

DOWNTOWN ASSOCIATES shuddered at the mental image of hundreds of innocent onlookers being trampled by maddened hogs answering the siren call to smorgasbord.

Harry Ruffridge, president of the Iowa State Society, introduced each contestant, then carefully ducked out of the way. When the broken-masonry dust lifted, Baldwin, who now resides at 49 S. Magnolia Ave., had been declared winner, followed by Ray Cranston, 446 W. 4th St., also a former Iowan, and Mrs. Dorothy Kredit, 645 E. Ocean Blvd., formerly of Sioux Falls, S. D.

Ruffridge said there are never any pigs at a pig-calling contest. It isn't necessary, he explained. The judges are always chosen from men who have long experience with and wide acquaintance among pigs.

"I haven't called a real pig in 35 years," Chowcall Charlie admitted.

"You haven't lost the touch," Ruffridge said.

"I once butchered a pig," Kredit said.

"You sure knocked 'em dead today, lady," an admiring photographer volunteered.

* * * *

THE THREE WINNERS were awarded cash prizes.

Miss Eileen Greene, recently of Brooklyn, climbed to the stand to try her voice at pig calling. She was hampered, she explained. They don't call hogs in Brooklyn.

Matter of fact, they don't even speak to them socially when they run into them on the street.

Miss Greene stood on the platform with both feet together. She hyperventilated. Then she called.

"Piggie, piggie, piggie," she said.

It wasn't very loud, but it would have moved even an unsympathetic lamb chop.

The pig-calling contest was one of the final events of the Good Ol' Days, the annual three-day fun and shopping fair on downtown streets.

'This year's Good Ol' Days was the most successful ever, Hal Lewis, president of Downtown Long Beach Associates, said.

Lakewood Presses for Flood Work

Lakewood will "immediately press forward with engineering plans for flood control in the city" following passage of the county's $225 million flood control bond issue, Mayor Angelo M. Iacoboni announced Saturday.

The mayor hailed the passage of Proposition N as giving "the green light" for engineering designs of flood control channeling in Lakewood, Paramount, Downey and Bellflower.

* * * *

IT DOES NOT mean, however, that the "flooding which besets Lakewood" will be much alleviated this winter, he warned in an official release.

Lakewood has three major flood control projects which will cost an estimated $1,831,000 in the bond issue program, the release stated. Architectural engineering on the Lakewood projects will be done by Koebig & Koebig, consulting engineers, who will also design the channels for Paramount and Bellflower.

Races, Water-Skiing, Skindiving Feature Boat-Show Finale Today

Fifty-mile trophy races for inboards and outboards this morning and water-skiing, skindiving and boating exhibitions this afternoon will high-light the final day of the Pacific Coast Boat Show at Pierpoint Landing.

For the ladies, there will be a sports fashions show at 4 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Show officials estimate that more than 60,000 persons have viewed the exhibition during its two-week run.

Among visitors Saturday was Bob L. Davis, 35-year-old Lakewood skindiver, who Friday night collapsed from oxygen starvation and was rushed to Seaside Hospital after failing to set a new underwater endurance record in the tank under the boat show's big top.

Davis stayed submerged 18½ hours, breathing by means of an Aqualung.

At 10 a.m. today, inboard boats will compete over a closed course in a 50-mile competition. At 11 a.m., outboards will race the same distance.

At 12:30 p.m. there will be a water-ski show; at 2 p.m., trick boat racing, and at 3:45 p.m., a skindiving exhibition in the ocean. A second water-ski show is slated at 4 p.m. Trophies will be presented at 4:30.

Mother, Girl, 12, Electrocuted by Power Line

SHERWOOD, Ore. (UPI)—A 39-year-old Newberg woman and her daughter were electrocuted Saturday when they stepped out of their pickup truck after the vehicle came in contact with a high-voltage power line blown down by a windstorm about six miles south of here.

The victims were Mrs. Jewell Self and her daughter, Roberta, 12. Police said Mrs. Self apparently failed to notice the downed power line in time to avoid running into it.

As she and the girl stepped out of the truck they grounded the wires and were electrocuted, officers said.

City Council Will Consider Vacancy Item in 7th District

By BOB HOUSER

City Council will consider Wednesday whether to make its formal declaration of vacancy in the 7th Council District.

The district, bounded roughly by the west city limits, Wardlow Rd. on the north, Atlantic and California Aves. on the east and Hill St. on the south, was represented by John F. Baker, who died of a heart attack Oct. 24.

A 3-3 tie vote last week blocked a move for the declaration. It was argumentative because such declaration automatically becomes the starting point for procedural machinery and fixes time limits on candidate filing as well as on the election itself.

• • • •

CANDIDATES must file declarations of intent within four days after the vacancy is declared. There is a possibility the Council may recess Wednesday and set the item over to Monday, Nov. 17, in order to give candidates four consecutive business days in which to file.

The special, sudden-death election must be called within 30 days and must be held within 90 days of the declaration of vacancy.

If the vacancy is declared Nov. 17, Baker's successor would have to be named by mid-February. How much sooner the election could be held would depend in part on procedural obligations.

• • • •

FOR EXAMPLE, candidates have four days to file, four more in which to file their petitions signed by 50 electors. Then the election ordinance must be prepared, undergo two Council readings and polling places must be arranged for.

Baker's successor would fill his unexpired three-year term, running to July, 1960.

One of the most frequently mentioned names for the job, in speculation, is that of Herbert R. Klocksiem, defeated Nov. 4 in his bid for re-election to the State Assembly from the west side 44th Assembly District. However, Klocksiem said Saturday, "I'm not at all interested."

Councilmen D. Patrick Ahern, Charles Dooley and Charles M. Garrison joined last week in urging the immediate declaration of vacancy but were blocked by Councilmen Gerald Desmond, Virgil Spongberg and Lewis Reese.

Nixon Off for Rest in Florida

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon will take on the job of revitalizing the badly shaken Republican campaign organization after a fortnight's rest from his own whirlwind effort to minimize this year's Democratic election sweep, GOP sources said Saturday.

Nixon left Saturday for a quiet Florida vacation which will be a prelude to his late November trip to London—and to more political work.

The vice president was pictured as feeling that his recent nationwide campaign efforts were well worth the effort even though the Democrats scored heavy gains.

• • • •

HE WAS DESCRIBED as determined to take the lead in a soul-searching, reshuffling of Republican Party campaign strategy—and perhaps personnel—in order to put new life into the organization. Nixon already has conferred with President Eisenhower in a post-election review of the political situation and more conferences are planned with many top Republicans.

The vice president's assumption of leadership in this operation was regarded as entirely natural because of his front-running position for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination and Eisenhower's display of only limited interest in such political leadership.

GOP sources said it will be "a month or two" before any very concrete political revitalization steps can be taken. The vice president and others first want to survey what happened in last Tuesday's elections, which saw Democrats taking their widest margin of control in Congress and the nation's governorships since New Deal days.

• • • •

NIXON ALREADY has cut short his November trip abroad. Earlier thoughts of including West Germany and several other countries in his European itinerary were scuttled near the end of the election campaign. As it now stands, he will go only to London to represent President Eisenhower at the Nov. 25 dedication of the new American Chapel in St. Paul's Cathedral.

The vice president wants to be in Washington to prepare for the opening of the 86th Congress in January, as well as to help rebuild the GOP machinery.

NEW DISCOVERY FOR HARD OF HEARING

To all readers of the Ind.-P.T. the Diagnostic Offices will give the first treatment for only $3.00.

According to the Basic Diagnostic office it is now possible for many who are hard of hearing to regain all or part of their hearing loss.

So many have told us we have tried everything and we are so discouraged that we hesitate to try anything else. Once they try this new and proved method they are overjoyed. Just like magic, in many cases they are able to hear without their hearing aid after the first treatment.

The treatment is simple, it consists of three steps, and takes about 45 minutes. If the hearing loss is due to a nerve condition, a special treatment is given, if the loss is due to catarrah, a different treatment is given, if it is a bone condition, the Tympanic Oscillations treatment is given.

According to Basic Diagnostic, 70% of all hard of hearing people will be helped by this method. We believe it is as great a discovery as insulin was for diabetes.

We are so sure that we can help you that we will give you the first treatment for only $3.00 providing you bring in this ad within 10 days from today.

CG Okays Plastic Lifeboat

By LEE CRAIG

A ship's lifeboat made of plastic has been formally approved by the Coast Guard after extensive tests which stopped just short of torpedoing the craft.

The 24-foot boat was dropped 10 feet into the water, loaded with 7,400 pounds, swung through a 20-foot arc into a steel bulkhead and subjected to other indignities.

Even fully loaded and filled with water, the boat was unsinkable. Riddled with holes or cut in two, it still floated, thanks to installation of special foam floatation material.

Of course, it's also impervious to rot, corrosion or exposure.

PASSENGERS ON the Orient & Pacific liner Orcades, which left port here last week, had an added thrill on their way to Honolulu.

The 28,000-ton vessel retraced her steps 150 miles under forced draft to pick up a critically ill crew member from the tanker Caltex Kenya.

By radio, the Orcades' doctors gave instructions on care of the sick man, stricken with acute appendicitis.

Most of the ship's 1,285 passengers were at the rail to watch that night as both vessels' searchlights illuminated the victim's dramatic ride to the Orcades in a small boat tossed by six-foot swells.

A successful operation was performed within 20 minutes in the Orcades' operating room. The seaman was transferred to a Honolulu hospital.

HERE'S A FURTHER NOTE on the smuggling situation in Long Beach and Los Angeles harbors on which a story — pointing out the lack of customs bureau search manpower here—appeared recently in the Independent, Press-Telegram.

During the first six months of the fiscal year, there were six separate seizures of contraband here. In San Francisco, where a strong port patrol has been maintained, there were THIRTY seizures.

CHARLIE CHADWICK is at it again.

The Long Beach Harbor Department's off-beat gardener, who likes to combine cotton, tomato and tobacco plants with lush tropicals, plans to shake up the cats who dunk paws after the goldfish in the administration building's fish pond.

He's going to put a baby ALLIGATOR in a screened-off section of the pond.

SHORT NOTES:

Word is that Matson will cut passenger fares 25 per cent on four of its South Pacific cruises next spring to furnish more competition pricewise with Orient & Pacific . . . The Holland-America Line's new 37,000-ton flagship Rotterdam, now being fitted out, will have no conventional smokestack. Exhausts will be emitted through two tall pipes similar to samson-posts.

Ship arrivals during October at the two local harbors picked up over September, according to the Marine Exchange. Figures are 441 vessels, 2,063,756 net registered tons in October, 423 ships and 1,913,993 tons in September . . . 1958 totals, to Oct. 31: 4,495 ships at 20,275,761 tons. At the same time last year, there were 4,787 ships, 20,983,435 tons.

Rio Pushing Drive to Prevent Polio

RIO DE JANIERO, Braz. (AP)—A campaign to inoculate children in Rio de Janeiro moved into high gear Saturday because of a new outbreak of polio.

More than 50 children, all uninoculated, have been stricken. City health officials said all hospitals in the capital will begin giving vaccinations at once.

TAVERN NAME TOO INVITING?

CHICAGO (AP)—Mrs. Stella Palarkis considered today whether her south side tavern may have too inviting a name. Its sign says: "Walk Straight Inn."

That's just what two robbers did. They took $530 after commanding six of Mrs. Palarkis' customers to lie on the floor.

Then they walked straight out.

Milk Price Increase Forecast

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Some government economists here believe a new upturn in costs of handling and distributing milk will lead before long to another round of retail price increases.

The Agriculture Department, which keeps track of costs and margins in the milk-handling industry, reports that operating costs in the second quarter of 1958 rose to $4.84 per hundred pounds of milk and cream processed

This was 11 cents above the previous quarter and 17 cents above costs for the second three months of 1957.

Department experts said this indicated that after two years of relative stability, operating costs "may be beginning another upward trend."

• • • •

THE DEPARTMENT report made no forecast of trends in retail milk prices. But some economists said unofficially that the rising cost level was certain to be followed by rising retail prices — assuming no significant drop in prices paid to farmers.

Per-quart profit margins in handling fluid milk are relatively small, one economist said, and milk handlers cannot be expected to absorb any sizable cost jumps without pushing up prices.

The official department report estimated milk handlers' net profits before taxes in the second quarter of 1958 at 34 cents per hundred pounds. This was up 10 cents from the first quarter of 1958, but more significantly, was 14 cents below the margin for the second quarter of 1957.

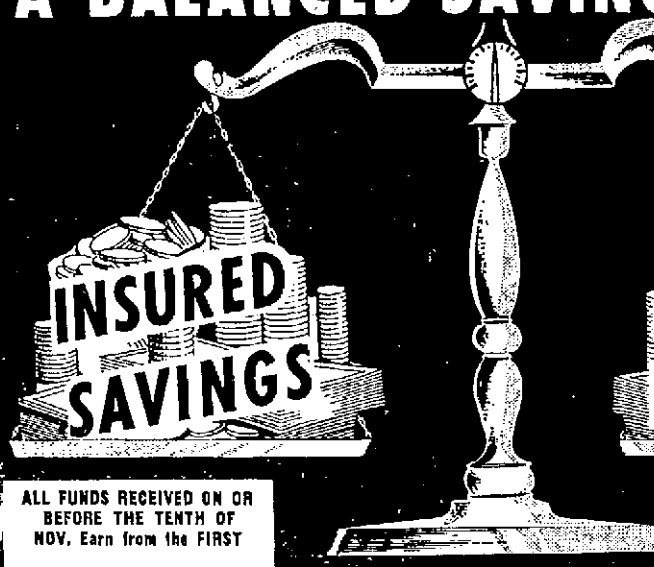

• • • •

FIGURED ON another basis, net profits before taxes in the second quarter of 1958 were about three cents on each dollar of sales. For the first six months of 1958 net profits, as a percentage of the sales dollar, were down more than one-third from the same period in 1957.

Department studies showed the cut in profits was due entirely to rising operating costs.

Gross returns to milk distributors for the products they sold in the second quarter of 1957 were 11 cents per hundredweight above the last year. With prices to farmers for milk down 1 cent and costs of other ingredients up 9 cents, the distributors wound up with a 3 cent increase in gross margins.

Who Will Lead State GOP?

WITH SEN. WILLIAM KNOWLAND, Gov. Goodwin Knight and most other prominent California Republicans suddenly swept into the limbo of defeated politicians, the state GOP faces the task of developing new leadership. Around what figure will the party rally?

Two major California Republicans—Vice President Richard Nixon and Sen. Thomas Kuchel — survive. Perhaps their survival stems from the simple fact that they weren't on the ballot, rather than from any special immunity to Democratic landslides. However, there they are, and at this moment it would seem that one of them must be the core of GOP reconstruction in California.

Both, fortunately, are young men. Rebuilding the party fortunes will be a job for young, vigorous men capable of matching the efforts of the youthful opposition and flexible enough to meet the requirements of the time.

THE MAJOR REQUIREMENT, apparently, is a moderate progressive point of view. Of course, if the Democratic party maintains this point of view and avoids radicalism, the Republicans will be hard put for an arguing point. Nevertheless, in a democracy a vigorous opposition party justifies its existence by keeping the "ins" aware of responsibility. This is why it is so important for the defeated Republican party to emerge as a vital force in this state.

Richard Nixon is capable of the leadership. But his position as a party leader was shaken Tuesday by the Democratic victory in California and the Rockefeller triumph in New York. Whether he has salvaged sufficient prestige to consolidate and lead California's defeated Republican party is a serious question.

Kuchel would seem the more logical choice since he is not laboring under the same disadvantages. However, he has not been a very colorful or articulate Republican. This might cause some Republicans to be reluctant at accepting him as their champion.

On the other hand, he has a reputation as a liberal, and the report from Washington is that liberal Republicans in the U.S. Senate want him as GOP Whip. Kuchel is one of five Republican Senators from the West. It could be that fate, by a process of elimination, has given him a leadership role which he had not anticipated.

THE COMPLETENESS of the Democratic sweep in this state stunned GOP leaders and left the party in a state of confusion. Republicans now admit their first job is to dig themselves out of the rubble, hold meetings, examine their position, and start thinking of how to rebuild the structure that was blown down. Nixon or Kuchel will be the keystone of the project.

DREW PEARSON

Rockefeller Drive Began 44 Years Ago

WASHINGTON — Nelson Rockefeller's triumphant campaign for governor of New York was a long time in the making. It was launched, in fact, 44 years ago by two men who had no idea then that they were shaping the career of a future governor and possibly a future President.

The two men, now dead, were Ivy Lee and Mackenzie King. Lee, the pioneer press agent for big business, was the son of a Georgia clergyman. King was a rising figure in Canada's Liberal Party, later to become prime minister of Canada.

IN 1914 WHEN John D. Jr. first met Lee and King, son Nelson was 6 years old, and a Rockefeller couldn't have been elected dogcatcher. It was perhaps the most hated family in America, the archsymbol of ruthless capitalism. The hatred was fanned to white heat by the Colorado Mine Strike when several miners were killed by state militiamen and the armed guards of Rockefeller's company, Colorado Fuel and Iron.

More than anything, it was the Colorado violence that brought John D. Jr., a deeply religious man, to his senses, awakened him to the realization that, contrary to the advice of his Colorado managers, there was a lot more than "union agitation" behind the strike. He became further convinced of this after his meeting with Ivy Lee and Mackenzie King—a meeting that was to change the course of his life and the popular concept of the Rockefellers.

Ivy Lee, No. 1 public relations man of that day borrowed from the Pennsylvania Railroad, advised that Rockefeller philanthropies to the underprivileged be greatly increased.

John D. Jr. also agreed to Lee's suggestion that he should stop listening to the anti-labor counsel of the mine officials and give the public a "frank and open" report on the dispute in Colorado. Meantime, King urged that the strike be settled "without delay."

John D. Jr. went to Colorado with King for a firsthand observation of the strike scene, personally talked to the miners.

THE VISIT WAS APPLAUDED in the press, and King and Rockefeller were able to work out a settlement whereby the miners went back to work under better wages and working conditions.

Overnight the Rockefeller prestige, which had reached rock-bottom, began to climb. Newspapers that once derided, began to extol John D. Jr. as a public benefactor. Cartoons depicted him walking arm-in-arm with labor, his Wall Street confreres looking on aghast. Writing in the New York Tribune, William Allen White commented: "No other American has the peculiar power for good in his works than John D. Rockefeller Jr."

King had to return to his duties in the Canadian Parliament. He became head of the Liberal Party in 1919 and prime minister in 1921, but kept in close touch with Rockefeller and continued to advise him on labor relations for years.

Lee remained by Rockefeller's side until his own death in 1934; broadening the public-service frontiers of the Rockefeller Foundation and increasing Rockefeller philanthropies to an unparalleled scale.

Boys' clubs, public parks, conservation projects—anything to improve the citizenry and beauty of the nation—have been freely supported by the Rockefeller family, as have Protestant, Catholic and Jewish charities.

Good works, like bread cast upon the water, return manyfold to reward the giver.

Nelson Rockefeller probably would be the first to agree that he would not be governor of New York today were it not for two men—Ivy Lee and Mackenzie King—who, with a wise father, 44 years ago began to build the foundations of his campaign.

BEFORE THERE'S ANY NEW DEAL

DAVID LAWRENCE

GOP Will Lose in 1960 If It Runs 'Modern Republican'

WASHINGTON — The late President Franklin D. Roosevelt used to say that congressional elections — when presidential candidates are not running—are essentially "local." He meant that differing personalities and local issues determine the outcome.

This same theory could to some extent explain why Sen. Barry Goldwater, conservative, won in Arizona, while Gov. Knight—the "liberal"—was defeated, along with the conservative, Bill Knowland. Each of these two Republican candidates in California got approximately the same number of votes. It might explain, also, why Rep. Keating, Republican, of New York, staunch supporter of President Eisenhower's policies, won a seat in the United States Senate on the same day that Nelson Rockefeller won the governorship by what was generally interpreted during the campaign as a deliberate maneuver of disassociation from the national administration in Washington.

But the significant news of the election is what happened as between two factions of the Republican party and what this may mean for 1960.

* * * *

ALREADY the claim is being widely made that "Modern Republicanism" won and conservatism lost. It doesn't explain the defeat this week of ever so many "Modern Republican" nominees for Congress.

President Eisenhower says the "spenders" in the Democratic party won. "Modern Republicanism" may be understood by some observers to mean only a middle-of-the-road philosophy, but to many conservatives it means "New Dealism," excessive spending, and federal control of almost everything that has been local before, and a surrender to the labor union bosses on the "right to work" issue as voiced during the last campaign by Secretary of Labor Mitchell of the Eisenhower cabinet.

This is too early to make a prediction for 1960, but, as sure as day follows night, if the Republican party advertises its nominee as a "Modern Republican" next time, it will increase the stay-at-home Republican vote, and surely elect the Democratic presidential nominee.

The idea that the Republican party can win an election by alienating the biggest single bloc of votes within its ranks is fallacious. On the editorial page of the "Wall Street Journal" appeared the two following comments on this week's election.

"If the Democrats have a mandate it is indeed an elusive one. Instead, the inescapable conclusion is that the Democrats didn't win the election. The Republicans committed suicide . . .

"We don't know whether the Republican party can recapture its sense of purpose. But we are pretty sure that if it doesn't, then the Republican nomination in 1960 will be completely worthless for Mr. Nixon, Mr. Rockefeller, or anyone else."

THIS IS BUT another way of saying that harmony and teamwork are essential to the success of a major party which has been defeated at the polls, and that there must be an agreement to support the fundamental principles that have built up the Republican party as a defender of the workingman's dollar and his freedoms. "Me-tooism"—that is, attempting to imitate the other party—doesn't win enough independent or "switch" votes to offset the losses within one's own ranks.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

State Needs Ballot Machines

By H. C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—The case for mechanized voting machines is even more apparent today than it ever was. With millions of California residents going to the polls, and more every general election than the last one, the people are more anxious to know the result before too many hours pass.

MacARTHUR

Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan for several years has carried the banner for mechanization of voting operations in California. So far, only one community, San Francisco, has mechanical machines, and these are somewhat on the archaic side.

The argument against the machines are that the added expense of installing them would be too large a price to pay for letting the people know a few hours earlier which candidates were elected.

While it may cost a goodly sum to install modern voting equipment, nevertheless, the money saved over a period of years in the salaries of a group of useless election officials undoubtedly would overcome the initial cost.

With modern electronics, there is virtually no reason why one, instead of five, people could not handle each precinct. Nor would there be as much waiting in line to vote if push-button machines were installed to permit the elector to cast his ballot.

Electronics have done everything now, up to working out the most intricate mathematical problems. There is no reason why a modern, electrical machine, could not be devised which would speed up the casting and counting of the ballots.

Such a machine would not have to be complicated. It could, in fact, be wired up to a central counting agency, so that the minute a ballot was cast, it could be totaled. And at the close of the polls, all that would have to be done would be to unlock the tabulator, and write off the totals for every candidate and every proposition.

This sounds somewhat fantastic, but officials of the telephone company say such a hook-up could be actuated. And producers of business machines would have but little trouble devising a tabulator to register the votes.

Mechanized voting is something the state legislature should investigate, and make fore another general election comes along.

BOB HOUSER

L. B. and Lakewood Differ in Their Choices at the Polls

LONG BEACH and Lakewood voters found little they could agree upon in Tuesday's election and thereby set their political identities in sharper focus while sharing residence in the 18th Congressional District.

It was "Vive la difference" for the Lakewood electorate whose Democratic makeup left them with more winners on the ballot. Long Beach's more conservative citizenry could claim two statewide Democratic winners in backing Pat Brown and Judge Stanley Mosk and a "discreet independence" which resisted the state tide. They also stuck with front-running Frank Jordan for secretary of state.

HOUSER

Trend bucking, Long Beach gave margins to statewide losers Powers, Kirkwood, Button and Knight.

At the same time, Lakewood backed all state winners except Republican Jordan. Its strong Democratic vote also gave an almost 3 to 2 margin to Atty. Tom Griffin in the 70th District Assembly race. But Bill Grant's strength elsewhere in the district pushed him to victory by 4,600 votes.

Craig Hosmer's impressive re-election victory even got a small boost from Lakewood —a margin of some 500 votes. Hosmer's support through the rest of the 18th gave him a 60 per cent majority and was within two percentage points of the victory margin forecast by his re-election director, Dave Crowther, on the basis of a pre-election poll.

Despite differences in complexion of the support by Lakewood and Long Beach voters, there were similarities. For example, in each case, the voters expressed their sharpest opinion in the Mosk-Hillings attorney general contest. That race was No. 1 in both communities with respect to preferential margins. Lakewood gave Mosk a 69.6 per cent margin over the Arcadia congressman; Long Beach favored Mosk by 58.4 per cent.

Lakewood's second most popular support went to Pat Brown with a 69 per cent vote in his favor. Jordan was the object of Long Beach conviction, second place, when voters gave him 55.6 per cent of their votes. Brown hit third place with 54.9 per cent.

While Long Beach voters were giving the nod to Gov. Knight by 1,400 votes in the U. S. Senate race, Lakewood swung the tide in favor of Engle by 2,400 in the 18th District totals.

Joe Kennick, outside the Democratic beneficence of Lakewood, nonetheless scored a victory over incumbent 44th District Assemblyman Herbert R. Klocksiem by about 4,400 votes.

In summary, Long Beach proved to be a staunch island of Republicanism, but departed from pattern in favor of Democrats Brown, Mosk and Kennick.

Performance on the "Jobs for Long Beach" propositions S and T was less easy to plot. In fact there seemed no pattern of consistency except that provided in a pinpointing of precincts which gave the measures the necessary two-thirds support.

Of the dozen or so polling places which counted two-thirds margins in favor of the measures, all but one was located downtown or along the shore. Favorable votes seemed to drop in direct proportion to distance from the downtown area. The exception was North Long Beach precinct No. 253 which approved Prop. S 119 to 39.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH the Mosk-Hillings contest drew the most clear cut expressions of preference in both Long Beach and Lakewood balloting, that contest did not draw the greatest number of votes in either case. It was the Brown-Knowland contest which attracted the biggest vote total in both communities.

It is interesting to note that more people marked ballots—after the governorship race—for the Powers-Anderson lieutenant governor contest in Long Beach, while second place attention in Lakewood went to the Knight-Engle Senate contest.

Now Band Needs Place to Play

TO THE EDITOR:

Long Beach Municipal Band has been granted a new lease on life by a verdict of 78,256 to 34,997.

Now is the time to close ranks and organize a committee of 113,253 to promote the construction of a band shell and pavilion.

The band has been operating under adverse conditions since the demolition of the old shell.

Let us hope the resounding vote of the people will prompt our city officials to act to provide adequate facilities.

I wish to express the congratulations of the entire executive board of the Compton branch, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, for the fine article written by Ed Kenyon on the election of Miss Naddie Smith as homecoming queen of Compton High School which appeared in your Oct. 28 issue.

Mr. Kenyon's article is by far the best report given by any of the community papers and reflects a high sensitivity to basic issues. This was a significant victory by the young people of Compton High School and we are gratified that Mr. Kenyon and your paper had the courage to call attention to it.

Mudslinger Reveals Own Motives

TO THE EDITOR:

Rather than state his own ambitions, the "clever" politician attempts to expose the corrupt desire of his opponent. In doing so, he is revealing himself. Quite often, the episode is a meaningless sideshow to the main event which only detracts from the real issues.

I think a political debate is an excellant method of acquainting the public with the different views on political issues, but I feel that a candidate who spends his time attempting to reveal his opponents motives is actually trying to obscure his own.

The man who must proceed with such a campaign is not of desirable character and is not worthy of serving the public. There are many other political tricks but this is one of the most vicious.

Worthwhile Project

TO THE EDITOR:

May I suggest that the winning candidates in the Nov. 4, 1958, election show their appreciation by making plans and carrying through on the removal from public property and view all 1958 campaign stickers, posters, placards, banners, etc. This would certainly be a worthwhile project for the various campaign committees. If properly publicized such a program would bring much credit to the newly elected officials and their hard working campaign committees.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Lodge's Son Gets Cabinet Aide Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower Saturday appointed George C. Lodge, son of U. N. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, to the $20,000-a-year post as assistant secretary of labor for international affairs.

GEORGE C. LODGE
Youthful Assistant

Lodge, who at 31 will be one of the youngest subcabinet officials in many years, will succeed J. Ernest Wilkins, 62, a Chicago Negro attorney who resigned effective Saturday citing personal reasons.

The White House made public the resignation and appointment as the President was en route to a Seattle speaking engagement. The change in the Labor Department post had been rumored for many weeks prior to the recent elections. Wilkins has been reported in line for another federal appointment, possibly a judgeship.

Lodge's new assignment will require Senate confirmation later. It involves representing the United States at the annual Geneva meetings of the International Labor Organization.

596 Reds, Pinks Seek Passports

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A high State Department official said Saturday that 596 known Communists or fellow travelers have taken advantage of a Supreme Court ruling to apply for passports to travel abroad.

Roderic L. O'Connor, administrator of the Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs, said the applicants are "soldiers of the enemy" who "are getting their passports while the getting is good."

In a speech to the National Security and Legislative Committees of Veterans of Foreign Wars, O'Connor urged that Congress restore the secretary of state's power to deny passports to Communists and Communist sympathizers. The court ruled five months ago that the secretary could not deny passports on grounds of Communist party membership or sympathy.

Boy Held in Slaying of 2 Tots

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A murder charge was filed Saturday against a 16-year-old boy, accused of drowning a young brother and his sister in a bath tub.

Police said James A. Johnson admitted drowning the children, hiding the bodies and then going off to a movie Friday. Lt. Russell Baughan, head of the police juvenile division, said Johnson showed "absolutely no remorse."

The body of Beverly Conway, 4, whose clothing was removed, was found in the attic of Johnson's home early Saturday. Minutes later, searchers ended a 15-hour hunt when the body of Wayne Timothy Conway, 5, was found half buried in a shallow ditch beside Johnson's house.

Cease-Fire Ordered for Formosa Planes

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—Informed sources said Saturday the United States and Nationalist China have quietly put into effect a ceasefire in the skies over the Formosa Strait.

The sources said Nationalist pilots have been ordered to employ all possible evasive tactics to avoid combat with Communist planes within 30 miles of the Red-held mainland.

According to the informants, the United States does not want Nationalist Sabrejets and the Red Soviet-built MIGs to revive the flaming air war that raged over the strait from mid-August to mid-October.

Hunt Ex-Boxer in Gem Theft

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (UPI)—An international manhunt was pushed Saturday for an ex-boxer from El Paso accused of stealing $30,000 in jewels from a vacationing St. Louis, Mo., couple.

The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Elliott, who were vacationing in Ciudad Juarez, across the border from El Paso, Tex. They told Juarez police the missing jewelry included three diamond-laden rings, three watches, and a necklace and pendant set.

Police Capt. Juan Gomez said it was believed the 40-year-old ex-athlete gave Elliott knockout pills sometime at night. The suspect's name was not revealed.

When Yard's Not a Yard How Can We Measure Up?

LONDON (AP) — Are Britain and America struggling into the future with a system of measurements rooted in the past?

Dr. A. H. Hughes and the British Assn. for the Advancement of Science say so. And they call it madness.

Down with gills, inches, pints, feet, gallons, yards, bushels, miles and degrees Fahrenheit, is their motto, and into general use with the metric system used by scientists the world over.

So the British association has launched an inquiry to find out how much it would cost Britain to make the change and what the long-term benefits would be.

"We want to find out whether we cannot afford to make the change," says Dr. Hughes, deputy chairman of the investigating committee, "or whether we cannot afford NOT to make the change.

"I personally have no doubt that sane opinion will be brought around to the side of the metric system."

* * * *

DR. HUGHES SAYS that "as matters stand we have scientists designing apparatus in centimeters and millimeters and turning the specifications over to engineers who have been brought up on fractions of an inch. The result is likely to be apoplexy on both sides.

"The scientists and engineers of the English-speaking nations are not, when it comes to measurements, speaking the same language.

"It is probably no accident that the first earth satellite was sent aloft by the Soviet Union, a metric nation."

To make matters worse, the archaic measurement systems of the United States and Britain are only approximately similar.

The British yard, for instance, is only .999997 as long as a U. S. yard. The British bushel equals 38.37 metric liters, the U. S. bushel only 35.2383. The British gallon equals 4.5459631 liters, the U. S. gallon 3.785332 liters.

Then there are such odd bits as the fact that the British hundredweight is not 100 pounds, but 112.

* * * *

TO SCIENTIFIC MINDS, such variations represent wild disorder.

The trouble with the measuring system generally used in English-speaking parts of the world, Dr. Hughes says, is that it just grew.

The original inch was the distance from the tip of a man's thumb to the digit's first joint. A yard was the distance from his nose to the fingertips of a hand held at arm's length at right angles to his face. An acre was the amount of land an average man behind an average horse could plow in an average day.

"These measurements served their purpose in their time," says Dr. Hughes, "but it must be obvious that their time is not the 20th Century."

When the French invented the metric system they started out with a definition of the basic meter which appealed to all right-thinking scientists.

* * * *

A METER, it was decreed in 1791, would be one ten-millionth of the distance from the true North Pole to the equator.

This was worked out to be a distance equivalent to 1.093611 present U. S. yards, or about 39.37 inches.

Two lines were marked on a platinum-iridium bar kept at the International Bureau of Weights and Measures in Paris. The distance between these lines is considered to be precisely one official meter when the bar is at the freezing point of water, which is of course 32 degrees Fahrenheit. (But not if you're metric—in that case it's zero degrees Centigrade).

This, to a scientist, represents at least some measure of order in an unruly world.

$400 REQUIRED

Want local family man now employed who wants to change his occupation to one that will pay him up to $1,500 per month? He has the drive to follow campaigns that call for the full use of at least 8 hours a day Monday thru Friday and 4 hours Saturday along proven methods. The one selected could now be a service station attendant, a milk route salesman or in almost any other job where he has been active and not just waiting for something to turn up.

A thorough training is part of this offer and the $400 is to pay for our cost price of a 1959 Dodge or Plymouth car when, and if, the man passes the test that is part of the thorough training. No investment is required up to that point. Our salesmen, for years, have been aides to sell their demonstrators and get all of their money back so your car would cost you nothing to own and operate as we furnish the gasoline and the upkeep.

If you are not real serious about upgrading your standard of living and your wife is not in accord with this opportunity don't bother to answer this ad because there are plenty of men around who are just waiting for a position with the promise this one has.

No Sunday work. Salary guarantee, paid holidays and vacations. Liberal insurance protection. Plenty of help to get started and the following promise—If we hire you on trial we suggest you will make no less than $10,000 in the next 12 months.

See Mr. Davis 9 to 11:30 a.m. or 2 to 4 p.m. Monday through Wednesday at 310 E. Anaheim St., Long Beach. This is not just another sales job but a hard-hitting full time opportunity for a man with his eye on the long pull future. You will not be required to use gimmicks or do anything that your church would not approve.

Tele-Vues by TERRY VERNON

Once in a while the Friars Club puts on a testimonial dinner during which some big-name personality of show business is honored by being verbally "roasted" by some of the top comedians of the day.

Tonight the first in a series of seven telecasts of these dinners will be seen on TV for the first time. Others in the series will be spotted at other times and rather spasmodically.

Reason for the airing tonight at 8 p.m. on (2) is that Ed Sullivan is the man being honored. Joe E. Lewis, abbot of the Friars, wrote us saying, "Before you see the show on Sunday, I want to say that it is not possible to rib someone unless you really like that person, and the host of the 'really big shews' is loved by us all.

Doing the roasting will be Lewis, Jack Carter, Jack E. Leonard, Joey Bishop, Morey Amsterdam, Phil Silvers, Wayne and Shuster, Rocky Graziano, Walter Cronkite, Abbe Lane, Sen. Jacob Javits and F. M. Flynn, the latter publisher of the New York Daily News.

DAYTIME DATA

Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill) discusses "Religion and Politics" on "Lamp Unto My Feet" (2) at 9 a.m. . . . Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, governor - elect, will "Face the Nation" (2) at 10:30 a.m. . . . Merrell Gage, winner of an Oscar for his 1955 "The Face of Lincoln," starts a new show called "Visits With a Sculptor" (2) at 11:30 a.m. . . . UCLA-California game high lights on (11) at 1 p.m. followed by complete USC-Washington fracas . . . Camp Pendleton Marines play the Rhinos on (5) at 2 p.m. . . . "Ten for Survival" (4) at 3:30 p.m. presents John Hersey's "Hiroshima" . . . Dr. Charles Malik on "College News Conference" (7) at 3:30 p.m. He's president of the U.N. General Assembly . . . "Captain January" with Shirley Temple and Guy Kibbee is seen on (11) at 4 p.m. . . . Dr. Paul Saltzman of USC will discuss nuclear energy and our life with it on "California Report" (4) at 4 p.m. . . . Lou Derman, chief writer of "December Bride," on "Cavalcade of Books" (2) at 4:30 p.m.

5 p.m.

Esther Williams, the skippers of the three U. S. atomic submarines, and men in training to be submariners all have a part in "Omnibus" (4).

Guest of "Sports Club" (2) is Les Richter, star of the Rams.

6 p.m.

"Small World" (2) has actor Peter Ustinov, Gov. Theodore McKeldin of Maryland and impresario Sol Hurok as the guests.

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass), highly regarded as a presidential hopeful for the Democrats in 1960, will "Meet the Press" (2).

6:30 p.m.

"Rockne of Notre Dame," a unique profile of the late, great coach, is seen on "Twentieth Century" (2) with lots of actual film footage.

Chet Huntley takes a look at Iraq today (4).

7 p.m.

The Martins acquire new neighbors who, they learn, are afraid of dogs and it remains for "Lassie" (2) and Timmy to dispel their fears.

7:30 p.m.

Uncle Bentley of "Bachelor Father" (2) is perturbed because he can't translate messages left by his houseboy so he orders the Chinese to go to night school. This turns out to be somewhat of an error.

Bret "Maverick" (7) runs into a mess of trouble when he lends his larcenous friend $2,000 for a horse-trading enterprise which turns out to be a scheme to swindle the townspeople.

8 p.m.

COLOR—"The Steve Allen Show" (4) with Harry Belafonte making one of his very rare TV appearances. Others who'll participate in the fun are Martha Raye, Johnny Carson, Louis Nye, Tom Poston and Don Knotts.

9 p.m.

Roy Rogers, Dale Evans, Sons of the Pioneers, Trigger, Royal Canadian Mounted Police and world champion cowboys take part in "The Chevy Show" (4) from San Francisco's Cow Palace. Black and white today.

"G.E. Theater (2) stars John Kerr and Betsy Drake with George Fenneman and Pee Wee Reese in a tale of a girl who gets on a big TV quiz show because she knows baseball so well. This turn of events ruins a romance but the girl has the right answer to the big jackpot question.

9:30 p.m.

A harassed huband whose wife refuses to let him out of her sight unleashes a weird chain of events when, in a bid for freedom, he employs an electronic marionette to impersonate him on "Alfred Hitchcock Presents," (2) starring Normal Lloyd, Marian Seldes and Elliott Reid.

10 p.m.

Off the air is "64,000 Question" (2) and in its place is the clever "Keep Talking" with Audrey Meadows, Joey Bishop, Danny Dayton, Paul Winchell and Carl Reiner starred.

"Loretta Young" (4) dramatizes the plight of the underpaid teacher who takes an additional job in order to make ends meet. When trouble comes, however, the students take matters into their own hands.

TAKE A CLOSE LOOK. See the dozing lady tramps, conked out in mid-picture? One with long johns showing beneath her sleeves is Mrs. C. G. Christensen, dreaming of the day she will resemble Mrs. Hal E. Moore, in white ball gown; Mrs. John R. Coleman, in fur coat that has seen better days, dreams of elegance exemplified by Mrs. Fred Blumberg, in fur and ostrich tip chapeau. It's part of preparation for "Jungle Rendezvous" brunch scheduled for Sunday in Lafayette Hotel ballroom by Southern California Council of Beta Sigma Phi. Mrs. A. W. Anderson, seated left, and Miss Roberta Collar oversee this tableau; Miss Lucille Kennedy pours java to awaken the lady bums while hobo jungle equipment is displayed by Mrs. James Fawcett, seated right, and Miss Wilma Wright. More than 900 "bums" are expected.—(Staff photo by Joe Risinger.)

Sorority in Hobo Revelry

"Dreaming Ladies of the Road"—better known as Xi Alpha Kappa Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi—will be hostess to the Southern California Council of Beta Sigma Phi at brunch Nov. 16 under the general chairmanship of Mrs. Hal Moore.

The affair will take place in the "Jungle Rendezvous" of "Vagrants Valley Alley"—sometimes known as the Grand Ballroom of Lafayette Hotel—at 10 a.m. Mrs. L. J. Gillespie, honorary member of the host chapter, and past presidents of the council will be honored guests.

MMES. FRED Blumberg and Pete Jurich, co-chairmen of reservations, announce that 900 guests from the Southern California area including Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Diego and San Bernardino Counties are expected.

The theme was carried out in invitations and will be continued in table decor with the use of a typical hobo jungle scene at the head table, Mrs. C. J. Christensen, chairman for the committee on invitations, favors and decorations, has been assisted by Mmes. William Bricks, Richard Matson, John Coleman, Misses Lucylle Kuecks and Wilma Wright. Tale of the Sniffles

By ILKA CHASE

Toss me a racing form, Mac, and call me Toutsie. I follow the ponies!

Such was the spirited lead I had been planning for this dispatch. Since being in the newspaper business I say lead. In the old days I would have said beginning. Time was, too, when I said things like, 'He had his appendix out,' but I am married to a doctor. Now I say, 'He had an appendectomy, Tonsillectomy. Hysterectomy." Oops, sorry. It was she who had that.

Well, anyway I was all set to tell you about a gay evening at the Yonkers Raceway where the sulkies roll and the horses trot at incredible speed.

A group of us had chartered a bus and the idea was to gather in front of a friend's apartment, swing aboard and take off for Yonkers. Cocktails served en route, dinner on arrival, followed by a couple of discreet bets on the pounding hooves. In anticipation, it sounded fun and I understand it was in actuality, too, but that's heresay. I didn't get to participate.

• • • •

WHAT I GOT to do was to be asphyxiated by a large economy-sized cold. That sociable little bug who's doing the rounds parked in my throat and something fairly sensational in the way of laryngitis ensued. I was game though, all ready to join the merrymakers in my fire-engine-red dress when the Doctor came home. The Doctor had a medical dinner scheduled so he wasn't banking on Yonkers in any case. Also, he, too, was victim of a frightful cold and is pretty sick of people saying to him things like "Physician, heal thyself."

I have suggested treatment, that he take a little medicine or something but he looks like a startled fawn. "What! Me take those drugs?" . . . "But you prescribe them for others, why not for yourself?" A look of Machievellian cunning spreads over his face, "Ah ha! I know what's in them."

Seeing me dressed for the Spring Fashions Around the Corner

By MARY LOU ZEHMS

Independent, Press-Telegram Women's Editor

What are the fashion trends for spring? According to California Fashion Creators, who represent our topflight designers on the coast, we may look for three Bs . . . Bows . . . Belts . . . Bosom. Marjorie Carne, fashion director for CFC, is keeping all the fashion and women's editors of the daily newspapers across the country in the dark until Monday when Press Week opens at the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles.

Then they will view the resort and spring lines during the week and report each day to their readers what the West Coast fashion picture will be in the next few months. This much we've been told.

• • • •

SWIMWEAR WILL RETURN to the Bikini-type, two-piece suit with open-air midriff; swimsuits will be more feminine; knit suits will be patterned and posied; beach ensembles will come with matching jackets, dresses and skirts; swimsuits will feature the longer legs, higher tops, some bloused; there will be high bosom control.

The sportswear picture is even more intriguing with the use of synthetic, little-care fabrics and stay-in pleats; jackets are higher and shorter; pants will be ankle length and there will be a return to the slack suit. Predictions are that the all-in-one coverall will come to the front as a big, big item for spring.

Here's good news for those of you who are glad for the demise of the chemise . . . the natural waistline is back in evidence. It may be hidden with a wide belt or brief jacket, but it's where nature intended it! Other trends in dresses show the shaped and harem skirt with the short skirt continued for day and evening wear. Sleeves will be large, billowing and sheer and there will be great emphasis on collars . . . everything from tiny to almost waist length.

• • • •

COSTUMES AND SUITS will show shorter jackets, ranging from bolero to hipbone; coats will be shorter. There will continue to be a great deal of back interest on jackets.

That's the way it looks from here . . . we'll be bringing you the intimate details beginning Tuesday on our women's pages.

TREND SETTING STYLES is predicted by California designers for spring and resort wear include the sleeveless over-dress by Travella, left, of nubby sheer wool. It is worn over a blouse of Swiss white organdy with great sleeves. Two instances of young flattery from Alex Colman's collection include a silk Tussah dress with empire tie, eased waist and fitted skirtline. Its counterpart is seen in a pure silk print of buttercups coordinated with a ¾ sleeve cardigan. The empire sheath, right, by designer William Pearson for the spring collection of Harou, is of navy crepe sashed high on the waistline by olive green velvet and topped with a white shirred chiffon bodice. These, and hundreds of more new designs, will be previewed by the fashion and women's editors on Monday.

The Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

WE SYMPATHIZE with those guests of Frances and Henry Clock's who are among the scale watchers and weight fighters of this world. For those whose problems have nothing to do with avoirdupois we feel only envy. You see Frances and Henry are halfway between two delightful cocktail buffet parties—one took place last Wednesday and the other will tempt even the most spartan dieters this coming Wednesday evening.

"Big Night"

Assisting at the first party were "Freddie" and Bob Whyte, Mildred and Carl Shank, Julia and Robert Helms and Mattie and Earl Sullivan. Clock watchers (we mean those guests who will be keeping an eye on the time so they won't be late to watch the Clocks be host and hostess) next Wednesday will find party aid being rendered by Dorothy and Eldredge Combs, Marge and Loren Conley, Ruth and Maury Hubbell, Doris Richards and Elizabeth and Emmett Sullivan.

The Clocks' party timing is perfect—a buoyant bit of gaiety after the letdown of election and before the rush of the holidays begins!

FROM THE WEST INDIES to New England nature put on her gaudiest colors in an obvious attempt to prove to Lillian and Leland Irish that her beauty isn't just California deep, but shines throughout her being anywhere on earth. The Irishes left Long Beach late in September for New York where they boarded the Caronia for a cruise of the Caribbean, to explore all the glamorous, sultry and mysterious ports where the luxury liner stops. Then back to New York and on up to Cape Cod where New England's hillsides blazed with autumnal fury, consuming their glances in an inferno of leaping color. (Sorry, folks. You know how it is. Sometimes the desire for a Nobel prize. It won't happen again. Honest.)

Back to facts. Lillian and Leland paused in Chicago en route home by train to visit with Hattie and Chris Christiansen (they moved back there about a year ago, remember?) and then disembarked again at Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Why? That's a good question, as any ex-Iowan will readily agree. However, not only is C. R. Lillian's old hometown but homecoming was about to take place at Iowa U., her alma mater, so naturally they wanted to be present. That accomplished, the travelers mushed on, getting as far west as Las Vegas this time before leaving the wagon train again for a three-day rest before the final trek into the land of milk and honey.

THE WAY localites are pouring back into town we should have our travel-riddled citizenry back up to full strength by Thanksgiving. Add to returnees Wayve and Dr. Al Osborne who took to walking on Long Beach soil last weekend again after flying all over Europe the preceding two months. Name a country—they were there most likely. England, France, Switzerland, Italy, Spain, Portugal. . . . And how did they find things? Ah! Bien! Vunderbar! Bueno! You know, terrific!

"DIDN'T EVEN crack the foundation," observed Kenny Walker to Nancy. Said Nancy to Kenny, "Didn't even crack the plaster." And so their brand new house, overlooking the 15th hole at Los Coyotes Country Club, came through its first real test of durability with flying colors. It withstood the jolly earthquake of a rattling good surprise housewarming last Saturday. Shakedown planners were Bev and Joe McLaughlin and Wilma and John Arnold. They brought enough supplies to set up a wonderful "soup line" for 44 friends who failed to create a disaster area.

COVERING HER section of the water front with nothing but pleasure next Saturday night will be Fran Soldini as she entertains at an open house boat party. She's relaunching the old family barge, S'fact. It was towed into place on Alamitos Bay at 56th Pl. 'way back in the '20s as a fun spot. Built right out over the water then. Now firmly ashore, Fran is making it her permanent home once again.

Cruising through the party night with the houseboat's master will be a crew of 60. Theme-wise, Fran is charting an artistic continental course and this will be a suave affair. Signing on as first mates in charge of decanter and coffee urn will be the hostess' galley assistants Elizabeth and Emmett Sullivan, Alma and Doug McFarland, Curlyne and Eugene Driscoll, Betty and Palmer Wentworth, Leonie and Russell Fray, Ruth and Bill McConnell, Fran and Mark Alexander Jr., Margaret and David Bradbury and "Freddie" and Bob Whyte. All first class passage, of course. Everyone will be welcome to barge into any room on the barge during this happy voyage.

SCREAMING OR groaning in Palo Alto last Saturday afternoon, depending on which team had just fumbled, were Gloria and Earl Wallace among localites who watched USC take the gridiron measure of Stanford.

AFTER REMODELING their house, Joan and Dr. Greg Hoskins went to Palm Springs for a week to refurbish their spirits while the paint dried. It worked. The residents are as fresh as the surroundings now.

SUITCASES ON the shelves at 5468 Oleta are taking a well-earned rest after touring with Divcda and Blaine Davidson for six weeks on a business and pleasure motoring trip hither and thither but mostly South and mainly Louisiana. Blaine owns property in that section of the country where nobody but a fool even whispers the word potato. They grow rice. Anyone for chop suey?

THEY HAD TO put anti-freeze in their car but their hearts stayed summer-warm on a nostalgic trip just completed. Barbara (Mrs. Chet) Moore and her mother Lucille (Mrs. Freeland) Putnam are the travelers in question. They went to Wisconsin where Lucille re-visited the haunts of her childhood. Actually, they had fine weather. Midwest nippy but wonderful.

IF YOU GAVE Shirley Harris one of those word association tests her answer to "shower," even if it was pouring, would be "baby." You guessed it. She was honoree at a baby shower given by good friend Susie Lewis the other evening which left nothing to be desired. Except putting the gifts to use, of course. Among guests were her mother, Irma Sargent, as well as Ethel Boland, Nina Hilling, Clair-belle Keller, Charlene Frutchey, Dorothy Morgan, Marilyn Brain, Emma Brain, Beverly Henderson, Peggy Bristol, Bonnie Cunningham, Marynell Reed, Carol Ross, Nancy Huston, Connie Stephens and Mable Flores.

SANDLARKS lolled around the pool at Ruby Deal's house Wednesday in the warm sun trying to keep their mind on cool Christmas ideas as they planned their annual, always terrific Christmas Fantasy. They did manage to think long enough about tinsel and baubles to pay attention to Howard Jones, who gave them a few ideas about presentation of the Yule decorations sale. It's to take place Dec. 1-4 at the Lafayette. Co-chairman Dorothy Marsh and Ruby had a few ideas, too. In particular, how to re-fill the group's charitable piggy bank with sale proceeds to continue the Sandlark's financial aid to the Children's Home Society. Among those present were Jimmie Nutter, President Beth Hannaman, Ruth Kinkade (of the society's Lakewood guild, the Lamplighters), Gertrude Crilly, Dee O'Neill, Eleanor Marshall, Constance Looney and Thelma Robbins. We have an idea about it, too. An idea that we, like half of Long Beach, wouldn't miss shopping for our own Christmas decorations at this event for anything.

"I'm Hungry!"

LIFE IS A SERIES of trips these days for Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Sweningsen. Little ones, it's true, but just as much fun as if they were going to Bangkok and back every other day. Called to find out how they had enjoyed the summer at their vacation home near Idyllwild and learned from Mrs. Sweningsen they were going to be home just long enough to refresh memories on how the furniture was arranged in their Long Beach manse before taking off again for Palo Alto to see the Stanford-SC game and certain fans in the stands by the name of Oliver Sweningsen Jr. of Atherton and daughter, and son-in-law, Mary and Harrison Sigworth over from Orinda for the fray. They should be home again now. Maybe to stay.

Reflections of VIPs in League Mirrors

Mirrors on the wall at Assistance League Clubhouse danced with the reflections of smart VIPs last Monday during the league's annual Chinese luncheon for presidents of various other women's clubs of town.

"VIPs Reflected"

Chinese because the event is designed to acquaint the "very important persons" of clubdom with the league's valuable and beautiful collection of Oriental art objects. Presidents were told about the various treasures in the collection by Lorraine Miller, chairman, and her committee composed of Dorothy Goodknight, Helen Newcomb, "Jo" Paap and Elizabeth Sullivan, each of whom has studied and become an expert on the history and meaning of different objects in the "little museum."

Serving as hostesses of the day were league past presidents Winifred Campbell, Cassietta Walker, Emily Persons, Ola Conklin, Flo Newton, Carol Scott, Tess Heusel and Mildred Wing with clubhouse chairman, Elizabeth Jones, and speaker past presidents "Jo" and Dorothy.

TO SING FOR SUPPER

Long Beach State College coeds, from left, Claudia McGlogan, sophomore, with freshmen Pat Stafford and Pat Driver, will sing for everybody's supertime enjoyment during Associated Women Students Hi-Jinx Dinner Wednesday at Soroptimist House, among high lights of annual Women's Week when coeds traditionally "take over" the campus.

His Royal Highness will reign over week's biggest and final event, a ball Friday in the cafeteria. Coeds are planning many special activities for week.—(Staff)

Gamma Phi Founders Day Fete Slated

Pink carnations and lighted tapers will be in evidence Tuesday evening when alumnae and actives of Gamma Phi Beta gather in the home of Mrs. Lewis A. Hopkins, 3750 Linden Ave., to observe founders day.

Mrs. D. R. Leisy, founders day chairman, will ask alumnae to represent their various universities during the impressive ritual.

Gamma Phi Beta was founded 84 years ago at Syracuse University, N. Y., and has 170 alumnae chapters and 69 Greek-letter chapters in the United States and Canada.

Locally, alumnae support and aid the UCLA and USC chapters, San Jose State College and San Diego State College.

• • • •

ASSISTING Mrs. Hopkins at the gathering will be Mrs. Floyd Newsom.

An additional observance of the founding will be a brunch next Sunday attended by Inter-City Gamma Phi Betas at Wilshire Country Club. Mrs. Walter Drew, president of the Long Beach alumnae, is chairman of the Golden Crescent awards to be presented to 12 women with 50 years of service to the sorority.

Mrs. Howard Wittenberg, international vice president of Gamma Phi Beta, will speak and entertainment will be provided by the active chapters at USC and UCLA.

Welcome Fete for the Doyles

Allied Arts International will entertain Friday with a "Welcome Home" evening honoring Congressman and Mrs. Clyde Doyle at 7:30 p.m. in Mottell's and Peek Garden Room.

Doyle recently returned to the United States to make an official report to the State Department on his experiences as a special ambassador to several of the governments in Eastern Europe. Pictures will illustrate his talk and special music is planned.

'Mikado' to Be Fare for Music Clubbers

Gilbert and Sullivan's light opera, "The Mikado," will be musical fare for Woman's Music Club Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. in Ebell Auditorium.

The program is sponsored by the Opera Study Section under direction of Henri Scanlon and will be presented by Mrs. Adolph Brodbeck, section chairman.

• • • •

WEDNESDAY'S performance will be staged in costume and will follow a ballet prologue based on the overture from the opera given by students from the Albert Ruiz Studio. Marion Hardy will accompany.

The cast includes Cliff Robertson, Jackie McFadden, Henri Scanlon, Marianna Brinkerhoff and Arthur Carah. Continuity will be by Mrs. E. B. Leihammer. Mrs. Willalou Lowder will be program accompanist and Mrs. Russell M. Brougher will play the organ prelude.

The Church Music Section meets at 11 a.m. in Room One. Speaking on "What Is Good Church Music?", the Rev. Robert C. Walker, executive director of the Long Beach Council of Churches, will discuss music of the Church of the Brethren.

• • • •

THE REV. Howard N. Steward Jr., Miss Vera Graham and Mrs. Rex Mhoon will contribute to a panel discussion moderated by Mrs. Roy Harmon Wolters. Mrs. O. G. Satterlee, section chairman, will preside.

Noon luncheon is in charge of Mrs. Willalou Lowder and members of the George Gershwin group.

Goldenwed Pair Returns Home

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Morgan, 640 E. 8th St., are newly returned from a trip to Hannibal, Mo., the Ozarks and Houston, Tex.

The Morgans, who will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on Monday, during their trip attended church services at the Arch St. Methodist Church in Hannibal where they exchanged wedding vows.

They are parents of three children, Ralph Morgan of Houston, Tex., Mrs. W. E. Woolever of Hawthorne and Glen Morgan of Long Beach.

Grandmoms List Officers

Activities of North Long Beach Grandmothers' Club, Charter 394, will be under the leadership of Mrs. Jean B. Miller Sr., who has been elected to serve as president for the 1958-59 term. She succeeds Mrs. Lee Carter who has held the post for the past two terms.

Other new officers elected with Mrs. Miller are Mmes. Thomas Corrigan, vice president; Harriette De Marcus, secretary, and Harold West, treasurer. Chairmen of various committees will be announced Monday when the club meets at 6090 California Ave. A proposed agenda of the club activities for the coming year will be read and acted upon.

street he stopped dead in the doorway. "Where are you going?" he croaked.

"TO BARBARA'S charity party at Yonkers Raceway," I squeaked. "You remember." He looked at me with interest. "You're really bats, aren't you?" he cawed. . . . "No," I whispered, "but I said I'd go and I think it will be gay. You're going out and look how you sound."

"My case," he rasped, "is different. Mine's business. I don't think, honey, you should go."

"Are you speaking as husband or doctor," I breathed. My huskiness I hoped was sexy but I suspect it sounded more like the last gasp of a life devoted to tobacco and the bottle.

"Both," he mumbled making his way to the telephone. He dialed the drug store and started ordering. What seemed like 20 minutes later he was still at it. Finally he hung up, a gleam in his eye. "There! I've told them to send around a few cold supplies. All kinds of pills and sprays. You get them set up, we'll sample them when I get home."

Charmed that he was going to succor himself, even belatedly, when the various nostrums arrived I arranged them artistically. It looked rather as though we were going to have a wine-tasting party.

• • • •

I THEN SAT down to wait for him and to watch television, leaving my book open on my lap. I am reading "Dr. Zhivago" which got rave reviews and which is fascinating in a ponderous heavy-going way and I shall stick with it to the end, but it's the kind of book you can take a holiday from. It is, if you see what I mean, always there. I am interspersing it not only with TV but also with Agnes De Mille's arresting sequel to her first autobiography, "And Promenade Home." Miss De Mille is an admirable stylist on any subject and when she writes about dancing she is alone in her class. The reader, too, takes wing and soars.

I was also interested because her wartime romance in many ways paralleled my own. In those sorry years for millions of couples the rueful Jerome Kern lyric applied "A Fine Romance With No Kisses." A friend of mine told me that a friend of hers who was reading Free Admission, one of my two autobiographies, said firmly, "If Dr. Brown doesn't get through the war and come home safely I'm not going to finish this book." Reassured that he did, she continued,

He finally got through his dinner, too, and when he came in we started dosing ourselves. "What fun you patients have," he wheezed as he tossed down another pill and pumped the nose spray like a fire hose. Now I am alarmed. Do doctors ever become hypochondriacs?

Dear Abby

Penalty Much Too Stiff

DEAR ABBY: Before my husband gives me my weekly allowance, he looks over the shirts I have ironed.

If there is too much starch in the collar, he docks me. He won't let me do them over because he says that is the way his father trained his mother to iron his shirts the way he likes them. Do you think this is fair? DOCKED

ABBY

DEAR DOCKED: The penalty is much stiffer than the collar.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor of ours died. All the neighborhood donated for flowers, but we left one neighbor out on purpose because the deceased had not spoken to that family for years. It was no secret. After the funeral this neighbor who was left out called up all the neighbors and spit fire over the telephone. She said we had no business leaving her out and it was a dirty trick. Do you think we did wrong or not?

THE NEIGHBORS

DEAR NEIGHBORS: You did right. This kind of neighbor "spits fire" if you do, and "spits fire" if you don't. If she wanted to send flowers, nothing prevented her from sending a little bouquet on her own.

DEAR ABBY: Here's a sure cure for BACKSEAT DRIVERS as complained about by "DRIVEN NUTS." Every time the little woman starts cooking, go out into the kitchen with her. If she reaches for a pan, holler at her to be careful she doesn't hurt herself. When she reaches for the salt — tell her to get the salt. When she reaches for the pepper tell her not to forget the pepper. When she goes to turn the gas on, tell her to be sure to turn on the gas. Stand over her and point everything out to be sure she doesn't miss a thing in the recipe. If she complains, tell her to remember this the next time she tries to drive the car for you.

"LORENZ THE TAILOR"

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: I plan to be married in December. My parents don't approve of this marriage, but gave their consent. They won't come to my wedding or have anything to do with it. Therefore, I would like to know what to place on the wedding invitations where it says, "MR AND MRS. SO AND SO REQUEST YOUR PRESENCE AT THE WEDDING OF THEIR DAUGHTER." Don't you think my parents are making it bad for everyone by not coming? After all you're only married once and it seems to me that every mother would want to see her daughter married and help her make the best of it, don't you?

JUST WONDERING

DEAR JUST: Ask your clergyman to talk to your parents. WHY don't they approve of your marriage? It might pay you to listen to their reasons. If you go through with this wedding without your parents' cooperation, I suggest a very quiet little ceremony, and eliminate the formal invitations.

• • • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO PATTI: Forget the lad who sends you presents and stick with the boy who sends you.

Clipped Wings Plan Annual Yule Bazaar

Clipped Wings, United Air Lines stewardess alumnae, will entertain Nov. 20 and 21 with its third annual Christmas coffee and bazaar from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Woodland Hills home of Mrs. Leland Frazier, 19841 Henshaw St.

Members from the San Fernando Valley are hostessing the event. Long Beach members who are cooperating in the various projects are Mmes. Robert Zelsdorf, F. A. Fillipow, Stuart King, Daniel O'Toole and Frederick DeGraw.

• • • •

IN ADDITION to gift items, the bazaar also will feature a "parcel post" booth. Members have sent cards to their friends and relatives throughout the United States and foreign countries asking for gift donations which will be sold in their original mailing wrappers.

Bazaar proceeds will benefit the group philanthropy, National Assn. for Retarded Children.

Ladies of Elks

Ladies of the Elks will meet Wednesday at the Elks Club for a business meeting at 12:30 p.m. Cards will follow, says Amelia Blume, president, who is in charge.

STAR MODELS 'SACK OF MONEY'
Hollywood star Piper Laurie models the "sack of money" which will be given as grand award (Piper not included!) at the Long Beach Osteopathic Auxiliary fashion show and dinner dance Saturday evening in the Petroleum Club. The show, coordinated by Wilma Hastings, will feature fashions by leading California designers. Dancing will follow to the music of Ray Livingston's orchestra. Fashioning the novel "sack" are, from left, Mmes. Thomas Spencer, Melvyn G. Wade and Phillip Reames.

Travelogue on Brazil for Ebell

"Brazil and the Amazon," a comprehensive travelogue on the fastest growing country in South America, will be presented by Carl Thomsen at the 1:30 p.m. meeting of Ebell of Long Beach Monday in Ebell Clubhouse.

Introduced by Mrs. Francis H. Gentry, program chairman, the film will feature a trip to the headwaters of the Apurimac River and visits with Indians of the Amazon jungle. It also will show the orchid makers of Bahia, original capital of Brazil; the cocoa industry of Paulo Afonso Fall; Buenos Aires, Sao Paulo and Rio de Janiero.

The business session will be conducted by the president, Mrs. Joseph H. Striegel. Luncheon will be served by members of Group X, Mrs. John A. Dickerson, chairman.

91st Birthday

Mrs. Mary Runrohr, longtime resident of Long Beach, will celebrate her 91st birthday Monday. She makes her home with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Kolb, 3033 Theresa St.

Festive Visit Comes to End

After two weeks as a house guest of her brother-in-law and her sister, Lieut. Cmdr. and Mrs. Cornelius Dronkers, U.S.N. (Ret.), of Garden Grove, formerly of Long Beach, Mrs. James A. MacDonnell has returned to her home in Springfield, Mo.

Her visit was the occasion for many luncheons among which was a luncheon at a hibiscus-bedecked table at the Allen Center Officers' Club, and attended by Mrs. George Roebuck, Miss Winnie Fairley, both of Long Beach, Mrs. Cornelius Dronkers of Garden Grove, and Mrs. MacDonnell.

Her visit was climaxed by a farewell luncheon given in her honor in a South Sea atmosphere of "The Palms" in Anaheim. Invited were Miss Margaret Meyer, Mrs. Garnet Hill, Mrs. Phil Proctor, Mrs. Al Schlinger, Mrs. Don Semler, Mrs. Cornelius Dronkers.

Days of Forty-Niners

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

—by PLACER MINER—

A look at the student activities scene at Long Beach State College—past, present, and future.

The marching band chalked up another first Saturday when it traveled to Fresno to provide musical encouragement at Saturday night's LBSC-Fresno State game. Well, there's life in the old mausoleum yet! (P.S. They didn't march all the way—they rode a bus.)

Pre-law students and members of the Pre-Legal Club will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the home of sponsor Dr. James Lien to hear prominent Long Beach lawyers speak and to plan events for the semester. Head of the future barristers is Joe Dulaney.

Tuesday is one of the most important days of the year for LBSC students—a holiday. After taking appropriate note of the solemnity of the occasion, Staters probably will use the free time for a little extra study to make sure they continue to sit in the "A" row.

Holidays don't mean a thing to the Junior Class. Headed by Fred Montano, the Class Council will meet Tuesday at 6 p.m. in the Soroptimist House to candy apples which will be sold the next day on campus. This is an annual money-raising project for the Junior Class.

FRIDAY EVENING Sigma Chi Nu, nurses' fraternity, will hold its sixth annual pledging ceremony in the Soroptimist House. Fifteen pledges will be present at the candlelight ritual under the guidance of Irene Maurer, Harriet Hosking and Mary Delano.

Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship will dine potluck style the same evening at 5:30 at the home of Muhyaddin Jassim, Iraqi student at LBSC. All interested students are welcome, provided they bring their own pot. Address is 4915 E. Ocean Blvd., Apt. 5.

Saturday IVCF gave an international dinner in the Soroptimist House in honor of foreign students on campus. Dinner was followed by singing and games.

All 25 members of Tilicum, sophomore women's service honorary, are sporting their new insignias proudly, a gold feather with the name of the group in brown letters. The gals, headed by President Sue Kelly, are kept busy in their capacity as junior hostesses for Long Beach State College.

Weekend Vacation No Huge Problem

By TED KREO

The telephone is a remarkable invention, there can be no doubt — but there are times when it also can be a mechanical monster.

Both my wife and I work a long schedule, and when we get home we like to relax. After answering the phone all day, we like to get away from it at night. But it is not meant to be so. Every night our phone sounds like practice day at the firehouse.

So, we have adopted the practice of packing up quickly and leaving town on weekends, whenever we possibly can. It's the only relief we get from that never-ending clanging.

Last weekend was such a one. And I'd like to tell you about it today to prove a point.

When some people go away for a weekend, you'd think they were going for a month —they cart so much stuff with them. This is totally waste effort, for you do NOT need a lot of gear for a weekend.

We planned a three-day weekend, and picked San Diego for our goal. My wife took along an extra dress to wear evenings, no vast wardrobe.

But since this is a column on men's fashions, let me tell you what I packed.

* * * *

FOR THE TRIP I selected a slim-line, grey tweed suit. The reason I took this one is that it stands up well and is just tweedy enough to look good even if it begins to lose its press. This is all I took in the line of suits.

I wore my grey felt hat (one of the new "centredent" styles with a slight pinch in the front of the crown) and a pair of llama skin black shoes.

The rest of my wardrobe consisted of two changes of underwear, two extra pairs of socks, three white handkerchiefs and two white shirts.

I wore a white shirt and a black knit necktie.

Our total luggage consisted of one suitcase and my wife's make-up kit in which I also stashed my electric razor.

This was plenty to carry along. However, I would point out to you that we were just going for a weekend of relaxation, not for golfing, tennis, fishing or anything like that.

What did we do? Plenty!

First we went to the Town and Country Hotel, operated by a very fine gentleman named Charles H. Brown. The Town and Country is on the Mission Valley Rd., and in case you haven't been there, let me recommend it highly. It's perfect for vacationers because the Mission Valley Rd. connects with the local freeway system there and it's only five minutes to the downtown area. Also, this new idea in hotels offers a variety of activity, golf, table tennis, swimming and tennis. There's a dandy little restaurant connected with the hotel and the accommodations are modern, luxurious and reasonable.

We took in the sights around Old Town and La Jolla (and my wife got to visit some antique shops). Saturday night we went into San Diego for a sea food dinner and a show. Sunday we checked out of the hotel, covered Coronado pretty well and then went up to Balboa Park (stopping at some more antique shops on the way). And so on home.

It's amazing how many wonderful things there are to see in Southern California if one can only take the time to visit them!

* * * *

THERE WAS one amusing incident. Saturday night when we were driving into town for dinner, we were early. So, not knowing too much about the town, I suggested that we locate the theater we were planning to attend. I followed a taxi through the complex of streets downtown, looking for street signs. Suddenly I was aware of the fact that the taxi had disappeared and there was a police car bearing down at me, head-on, its red lights flashing. I stopped (of course) and the officer politely explained that I was heading the wrong way on a one-way street. I said nonchalantly that I must have just turned onto the street.

"Sorry, sir," he said, "but you've BEEN on the one-way street for about two blocks!" He turned out to be an understanding sort, for he gave me no ticket, stopped traffic and allowed me to make a U-turn, then steered me to my goal.

When finally we returned home, relaxed, happy and refreshed, it was good to see the old place again. But then---you guessed it—that telephone started tearing!

Mexican architecture and mosaics by Juan O'Gorman, sculpture by Bernard Rosenthal, jewelry by Ernest Ziegfeld and paintings and drawings by Anya Fisher, Edith Gummels, Patricia Bartell Johnson and Julie Poulousky go on view today in the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

A reception to which the public is invited is slated for 2 to 4 p.m. Refreshments will be served by members of the Long Beach Art Assn., with Mrs. H. O. Fox, chairman.

This will be the first U.S. showing of the work of Juan O'Gorman, Mexican artist-architect. The exhibit includes photographs of his mosaic murals, which show the University of Mexico City and others, cartoons and architectural drawings. His work is characterized by its blending of Indian, Spanish Colonial and modern cultures.

Recent works are seen in the exhibition of sculpture by Bernard Rosenthal, internationally known for his innovations in metal construction. A resident of Southern California for many years, Rosenthal studied at the University of Michigan; he has exhibited in leading art galleries in Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, New York and San Francisco. A winner of numerous purchase awards, he is represented in private collections in this country and in Europe.

Gold and silver jewelry, inlaid with ebony, pearl and semi-precious stones are seen in the Ernest Ziegfeld exhibition. The artist, Long Beach resident and former teacher, devotes full time to jewelry making. His work has been shown in galleries and shops throughout the country and he was one of the craftsmen represented in the United States exhibition at the Brussels World's Fair.

One-man exhibitions by Anya Fisher, Edith Gummels, Patricia Bartell Johnson and Julie Poulousky go on view today at the Alamitos, North Branch, Ruth Bach and Bret Harte Branch Libraries respectively. A representative work by each artist will be seen simultaneously at the Museum. The exhibits are the second in the series sponsored jointly by the Museum and the libraries.

The new exhibitions will be seen through Dec. 3. Open hours at the Museum are daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sundays and holidays 1 to 5 p.m. and Wednesday and Friday evenings 7:30 to 10 p.m. On Armistice Day, Nov. 11, the Museum will be open from 1 to 5 p.m.

'Visit to Small Planet' Next for Playhouse

With a cat which practically steals the second act, stereophonic sound effects from outer space, feats of levitation, and a cast of popular players, "Visit to a Small Planet" will open Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 p.m. at Long Beach Community Playhouse, 5021 E. Anaheim St.

This satirical comedy by Gore Vidal was the talk of Broadway when it was presented in 1956, following a television version in 1955, both of which starred Cyril Ritchard as the whimsical visitor from outer space who visited the earth in a spirit of fun and mild malice.

Salvatore Mungo, who plays the Ritchard role of a superman with a yen for confederate regalia, has been playing leading roles at the Playhouse for the past 16 years, and is currently serving on the board of directors.

* * * *

PHIL HATTERY, the "general", one of the Pentagon boys who suspects the worst of the visitor, has been on and off stage, on and off the board of directors, and otherwise an important part of the Playhouse for 30 years. Both Mungo and Hattery have won "best play" awards.

Eva Raber, remembered for her roles in "Ever Since Eve" and "Wedding Breakfast", and Ardyce Nowling, a newcomer to the Playhouse, are the only women in the cast.

Jack A. Fiero, Marius Dean, and Dave Williams complete the cast of leading players. Larry Johns is director.

Following the opening week, the play will be given on Thursdays at 7:45 p.m., Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. (Thanksgiving dark) through Dec. 13, will reopen Jan. 2 on the same schedule through Jan. 17.

City College Bids Public to Symphony

First Long Beach City College Symphony concert of the year will be presented at 8:15 p.m. next Sunday in the Lakewood campus auditorium, Harvey Way near Clark Ave. The program is open to the public without charge.

Making his first appearance as conductor of the City College Symphony will be Nelson Keyes. Members of the 65-piece orchestra include both regular City College students and many experienced adult musicians from the Long Beach-Lakewood area.

Next Sunday's program will include the seldom-played "Symphony No. 88 in G Major" by Haydn, the "Unfinished Symphony" by Schubert, "Rumanian Folk Dances" by Bartok, the concert fantasy "A Night on Bald Mountain" by Moussorgsky and the overture to "La Forza del Destino" by Verdi.

'Aladdin' Due in Hollywood by Localities

The magic and enchantment of Persia will be relived at the first Children's Theater Festival sponsored by the American National Theater and Academy when The School of the Magnolia Theater takes "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp" to the El Capitan Theater, Hollywood, Nov. 15 and 16.

The ANTA festival is bringing together in one location for two more weekends a program showing the number, kind and quality of children's entertainment being produced in the Southland.

In the production are Lois Wright, Ric Larson, Doris Marie Taylor, Richard Eldridge, Daneatia Hill, Richard and Charlene French, Blaine Nelson, Ellen Kellerman, Pat Moorehouse, Lynnea Stevens and Mary Chapman.

Complimentary tickets to the production may be obtained from ANTA, Hollywood Bowl, 2301 N. Highland Ave., Hollywood 28.

Organ Music, Films Slated

Musical Arts Club will enjoy an evening of organ music and pictures of European music festivals Tuesday at 8 p.m. at St. Luke's Episcopal Church and parish house.

Organ music by French composers will be played by Marcia Hannah, organist and choir master at St. Luke's. The music festivals films will be shown by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bembridge who have attended many of the European events.

Delphine Wagner, president, will lead the meeting. Izora Brandt is program chairman. A coffee hour will follow.

Go Afar by Own Phonograph

Approaching foreign lands through their music is a hobby of many people who borrow recordings from the Long Beach Public Library.

This week's list of new LPs suggests travel to Algiers with "Arabian Nights"; to Ireland with "The Bonnie Bunch of Roses" and "The Lark in the Morning"; to Ecuador with the popular singing of Benitez and Valencia and to Scotland with "Scotch Pipings by the Glencoe Highlanders."

"O Canada" tells the history of our neighbor through her songs, which is another helpful approach to the culture of a country.

Chapman College Series Revealed

Major & Minor Notes

By RACHEL MORTON

For the most part, a music critic's job is a most agreeable one. I once asked Patterson Greene, Los Angeles critic, if he ever got tired of listening to music, "Not if it is good music," was his clever rejoinder. And that is the way I feel. Music is my loftiest domain. It has filled my whole life. But in attendance at its altar I sometimes come upon disturbing factors. The very first cruel experience came when I was four years old.

We were visting my grandmother for Christmas. I had been taught a little song at school which I was eager to sing for her. She was eager to hear it. She leaned back in her chair, put her glasses high on her forehead and closed her eyes. Warming to my joyous task, I commenced the second verse only to be drowned out by grandmother's rugged snoring! I was heartbroken, and to this day, I cannot bear to even play a record for someone who will not listen.

• • • • •

IT ALWAYS seemed to me a rank injustice as a little girl in school that no matter how well I sang for the visitors, at the teacher's request, I still had to stay after school for whispering!

As a young woman, I was once asked to sing for a woman's club in Boston. Waiting in the green room to go on stage, I was somewhat perturbed when the lady chairman came to me and said, "Will you sing now, Miss Morton, or shall we let them enjoy themselves a little while longer?"

And then there was my first church job. The minister announced, "At this evening's service, Miss Rachel Morton will sing the lovely solo, 'Oh Divine Redeemer.' We hope for an audience!" Ah me!

The mistakes in programs are too many to be remembered. But one in England I will never forget. I gave the committee my songs for a certain concert and among them one was entitled "My Lover Comes on the Ski." This is what I read in the program, "My Liver Goes on a Spree."

• • • • •

AND NOW I am a music critic and still there are irking things that peeve me. I will mention a few. It always distresses me when our national anthem is sung to hear the feeble response of the audience. In England, how heartily and avidly do the people stand and sing "God Save the King (or Queen)."

Of course, I must admit that the Star Spangled Banner is practically unsingable, so high it lies. And just why, at the most difficult place, the orchestra has to simmer down to a few violin scratches, I have never understood or forgiven. There should be at least a full brass accompaniment at this point. But I personally "give my all" when I am singing the national anthem.

Another peeve of mine is the lazy habit of some singers to use music in concert performance. Not long ago, although the singers had all summer to prepare the program, one after another got up and glued their eyes deep in the printed page. All contact was lost with the audience, and all interest went out of the performance.

• • • • •

I DO NOT like exaggerated mannerisms in a performer. In fact I do not like mannerisms at all on the stage. If the talent is good enough to be on the stage, it does not need superficial gestures. People clapping in the wrong place annoys me too. At the opera a "claque" (people who are paid to applaud at appointed times) disturbs the mood, interrupts the opera and is often flagrantly ill-advised. At a symphony concert it is unbearable to have the different movements destroyed in their onward flow by the stupid interruption of ill-timed applause.

But the worst offense of all is the long steady stream of late-comers who ruin everyone's enjoyment. How selfish! In Europe the late comers are held behind closed doors until an opportune moment.

I have my pet peeves, but when the beautiful music begins seeping into my innermost soul, I really love my fellowman.

HOLIDAY CRUISE TO HAWAII

Pictured during gay bon voyage festivities aboard the SS Lurline just prior to sailing are longtime friends and residents of Long Beach Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Adler Sr. (left) and Mr. and Mrs. M. I. Masterson Sr. The two couples were among localites who embarked for Hawaii on the most recent crossing of the Matson luxury liner from Los Angeles harbor. During their holiday in the islands they are staying at the Moana Hotel on Waikiki Beach.

Broadway Swindle Theme at Magnolia

"The Butter and Egg Man," comedy by George S. ("Solid Gold Cadillac") Kaufman opens a six week run Friday at The Magnolia Theatre.

Pat Brown, managing director, and Milf Cooper, actor and guest director of the group, will co-star. Supporting leads are carried by Betty Hill, LBSC student last seen in "The Brass Ring"; Roy Malmberg, who won acclaim for his psychiatrist's role in "No Time for Sergeants"; and Bob Hallgren, male star of the group's "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?"

Newcomers to the local theater scene are Libby Earl, Shirley Wilson, and Robert Reines. Completing the cast are Dean Walton, Bernice Nelson, Dick Pilcher, Paul Teschke and Al Hixson.

• • • • •

THE PLAY, set in the colorful era of the "roaring 20's" with its rolled stockings, ostrich plumes, pin stripes and derbies, takes the audience into the big time Broadway theater and the secret life of a producer. This creature is revealed in its natural habitat (Broadway), personality (fast talking bluffer) and source of nourishment (cold cash, preferably someone else's.)

Into its clutches wanders an innocent "butter and egg man" (known today as an "angel") armed with his life's savings. He falls prey to the age-old Broadway swindle. How he recuperates, falls in love and takes his revenge is revealed every Thursday through Sunday at 8:30 p.m. at The Magnolia Theatre. Special rates for clubs are available.

Sale Planned by Sponsors

Slate Books, Art Festival

The entire convention hall of Municipal Auditorium will be the site of the annual City of Hope rummage sale, a project of the Long Beach Sponsors Club, Saturday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mrs. Jack Levine is chairman.

Included in the selection will be "left-in-storage" and "trade-in" fur coats from several local furriers; apparel for men, women and children as well as new and slightly used work clothes and coveralls, "do-it-yourself" automobile paint kits, electrical appliances, radios, television sets, furniture, costume jewelry and toys.

All funds will go directly to the City of Hope, nonsectarian, free sanitarium at Duarte for the treatment of and research on cancer, tuberculosis, leukemia and operative heart disease.

Nearly 50 artists and craftsmen will display their work at the South Bay Books and Arts Fair on Friday and Saturday at Torrance Civic Auditorium.

Exhibitors will include such diverse artists as the Hungarian refugee, an 85-year-old San Pedro woman and a Torrance taxicab driver.

The books display will include the best of contemporary literature for adults and children.

Stressing the theme of encouraging the arts among the younger generation will be such attractions as the appearance of children's authors Leo Politi, Taro Yashima and Adrienne Jones, performances by the Bob Baker Puppeteers, displays of children's records and rhythm instruments and storytelling sessions.

The fair, which is free except for the puppet show, will be held at the auditorium at 1349 El Prado from 1 to 9 p.m. Friday and from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday under the sponsorship of the Women's Alliance of the Pacific Unitarian Church. Puppet show tickets may be obtained from Mrs. H. Edison Kenyon, 1347 27th Pl., San Pedro.

San Francisco Ballet Appears on LBCC Series

Just returned from a triumphant tour of South and Central America, the San Francisco Ballet will appear at the Long Beach City College auditorium at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Tickets will be available during the week at the Lakewood campus student body store fountain and at the box office Thursday evening.

Program will include "Balletino," "Dryad," "Con Amore" and "Pas de Deux" from "Nutcracker." Choreography is by Lew Christensen, artistic director of the company.

Sally Bailey
. . . Performs Thursday

Music for "Balletino," a classical ballet without story, is Antonnio Vivaldi's "Concerto in B Minor for Piano." "Dryad," set to Schubert's "Fantasia in F Minor," tells the story of 13th Century hunters who, wandering in a forest inhabited by dryads, accidentally harm a tree in which a dryad lives.

"Con Amore" is a comic ballet contrasting the plight of an Amazon lady's unrequited love and that of a Parisian enchantress who has an embarrassing surplus of lovers. Three Rossini overtures provide the music.

Dancing the lead role in "Dryad" will be guest artists Jocelyn Vollmar, former prima ballerina of the San Francisco Ballet. Miss Vollmar has since danced with the New York City Ballet and Ballet Theater and has toured with the Borovansky Ballet as prima ballerina.

Richard Carter and Sally Bailey will perform the "Pas de Deux" and Roderick Drew dances the lead on "Con Amore." These three, like most members of the nation's oldest ballet company, have lived in or near San Francisco most of their lives and received their training in the San Francisco Ballet school.

In addition to the recent highly successful tour of 15 Latin American countries and its 1957 tour of the Far East, the San Francisco company will leave in January for still another State Department-sponsored tour, this time in the Middle East.

New School Plans Open House Fete

The new Holy Innocents Parochial School will stage its open house and fall festival from noon until 9 p.m. Nov. 16 on the school grounds, 2500 Pacific Ave.

Officers of the newly organized Parents Guild who have planned the festival are Mrs. Albert Gracio, president; Mmes. Urban Ostermeyer and David H. Rizer, vice presidents; Mrs. George Ambrow, secretary, and Mrs. John Gargas, treasurer.

Wide Awake Lodge Group Sets Meet

Past Noble Grands Club of Wide Awake Rebekah Lodge will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the home of Levina Newmaster, 788 Roswell Ave. Effie M. Berry will preside during initiation of new members.

The lodge social club will meet Friday in Morgan Hall for covered-dish luncheon at noon and a business session led by Levina Newmaster.

Luncheon Monday

Carnation Club will elect officers during a luncheon meeting Monday in the home of Ella Turner, 30 W. Pleasant St. Nellie Lloyd will preside.

Pi Phis Slate Dean of Women

Pi Beta Phi Alumnae will meet Monday at the home of Mrs. H. A. Barr, 4011 Linden Ave., at 7:30 p.m. Dr. Lois Swanson, dean of women at Long Beach State College, will be guest speaker. Cohostesses with Mrs. Barr will be Mmes. G. C. Carlson, Edward Cunningham and Harold H. Morris. Dessert will be served prior to Dean Swanson's talk.

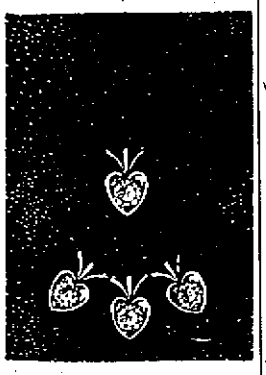

To Honor Leaders

Marie Lamberson, worthy matron, and Paul Wolfe, worthy patron, will be honored Thursday at their last meeting as leaders of Palos Verdes Chapter, Order of Eastern Star. The event is being arranged in Morgan Hall by Jane Hopkins, refreshment chairman, and past matrons and patrons.

Our Children

'Never' Only Word in Two Situations

By ANGELO PATRI

Never is a big word, so big with meaning that we seldom use it. Life forbids "nevers" by its ever-changing face but there are a few times when it is the right word at the right time and place. Teachers must note at least two of these times, the first in relation to the early dismissal of children on the request of parents or relative or whoever.

When someone calls the school by telephone asking that Kitty be sent home at 2 o'clock the teacher says politely and firmly, "Of course. But will you please call for her? You see we cannot dismiss a child on the basis of a telephone call, this for the child's safety." Any reasonable parent will accept that statement and be grateful for the school's care of its children.

• • • •

OF COURSE a thoughtful parent will not make such a request but sometimes one forgets in his hurry to go somewhere and to do something in short order. But the welfare of children must come first.

The second Never applies alike to parents and teachers but particularly to teachers of younger children. No child is to be shut in a closet for discipline. Never is that to be done. I know how troublesome a fractious little one can become in a classroom, how much he can upset the whole routine and how desperate a teacher can feel when she sees time flowing out of the window and this troublesome child forcing it to be so. Nevertheless he is not to be put in the closet or anywhere else where he is out of sight and likely to be forgotten. This has happened to the dismay of the teacher and the great distress of the child's parents. It is a dangerous thing to do. It must never be done.

• • • •

WHAT IS a teacher to do when faced with this annoying child? If she sends him to the principal he usually will be more annoyed than helpful. If she lets him remain in the room in his state of uncontrol she cannot work nor can the rest of the class. Send him in charge of a trustworthy classmate to walk around the schoolyard once, get a drink of water, go to the toilet, wash his hands. Usually, unless this child is defective, this calms him.

In large schools it would be well to have a quiet room to which excited, tired, annoying children could be sent, a room with the atmosphere of a chapel and someone who carries that atmosphere in his very being to take over such a child for a brief time, long enough to change the direction of his mind and to allow him to fit into the classroom routine. This is an idea for the P-T.A. and the school board. The teachers need help here.

BRIDGE ROUNDELAY FRIDAY

This picture will be re-enacted throughout Long Beach Friday when Carmelite Nuns' Auxiliary entertains with a telephone bridge roundelay in the homes of various members to raise funds for the upkeep of the cloistered nuns of the Carmel of St. Joseph. Pictured are, from left, Mrs. Roy Glass, general party chairman; and Mmes. Horace Gitterman, Joseph Kellogg, Harold Berg and Pettus G. Secrest.—(Staff photo.)

IOOF Dinner

Oasis Lodge 447, IOOF, will sponsor a public turkey dinner from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Monday in Morgan Hall, assisted by members of Wide Awake Rebekah Lodge. Bill Newmaster will be general chairman.

Dinner proceeds will be used for donations to the Youth Camp, Old Folks' Home and United Pilgrimage for Youth—all projects sponsored by the Grand Lodge of California.

Novel Card Affair Set by Auxiliary

Highlighting Indian Summer's colorful calendar is the telephone bridge roundelay scheduled Friday when hospitable homes located throughout the city will be opened simultaneously for bridge and canasta groups who will vie with one another for high scores.

The event is being sponsored by the Carmelite Nuns' Auxiliary with funds going toward the upkeep of the cloistered nuns of the Carmel of St. Joseph, located at Ocean Blvd. and Redondo Ave. Headed by the prioress, the Rev. Mother Mary Magdalen, the Carmelite nuns, who devote their lives to prayer and meditation, look to the auxiliary for assistance in external affairs.

Members of the committee have announced that final scores will be telephoned and tabulated to determine winners.

Mrs. Roy Glass, 2715 Van Buren St., is general chairman.

Career Club Party Date

Members of Women's Transportation Club of Long Beach have completed plans for their gala annual benefit dinner dance to take place next Saturday evening at the Uptown Club, 4365 Atlantic Ave. (adjacent to Ricart's) and have bidden executives and fellow employes in the various fields of transportation.

Pat Wyland, dance chairman, and her committee composed of Mary K. Kelly, Annette Saunders and Claire Smith announce that the party will begin with cocktails at 7. Dinner will be served at 8 p.m. following which guests will dance to Jimmy Whetmore's music. Proceeds from the affair will go to the Exceptional Children's Foundation.

Your Baby & Mine

Don't Get Upset, Let Kiddies Rest

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Parents get so accustomed to their young children taking an afternoon nap that it comes as quite a shock when suddenly they cry, shake the bed, demand to be let out and refuse to sleep.

Sometimes this is a temporary situation which can be handled by going in, talking to them soothingly, reading a story, patting them gently until they relax and go to sleep.

But often children literally cannot sleep and then it is wise to give them a "rest" period with no demand that they sleep. Undress them, leave the blinds up, give them toys in bed and tell them in an hour they can come out of their room.

Now, they are resting. If mother takes a rest at the same time, the period can be a very comfortable one for everyone.

• • • •

MRS. B. D. writes, "Suppose a 2½-year-old boy is not sleepy but is put to bed anyway and cries for a time and then goes to sleep?

"My sister's and brother's children, both 2½, learned to climb out of bed and it is hard to keep them there. My boy has not wanted to climb out. My sister and brother laugh because theirs did.

"Can I determine by this what my boy's character will be when he grows up? Will he be a go-getter or sit back and let life pass him by? Most boys of this age do climb out of bed and I wondered if this were indicative of what his adult life would be."

I would hardly go that far. Maybe he really is sleepy and after he has given a few token cries he just falls asleep. The other children are not and so resent being penned in and fight to get away from the bed.

Once they have learned to climb out it is safer to put down the crib bars and then put a flexible gate on the door so they cannot run out of the room. They can play in there for the hour of rest.

• • • •

YOUR BOY never may be as aggressive as these boys, but why do they all have to be the same? Just accept him as he is and do not be so sensitive about your brother's and sister's amusement.

They may not feel so secure about what their children are but find you take them seriously and so the temptation to tease or prod you is overwhelming.

Be glad that he still wants to take a nap, though if he cries too long I would go in and tell him he didn't have to sleep, just be quiet and rest.

• • • •

Among Career Women

Medical Assistants Slate MD Officer

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Dr. Edward C. Rosenow, executive director of Los Angeles County Medical Assn., is scheduled to address the Long Beach Medical Assistants at their November meeting Monday night at Alfred's Resaurant on the subject, "Is a Smooth Running Office Possible?"

Among the year's most distinguished guest speakers for the group, his appearance has created interest among the medical men of this area. Dr. Edson Beebe, president of the Long Beach District, L. A. County Medical Assn., will be among many MDs present with their office assistants to hear him.

DR. ROSENOW

In medical offices emergencies arise causing interruptions, delay and inconveniences for the patients and medical assistant as well as the physician. Dr. Rosenow's talk will deal with methods of handling these as well as other inter-office problems. A social hour will precede the 7 p.m. dinner. Reservations are required and may be made through a member of the association with reservations chairman Ruth Buehmiller, Pat Laird or Mabel Ward.

Women Accountants

Long Beach Chapter 21 of the American Society of Women Accountants will conduct its annual public relations dinner meeting Wednesday in the Boulevard Room of the Lafayette Hotel at 7 p.m. Ann Murawski, president, will conduct. Speaker of the evening will be Kyle Z. Grainger Jr. who will discuss, "The Accountant's Role in Bankruptcies." Grainger is a member of a Los Angeles law firm which specializes in bankruptcy proceedings and is a member of the California Bar Assn.'s committee of relations of debtors and creditors.

Members of other clubs or individuals whose field is in accounting are invited to attend. Reservations may be made with Estelle Cannon, 2180 Pacific Ave.

Elderbloom Club

Elderbloom Club will meet at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the YWCA under direction of Myrtle Thompson, president, with Chatty Griffith serving as program chairman. Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Prest

Early Broadcasters Note Golden Year

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Prest, 4308 E. 4th St., both residents of Long Beach for more than 50 years, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary today with a reception at Assistance League Clubhouse, 394 Roswell Ave., from 2 until 4 p.m.

The Prests, who have fond (and some downright merry) memories of their long, happy life in this city, will recall today how they traveled to Los Angeles on Nov. 8, 1908, by the then modern transportation system, the electric railway, to be married in ceremonies conducted at the Christian Church by the Rev. J. N. Smith.

• • • •

THE GOLDENWEDS both are natives of Davenport, Iowa. Prest came to Long Beach to live in 1906. His bride-elect arrived here to make her home a few months prior to their marriage.

Prest founded the firm that developed the first radio equipment here, the Prest and Dean Radio Co. The company produced a variety of specialized equipment, including crystal radio sets. At that time the only thing on the air to listen to was the broadcasting of "private" telephone-radio conversations between Catalina and the mainland over Long Beach's first radio broadcasting station, KSS, located on Elm Ave. near Ocean Blvd., which was built and operated in 1911-1912 by Prest in advance of commercial broadcast stations as we now know them.

• • • •

MR. AND MRS. PREST are members of First Congregational Church. He is a 32nd degree Mason and member of El Rekal Shrine. She is a member of Searchlight Chapter, Order of Eastern Star; Merret Temple, Daughters of the Nile, and Loyalty Club of the Scots.

Present at the reception today will be Prest's sister, Mrs. Frank Johnson of San Fernando, who was matron of honor at the 1908 rite. Assisting as the goldenweds receive more than 150 close friends, many of them prominent early-day residents of Long Beach like themselves, will be Mmes. A. D. Mitchell, Orla Feugh, Walter Brown, William Courtlour, Walter Hoffman, W. E. Lee, Chester Compton, Clifford Miller, Vern Dyer, Clyde Slipper and Dean Bottorff.

MOLLY MAYFIELD

You Make Up the Loss!

DEAR MOLLY:

A few months ago my boy friend and I exchanged class rings. He still has mine, but his was stolen from me last week.

Someone took my check at the swimming pool and checked out all my belongings. I know I'll never get it back and I couldn't feel worse about it.

I tried to give him the $22.50 to buy another ring as it was my responsibility. He says he gave it to me, and if it's lost he should give me another. He says if I pay him, the new ring is not really from him because I would be buying it myself. He won't take the money.

In your opinion, who should pay?—BABS.

DEAR BABS:

First, turn every stone to find that ring. Someone may find that thief.

If it doesn't turn up, then purchase another ring and have his initials engraved on it. Wear it as before until it is replaced by an engagement ring—or until your class ring is returned.—M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I'd like to get a serviceman's opinion on this as well as your own.

Is it wrong for a girl to say hello to a serviceman while they are waiting for a bus—or would he think she was trying to pick him up, or was a "fast one."

I ask this because I often sit for such a long time waiting for a bus after work, and there are servicemen sitting there. So often they look as lonely as I feel, and look as though they'd like to start a conversation but are afraid to because maybe a girl would think they were being fresh.

I often wish I had the courage to ask the time of day or say something trivial. Who knows I might meet someone from my home town?

But instead we just sit in strained silence. What do you think?

SOMEONE ALONE.

DEAR SOMEONE ALONE:

I imagine there is many a serviceman who would be delighted to pass the time of day while you're waiting for the bus. I see no reason why you shouldn't venture a casual remark, wentherwise, how late the bus is, what time please, or some such.

If the conversation comes to a quick end, then that's that, but what is lost?—M.M.

Defense Too Much, Expert Just Overbid

The unlucky expert staggered toward the window. For a moment I thought he was going to jump, but it turned out that all he needed was fresh air to give him breath to tell his latest sad story.

He said, "I know I bid too much, but look at the defense they gave me.

"West opened the five of trumps and East won with the king. He returned the queen of clubs. I won in dummy and led a diamond to my ace and nonchalantly returned the nine spot. West went into a short trance and eventually produced the king. I ruffed in dummy; discarded my losing spade on the second high club; came back to my hand with the ace of spades; led the jack of diamonds and discarded from dummy.

• • • •

"EAST WON with the queen and led a club. I ruffed, but west was also out of clubs and overruffed with the ten to set me."

As usual, the unlucky expert had been the victim of inspired play. Without a trump opening he would have been able to ruff out all his three losing diamonds and wind up losing three trump tricks only. Without the king of diamonds play on the second diamond lead he could have let East take his queen before he would have a chance to give his partner the club overruff.

Nevertheless, the unlucky expert had bid too much and really was lucky to find a dummy that would give him any sort of play for his contract.

Martin A. Nishkian

Chef of the Week

Nishkian Engineers Dandy Rice Pilaff

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I. P-T Food Editor

Where he goes, there go his fiddle and his cigar. Strictly for relaxation, we assure you . . . for vocationwise, today's Chef of the Week, Martin A. Nishkian, is a consulting engineer, designer and constructor.

That covers a lot, too, and says plenty; for he signs the paychecks as owner of the Manco Construction Co., the Manco Oil, the Manco Productions and the Manespro Refining Co. You see, the first letters of each, M.A.N., are his initials.

To give you an idea of his profound interests, he presently is designing the new 3,000-gallon gas holder and compressor station; and to mention a few of his past endeavors he executed a 200-million-dollar undertaking for the Bureau of Yards and Docks, and recently completed a five-million-dollar project for the central refining and heating plant in the Civic Center, Los Angeles.

Nishkian is a native, and way, way back, too, for his father and five brothers were among the original settlers in Fresno in 1882. His dad was born in Armenia and his mother in Paris. They first met when she was a child in France, then after his dad had become established in Fresno, he returned to France and made her his bride.

• • • •

NISHKIAN completed his grammar school education in San Francisco, took his degrees in each civil, mechanical and chemical engineering from U.C., Berkeley, and did some postgraduate work at Stanford. He has since put all his degrees to work.

He also "engineered" in other fields, too . . . for while earning these degrees, he "slung hash" in the George Mardikian Restaurant, San Francisco, for a year, played both violin and tenor banjo with Anson Week's orchestra, and fulfilled an engagement in Peacock Court on Top-of-the-Mark. With his own band, Nishkian went around the world on the Dollar Line.

Following a period during which he worked for the American Bridge Co. in the bay area, he came to Long Beach in 1935 and joined the Frank Vessels Oil Field Construction Co. He eventually became its chief engineer and vice president. In 1948, he started his own business.

He also owns one-third interest in the MAN Stables. His horses presently are at Del Mar and Bay Meadows. He has a very peculiar system of betting, too, which seldom, if ever, fails. One day he might choose numbers 3, 5 and 7, and the next day bet on 4, 6, and 8. Why? . . . He doesn't know, but he usually wins.

A downtown Optimist, it was he who originated the Optimist's 500 Club, the YMCA Camp at Camp Oaks. He also holds membership in the Long Beach Petroleum and Pacific Coast Clubs, and in the Los Angeles Athletic, the Riviera, the Kona Kai and the San Diego Clubs.

• • • •

FISHING AND swimming mean much to him, and he never misses a morning, the year round, taking a swim in his own pool. Nor is he ever too busy to pal with the young Nishkians, Sandra, a student at USC; Barbara, at Wilson High, and Michael at Will Rogers Junior High.

Our "chef" really doesn't have enough time to do much puttering around home, but he does occasionally whip-up a rice pilaff, Armenian style. It's the only recipe he'll undertake, and the companion to his favorite dish, shish kebab.

RICE PILAFF
Armenian Style

2 cups white, long grain rice
1 cube butter
½ cup vermicelli
2 tblsp. Crisco
1 tblsp. salt
¼ tsp. black pepper
4½ cups boiling water

Brown the vermicelli in the Crisco, then add the cube of butter. Next add the rice and mix thoroughly, then add the boiling water, salt and pepper. Bring to boil, and turn heat very low. Cook with lid on for about 35 min. Stir lightly before serving. Serves 6-8.

Are Face Creams Over-rated

By HELEN PORTER FRENCH

As a beauty consultant for more years than I care to admit, I've seen and tried almost every type of face cream imaginable . . . vitamin creams, hormone creams, medicated creams, queen bee jelly creams, and on and on. Most of these creams have two things in common: the tricky or catch-phrase ingredient which is played up through advertising; and a greasy ingredient which coats the outer surface of the skin to give the appearance of smoothness.

Helen P. French

If you are one of those fortunate women with a naturally radiant complexion and no skin problems, you probably don't need or use a face cream. If you're like me with a tendency toward dry skin and its resulting premature lines and wrinkles, you've probably found that almost any cream will do some good, but you've never been really satisfied.

Recently, I was asked to try a new face cream which, as usual, contained a unique ingredient. With tongue in cheek, I listened to the research director who developed this cream tell me about it. To my surprise, he backed his story up with scientific medical proof, not by wild advertising claims. And, I was familiar with the cream's basic ingredients, having read about them in various articles praising their benefits to the skin. You probably have heard of them, too . . . essential polyunsaturates, which are natural elements found in young, healthy skin.

He went on to say that although scientists had known of the value of these essential polyunsaturates for many years, they had been unable to put them into cream form because they turned rancid. Finally, his research staff discovered how to "stabilize" them in a greaseless cream which actually supplies the essential polyunsaturates to the skin.

To make a long story short, I have been using this cream for over a month now and am wild about it. My skin looks and feels healthier, finer textured, more resilient, and alive. Excessive dryness and unnatural lines disappeared after the first few days. My complexion looks fresher and brighter, my pores seem finer, and my skin is clearer, smoother and healthier looking than it has been in years. On the theory that actual use is the best way to demonstrate a new product, I asked the makers of this cream to make a trial size available (Prince Matchabelli makes it; it's called Polyderm Compensating Cream and is sold in two sizes, $2.00 and $3.50, at leading department and drug stores). They agreed and now you can get a five-day trial size jar by sending 25c and your name and address to Polyderm, c/o Prince Matchabelli, Dept. 302, P. O. Box 90, Mount Vernon 10, N. Y.

Why Grow Old?

Try These Leg Actions for Upper-Thigh Bulge

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

A letter before me requests that I print several of the exercises which I have found to be best for the bulge at the upper-outer thigh. This is an almost universal feminine figure fault and is often seen even in very young women.

The reader says, "I know there are a lot of them but I want to concentrate on just two or three which you have found in your classes to be most effective."

1. Stand with the left side toward the wall and the finger of the left hand touching the wall for balance. Lift the right leg sideward-upward (not forward). Now swing the right leg down and across the body. Again lift the leg sideward-upward and swing across in front of the body. Continue with a smooth, rhythmic swing, lifting the leg as high to the side as comfortable. After a while turn the right side toward the wall and swing the left leg.

2. Lie on the floor on your back with your arms resting on the floor. Raise your left leg and make large circles with it, keeping the knees stiff. After a while circle with the right leg. Make the circles as large as you can. Circle first in one direction and then the other. (These two exercises are corrective to a flabby inner leg line also.)

3. Lie on the floor on your back with your arms extending out from the shoulder pits. Keep the body on the floor as you roll from side to side, as far in each direction as you can. Cling to the floor with the fingertips and keep the legs straight.

• • • •

IF HIPS are your problem and you would like to have my tested exercises which will reduce the hip measurement, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 3. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Dental Unit Dinner Meet Set Monday

Woman's Auxiliary of Harbor District Dental Society will stage its first dinner meeting of the season at 6:30 p.m. Monday in Assistance League Clubhouse.

Program feature will be a preview of the "Lil' Petey and the Space Ship" puppet show, an entertaining form of dental health education created by Milton Paddock and shown to Long Beach school children under joint sponsorship of the auxiliary and the Board of Education. The program has been planned by Hilda Donaldson.

• • • •

A BUSINESS meeting will follow with plans for the December White Christmas Ball, arranged by Martha Tylicki, ways and means chairman, to be announced. As an amusing accent to the group's fund-raising plans, a satire on "How Not to Act at the Dance" will be presented by dancers from the Arthur Murray Studio.

Construction is well under way on the $10,000,000 Memorial Hospital which is located near Atlantic Ave. and Columbia St. Bonds of $6,665,000 were voted in February 1956 for the hospital and private donations have made up the remainder of the approximate $10,000,000.—(Pacific Air Industries photo.)

Taxable Food Cost Increased

Changes in the cost-of-living indexes published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, U. S. Department of Labor, will result in a revised schedule of taxable valuation of meals furnished employes during 1959, H. W. Stewart, director of employment, announced.

Under the California Unemployment Insurance Code, meals furnished employes are wages and are taxable for unemployment insurance and disability insurance purposes. Stewart explained that unless meal values are stipulated in a union agreement or contract of hire, or established as a basis for compliance with minimum wage laws, the schedule established by Department of Employment regulation applies.

• • • •

THE REGULATION PROVIDES for modification of the 1948 standard schedule whenever the average of retail food prices during the first nine months of the year varies by 10 per cent or more from the average of prices during the same months of 1948.

The cost-of-living indexes show that the average retail prices of food in California cities from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30, 1958, were approximately 19 per cent above the same months for 1948.

Effective Jan. 1, 1959, the schedule will increase 5 cents a day if the employe takes either three meals a day; dinner only or in combination with either breakfast or lunch, or a meal not identifiable as either breakfast, lunch or dinner. The schedule will be as follows: three meals a day, $1.35; breakfast, 30 cents; lunch, 40 cents; dinner, 65 cents; a meal not identifiable as either breakfast, lunch or dinner, 50 cents.

Employers who have any questions about the taxing provisions of the California Unemployment Insurance Code are advised to contact the Long Beach Audit District Office at 1315 Pine Ave. or telephone HEmlock 2-4441.

ADVERTISING EXECUTIVES MARK MERGER DATE
John S. Sarver, J. Witzerman, John Curtis (left to right standing) and Gene Curtis (seated) mark the date when the advertising firms of Sarver and Witzerman and Patch and Curtis will merge to form Curtis, Sarver & Witzerman, Inc. It will be one of the largest advertising agencies in Southern Los Angeles and Orange Counties.

Sarver-Witzerman Merging With Patch-Curtis Ad Agency

Formation of a new advertising agency, the largest in southern Los Angeles and Orange counties, was announced today by Gene Curtis and John Curtis, owners of Patch & Curtis Advertising Agency, Inc., and John Sarver and Joseph Witzerman, partners in Sarver-Witzerman Advertising, Long Beach, Calif.

The four principals stated that the two agencies will merge, effective Dec. 1, under the name Curtis, Sarver & Witzerman, Inc.

The new agency will headquarter in its own modern, two-story office building at 3308 E. Broadway, Long Beach, and will maintain affiliated branch office service in 40 major cities throughout the United States, England, Sweden, Germany, Italy, Argentina and Japan.

• • • •

"THE PURPOSES of this merger are twofold: Increased service for clients and growth for the agency," the principals stated. "Our combined staffs and facilities will create a major new service for our clients."

The combined new agency has strong backgrounds in food, industrial, automotive, agricultural, recreational and professional association accounts. The new agency will concentrate heavily on accounts seeking complete advertising, marketing, public relations and sales promotion services.

A complete graphic department will work on still, television and motion picture films and other related services.

The four principals will act as an executive committee, with Gene Curtis as president and John Curtis, Joe Witzerman and John Sarver as vice-presidents in charge of various divisions.

The phone number for Curtis, Sarver & Witzerman, Inc., will be GEneva 3-4919.

Bank of America Here Mails $1,465,000 in Christmas Club

An active Christmas shopping season in Long Beach was indicated as R. E. Robbins, vice president and manager of Bank of America, announced that 12,867 Christmas Club checks totaling $1,465,207 are being mailed by Long Beach and Lakewood Branches to local residents.

This will be part of a statewide distribution of a record $65,500,000 in Christmas Club checks to 517,000 Californian, Robbins reported. Last year's figure was $62,000,000.

Distribution of Christmas Club checks is made in November to enable Club members to begin their holiday shopping early. These funds are also used as a source of ready cash for winter vacations, tax payments and end of the year expenses, the local banker said.

A DELEGATION of local savings association executives will attend the 68th annual convention of the California Savings and Loan League, Nov. 18, in San Francisco.

Local delegates include William J. Crowford, executive vice president, Belmont Savings; Charles Berry, president, and Avery Stewart, director, Equitable Savings.

• • • •

LIFE INSURANCE industry leaders from throughout Southern California will meet in Pasadena Nov. 12 for a day-long legislative workshop, sponsored by the California State Assn. of Life Underwriters. It will be moderated by the legislative committee vice chairman C. Carter Schnieder, Long Beach general agent for the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co.

According to Schnieder, local life underwriter association presidents and legislative committees from Bakersfield to San Diego and El Centro will attend the Pasadena session, held to build better understanding for California legislative processes.

A delegation of Long Beach underwriters will attend the session, which will be held at Eatons' Santa Anita.

New Income Units Built on Your Lot

The newest deluxe apartment design is the Las Vegas, offered by Minnick Construction Co. of Norwalk.

With the Las Vegas model you may pick your own income. A four-unit apartment, priced at $11,450, will bring a monthly income of $280; the eight-unit apartment, priced at $22,900, brings a monthly income of $520; and a sixteen-unit apartment ($45,800) brings a monthly income of $1,040, the company says.

These apartments are built on your lot, and the new trend in design avoids the "boxed-in" feeling which — according to firm executives — has boosted sales far in excess for those for a comparable period last year.

Minnick's office is at 16435 Pioneer Blvd., Norwalk.

Bernie Joins BJ Service

A. M. Birnie has been named vice-president and manager of sales for BJ Service, Inc., according to John B. Merritt, president and general manager of the Borg-Warner subsidiary here.

Effective immediately, Birnie will establish his offices at the Ft. Worth headquarters of BJ Service, Merritt said.

Since 1951 Birnie has been executive vice-president and general manager of Security Engineering Co., Dallas drilling tool manufacturer, where he was in charge of all field operations.

"Appointment of a man of Birnie's broad and comprehensive background in the oil industry to the post of BJ Service vice-president and manager of sales is another forward step in our program of expanding our advanced services to the oil industry," Merritt said.

ERIC SUTTON
To Discuss Selling Pitfalls

Eric Sutton Is Realty Speaker

Larry D. Miller, president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, announced that Mel Mould, program chairman for November, has engaged Eric Sutton of the Dale Carnegie Courses as the Tuesday morning "Early-Bird" Breakfast speaker at the Lafayette Hotel.

Sutton is executive director of the Dale Carnegie Courses in the greater Long Beach area. The program Tuesday will be based on "The Five Pitfalls to Look Out For in Selling". Sutton will be aided in his presentation by his associate Tom B. Conerly Jr.

YOUR CAR AND THE LAW

State Keeps Tab on How You Drive Car

By Dept. of Motor Vehicles

If you are licensed to drive in California, you have a record on file in Sacramento. A driving record grows, however, only by reports of traffic law violations submitted to Department of Motor Vehicles by the courts of the State.

Court reports of traffic offenses are filed behind the driver's application form at DMV headquarters. Everytime one is added to the file, the record is scanned to determine whether it needs official attention under the State's Driver Improvement Program, the post-licensing controls provided under due process of law.

• • • •

IN THE EARLY stages of accumulating a record, a driver may hear from DMV by means of a warning letter. This is sent to put the driver on notice that he is likely to became a "negligent operator," subject to license suspension, or that his record may even require revocation of his driving privilege, if the record keeps on growing.

The letters are intended to be constructive. Driver improvement analysts constantly checking records report that a warning is often enough to persuade a driver developing careless habits to check himself, and avoid further traffic offenses. In 1957, 159,502 such letters were sent out from Sacramento.

• • • •

HERE'S A FEW quotes from some of the different letters that may be sent:

"On checking your driving record, we find that on several occasions you have violated the traffic laws. We urge you to give your driving habits your serious consideration and hope that you will endeavor to maintain a clear record for your own protection . . . as well as that of other highway users. . . ."

Or here's a quote from one sent to more "advanced" cases.

"In the interest of your own safety, as well as that of others, you should drive more carefully and safely. In doing this, you may also prevent the suspension or revocation of your own driving privilege."

Or this one:

". . . On several occasions you have violated the traffic laws. . . . This matter is called to your attention as it may be necessary to take action leading to the suspension or revocation of your driving privilege if your record continues to indicate that you drive in a negligent or unsafe manner."

• • • •

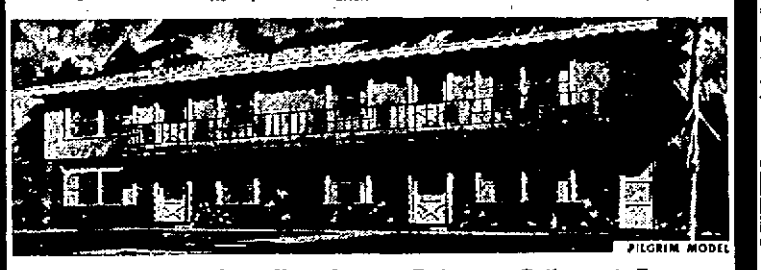

SPECIAL LETTERS are sent to offenders against the law prohibiting drunk driving. If a court has ordered only a minimum penalty upon an offender, DMV sends him full information as to what happens to repeaters. Very few people get into drunk driving trouble these days ignorant of the State actions that must be be taken in the case of repeat offenses against this law.

DMV seeks to make a real contribution to driver improvement by warning drivers with records of traffic law offenses that persisting in their course will lead to loss of their driving privileges.

LANDSCAPING PROVIDED

Planned community living is available at Pageant Homes, the luxury development that features unique and functional garden landscaping.

Pageant Homes Provide Garden Area for Outdoor Enjoyment

Courtland Paul, A. I. L. A. lends a master touch of exterior-designing talent to the new Pageant Homes models, developing a new garden area in the homes that presents outdoor living on spacious homesites.

The garden area is shaded with plants and used functionally to create new dimensions in California living. Homebuyers who are interested in the intricacies of landscape and gardening problems will find a study of the Pageant Homes sales models exteriors quite helpful.

Only minutes from Long Beach, and Los Angeles, adjacent to major beach cities of the Southland, and part of a $4,000,000 planned community, Pageant Homes are priced from $14,000, and may be purchased on FHA terms with as little as $500 down, or veteran terms of 2 per cent down, plus costs and impounds.

ACCORDING to Bill Schulz of the McCarthy Co., sales agents, Pageant Homes are being sold on a special "48 hour" trade-in plan that could eliminate down payment. This means that when the buyer trades in his old home for a new Pageant Home, the equity from his previous home may even entitle him to a return of cash.

Schools and modern shopping facilities are within walking distance of this community of 250 homes. The outstanding interior features include: real wood-burning fireplaces, select oak hardwood floors, expensive Vinyl flooring, oversize mirrors, pullman lavatory, colored baths fixtures, large stall showers, and extra electric heater in the bathroom.

From Los Angeles, the model homes with their unusual functional garden plans are within easy access. Take the Santa Ana Freeway to Grand Ave. and follow Hwy. 39 to the homes just south of Chapman.

From Long Beach, see Pageant Homes by driving east on 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Stanton Blvd. (Hwy. 39), then left to Chapman and the models.

Rainier Homes Selling Fast

Sales activity is continuing at a rapid pace in Anaheim where Rainier Homes, 3 and 4-bedroom, family room and two-bath dwellings, are being purchased by families who value superior construction, location and quality in their homes, according to a spokesman for the development. The spacious homes are available to both vets and non-vets on new FHA financing.

The convenience, beauty and efficiency of built-in all-electric kitchens by Westinghouse receive high praise from buyers who appreciate built-in ovens and ranges, automatic dishwashers, garbage disposals, exhaust fans and ventilating hoods. Dining or serving peninsulas are Formica-topped and there are natural finish alderwood cabinets with raised panels. Optional equipment includes built-in Westinghouse refrigerator-freezers.

LIVING ROOMS are visually expanded by sliding glass doors overlooking patio areas on the extra-wide estate-size lots. There are brick fireplaces, entry halls, genuine lath and plaster, sliding wardrobe doors, walk-in linen closets, front and side landscaping, hardwood floors, cement drives and walks.

Pullman lavatories are topped with imported Italian marble, a beauty as well as a practical feature. There are stall showers and tub areas are ceramic tiled. Optional equipment available includes complete hi-fi music systems with AM-FM and four-speed record changer, custom designed patios and swimming pools, all of which are contracted for before construction to be ready at occupancy.

New schools and churches of all denominations are nearby, and the homes are within five minutes of the mammoth Broadway Shopping Center, as well as other metropolitan centers. Recreational areas are close, with Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm, beaches, mountains, resorts, golf courses, parks and playgrounds easily accessible.

Priced from $18,640, Rainier Homes are on Broadway between Brookhurst and Euclid, reached from Long Beach by driving out Carson (Lincoln Ave.) to Brookhurst; south on Brookhurst to Broadway and east to models.

Tiny Stream of Gasoline Is Powerful

Take a gallon of gas, stretch it over 15 miles, and you'll get a thin little thread about the diameter of a hair from a horse's tail.

Put that same gallon of gas into the tank of your 3,000 pound car, load yourself and your family into the car, and that gallon of gas will carry you for 15 miles with the greatest of ease.

That, points out the National Automobile Club, is how much power the petroleum people have built into that explosive little thread.

Gracious Living Is Key to Bellehurst

Recent purchasers of homes in the fabulous Bellehurst development are singing the praises of their new surroundings and wondering why they waited so long to make the move, according to salesmen for the country club community.

Newcomers are constantly amazed at the thought and planning which has gone into the area to provide every possible facility for gracious living, they add.

Bellehurst completely surrounds the Los Coyotes Country Club, scene of many tournaments and social affairs. Next on the schedule of top events is the World Entertainment Gold Tournament featuring practically every big name in the entertainment world.

Along with the golf facilities, there is the giant $300,000 recreation center with three swimming pools, tennis and badminton courts and the complete teenage center. Combine the above with the distinct styling and design of the modern Bellehurst homes and it is easy to understand why prospective home buyers are swamping Bellehurst each weekend.

The homes range in price from $28,770 to $49,500 and many are completely landscaped, carpeted and draped.

Under the Bellehurst "Trust Plan" qualified families may purchase the home of their choice with no down payment, and live there forever without paying one penny on the principal, just taxes and interest. Bellehurst is located one mile north of the Santa Ana Freeway on Hwy 39.

Wrought Iron Is Improved

NEW YORK—Wrought iron, a metal in use for centuries, has donned a new competitive dress and gives indication that it may well become the belle of the industry.

Steelways, official publication of American Iron and Steel Institute, says wrought iron, long identified with metal furniture and ornate grillwork, has emerged as a vital metal due to a new production process that has given it more resistance to corrosion, more defenses against fatigue and better electrical properties.

AFTER YOU KNOCK ON THE WALLS, WHAT'S THE NEXT THING TO LOOK FOR IN BUYING A HOME?

The wise home buyer will look at a map, too. He knows that the farther he has to drive to his home, the less the value of house and lot is likely to be. The more precious time lost in getting there, too. We at WINDSOR GREENS are welcoming more and more professional and business men who happily endorse today's trend to close-in location. It's only eight minutes from downtown Long Beach to WINDSOR GREENS (and the first tee at the golf course next door).

They're moving to WINDSOR GREENS for another reason, also. Prestige environment. This has nothing to do with being snooty. It's simply a matter of family respect and neighborhood pride. WINDSOR GREENS environment is a priceless advantage to give your children.

And only WINDSOR GREENS, of all homes in and around Long Beach, offers one further advantage—solid investment value. Each of our elegant models has been priced at least $2,000 under current market appraisal. Each home is on a site valued by appraisers at $10,000, for the lot alone. There just isn't another opportunity to buy such a quality home in a location of constantly rising land value. Chances are you'll never want to sell your lovely WINDSOR GREENS home, but it's nice to know a good profit awaits you if you do.

Some Choice Homes Are Back on Market

IN NORWALK VILLAGE

A select but limited group of attractively styled, California ranch-type residences are now available at Norwalk Village, S. & S. Construction Co.'s community in Norwalk. Homes offer a choice of large-family homes with three bedrooms and two baths or two bedrooms, a den and one bath. Here is one model.

Due to credit rejections, there is now a choice but limited selection of the attractively styled, large family residences available in Norwalk Village. Veterans' terms of nothing down, except the usual impounds and closing costs are available, according to David Shapell, vice president of S. & S. Construction Co., builder-developers of this Norwalk community.

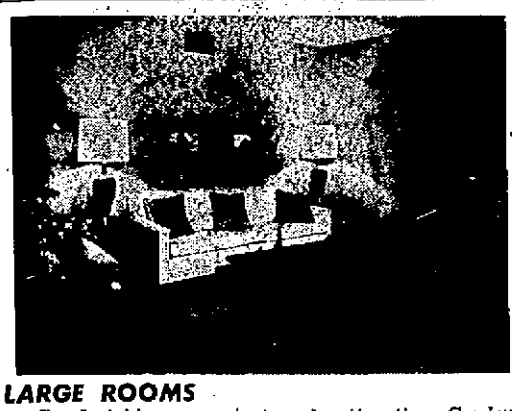

Homes are fully priced from just $14,800, Shapell explained, and the 29th-year VA loans require just 4¾ per cent interest and monthly payments as low as $77.50, include both principal and interest. In addition to the GI terms, he said, there is also favorable non-veteran financing.

OVER 2,000 of these homes have already been sold in this current unit and the other previous units, a large percentage of which were sold even before the homes were completed, it was pointed out.

Kitchen are all equipped with sink-installed disposer, natural ash cabinets, Formica counter tops with coved back, splash and rolled edges and a convenient built-in, upholstered breakfast nook that doubles, handily, as a kitchen planning desk.

LIVING-DINING areas are spacious and there is a choice of front or rear living rooms.

To visit the furnished models, from the Long Beach areas, drive to Rosecrans and then right on Rosecrans to the development.

LARGE ROOMS

Comfortable, convenient and attractive Garden Grove Sunshine Homes feature three bedrooms, two full baths and large family rooms with adjoining kitchens. All rooms are large, as shown here, and the homes, built by S. V. Hunsaker & Sons, are designed for growing families.

Spacious Sunshine Home on $195 Down

Spacious, 3-bedroom, 2-bath homes with large family rooms adjoining the kitchens are featured in the new Garden Grove Sunshine Homes development, located on Taft St. and Woodbury Rd., just north of Westminster Ave.

Attractively styled homes are designed by Ramberg & Lowrey, A.I.A. architechts.

Forced air heat, separate stall showers, lifetime copper plumbing, sliding glass doors, and Rusco steel sliding windows are some of the fine features listed by Stan Rossi, sales manager. Kitchens, displaying the 1959 models of Norge refrigerator, range, and automatic washer, feature cedar cabinets, Formica sink decks, Vinyl tile, and garbage disposal.

Garden Grove Sunshine Homes can be purchased on easy terms of $195 down and monthly payments less than average rent, according to builders, S. V. Hunsaker & Sons.

Data Collection Forum Panel Members Selected

Panel members for the data processing forum to be conducted by the Long Beach Chapter of the National Assn. of Accountants at the Lafayette Hotel from 2:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Nov. 20, were announced by the forum director, Glenn D. Hargis, coast manager at Harvey Aluminum, Inc., Torrance.

Hargis points out the need for more emphasis in planning, origination, and revising business forms suitable for efficient and reliable data processing applications.

"This is the field of data collection," Hargis stated, "and is for the most part given little attention in general discussions of business automation whereas the "hardware" with its fabulous speeds and capacities becomes the central attraction and focal point of interest. Our program is planned to give emphasis to the problem areas of data collection and indicate solutions necessarily developed coincidently with the advent of business automation."

• • • •

PANEL MEMBERS selected and topics scheduled for discussion are:

Data Integration; A. Lockwood, systems manager, Harvey Aluminum, Inc., Torrance.

Accounts Payable (vendor relationships); Ted Jenkyns, data processing supervisor, Western Gear, Corp., Lynwood and Gilbert Mohr, electronic data processing representative, IBM Corp., Long Beach.

Accounts Receivable (customer relationships); William Lawson, systems manager, Earle M. Jorgensen Co., Lynwood and Lawrence Richards, comptroller, National Metal and Steel Corp., Terminal Island.

Labor Distribution and Payroll (employe relationships); Martin Wheelock, data processing supervisor, Douglas Aircraft Co., Long Beach and William Finley, chief timekeeper, Harvey Aluminum, Torrance.

Moderating question and answer periods during the 6-hour Forum will be NAA members: Peter LePage, asst. professor of accounting, Long Beach State College; George R. Martin, chief accountant, Grayson Controls Division, Robertshaw Fulton Co., Long Beach and Frank N. Eklund, cost and profit analyst, Harvey Aluminum, Inc., Torrance.

His Dreamboat Built for River

KANKAKEE, Ill. (AP) — Cabinetmaker Edward (Ted) James is completing his lifelong dream —his own river houseboat.

James' boat is 8 feet wide and 22½ feet long. He has named it the "Waw-be-wawa," meaning snow goose, from Longfellow's "Hiawatha."

He started the hull during his vacation a year ago and prefabricated the cabin interior in seven-foot sections in his workshop during the winter.

Gate Crashers

ALPENA, Mich. (AP) — Authorities cracked down on an unusual kind of smuggling here. A man with an outboard motorboat was taking passengers upriver past a fairgrounds fence, depositing them inside for half the price of admission at the gate.

Check Steering as Safety Step

Be safe at all times!

And one important safety step is a mechanically perfect car.

You should have the steering mechanism on your car checked occasionally to see that it's in good condition and the wheel alignment correct.

Orangewood Homes Opening in Anaheim

Grand opening festivities will be observed today in Anaheim when Orangewood Homes will be toured by prospective buyers. Illustrating the many features of the spacious dwellings are models located at Orangewood and Haster. The 3-bedroom, bath-and-a-half homes are priced from $13,500 and available on FHA terms from $450 down, plus costs.

Bonus feature of some of the homes are full extra storage rooms, adaptable to many uses, including hobby, recreation or work rooms. In addition, the dwellings have full 2-car garages, contemporary or provincial architectural design, concrete sidewalks, curbs and gutters, fenced rear yards, weatherstripping, steel casement windows, and there is direct access to the home from the garage in models with attached garages.

Buford, Maudlin Sparkle

By DAVE LEWIS

LOS ANGELES COLISEUM—Picking up momentum as the season progresses, the SC Trojans rolled to their third victory in a row here Saturday with a 21-6 conquest of the Washington Huskies to keep alive a mathematical chance for the Rose Bowl bid.

A slim crowd of only 32,987 fans saw the Trojans pound their way 73 yards to a touchdown on the game's first offensive series; shake off a bit of adversity a few moments later, as a result of a fumble, and then move steadily ahead to their fourth conference victory against two defeats.

Troy pulled out to a 14-0 halftime lead and boosted it to 21-0 in the third period before yielding the lone touchdown to the Huskies.

Spotty offensive work kept the Trojans from rolling up an even higher point total, but there was no need for more than the first touchdown and PAT when Troy's defense turned in one of its most effective performances of the season.

Washington mounted only two serious scoring threats—failing on the first in the initial quarter when trailing only 7-0, and finally cashing in on the second in the waning moments of the third period when lagging by three touchdowns.

THE ALERT Trojan defense shook off the Huskies' lone scoring threat of the first half midway in the opening quarter after Don Buford fumbled attempting to make a fair catch of a punt on the SC 23.

Washington moved to the seven-yard line before Buford popped up to intercept Bobby Hivner's pass in the end zone and run it out to the eight.

The Huskies finally moved 69 yards for their only score late in the third period, and outside of these two situations, they were unable to get inside Troy's 46 until the final 4½ minutes when they reached the 32 before Tom Maudlin's interception broke up the advance.

The Trojans lost little time in getting their first seven points on the scoreboard—enough to seal the victory.

They moved 74 yards in 10 plays after the opening kickoff on the strength of Maudlin's 33-yard romp over left tackle followed by 13 and 7-yard sweeps by Buford to set the stage for fullback Clark Holden's two-yard plunge off right guard for the tally at 5:32.

★ ★ ★ ★

LITTLE Don Zachik, Troy's 145-pound sophomore place-kicking specialist from New Jersey, booted the first of his three extra points to make it 7-0.

After holding off the Huskies when Buford fumbled a few moments later, SC rolled 72 yards in 14 plays for its second touchdown, which came at 5:53 of the second quarter.

SC actually was forced to punt from its 34 after a holding penalty, but retained the ball on the scoring drive when Husky end Stan Chapple ran into the kicker—Marlin McKeever—and the resulting pen-

Cal on Inside Track to Bowl

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH

MEMORIAL STADIUM, Berkeley—The sweet smell of roses wafted over this giant football stadium in Strawberry Canyon here Saturday afternoon as the Golden Bears of California struggled to a surprisingly difficult 20-17 triumph over UCLA and zipped into the top spot as the West Coast's representative at Pasadena Jan. 1.

The two-touchdown underdog Bruins shocked the assemblage of 50,000 by racking up three points before California even touched the ball, then further stunned the audience by threatening to win it all in the final quarter.

UCLA might have sacked the game for keeps midway in the fourth quarter except for a strange bit of strategy. With the Bears in front, 14-9, UCLA drove to California's 22-yard line on sensational running plays featuring third-string wingback John Davis and fullback Ray Smith. Then with fourth down on the 22, UCLA elected to take to the air and tailback Skip Smith passed incomplete.

The Bears then tied up their prize parcel in blue-and-gold ribbons by rolling 78 yards in 12 plays for a third touchdown and putting themselves too far out of reach for the Westwooders to overhaul.

UCLA opened the contest in surprising fashion by moving the ball 73 yards after the initial kickoff in 13 plays, scoring when No. 2 tailback Kirk Wilson ripped through a 13-yard field goal. Bruin fans were praying that history would repeat itself at this juncture as UCLA had shaded Cal, 16-14, last year by the margin of this same Wilson's field goal. Incidentally, Kirk's 1957 three-pointer was the last field goal kicked against the Bears.

Cal failed to capitalize on two breaks in the second quarter. The first came when UCLA's Marv Luster fumbled and soph end Tom Bates from La Habra recovered for the Bears on the Bruins' 35. The recovery was the 11th this season for Bates, surely a record of some sort.

On the very next play, Cal fullback Walt Arnold fumbled right back and Glen Almquist recovered for UCLA.

Then, three plays later, Wilson attempted a quick kick, but the onrushing Bears shoved a Bruin defender, Gene Gaines, into the ball's path and the blocked pigskin rolled around the UCLA 20-yard marker. Wilson recovered the ball to end this immediate threat, but the Berkeley Bears weren't to be denied much longer.

After Wilson kicked out on the next play, Cal marched 54 yards in nine fast plays to register its first points of the afternoon. Left half Grover Garvin set up the score with bursts of 23 and 10 yards, but Arnold nailed down the TD with three straight line smashes from the 11-yard point. The clincher was a one-yard crack over left guard.

Cal's lead zoomed to 8-3

TROY 'SLOWED DOWN'

SC Line, Buford Draw Praise From Owens and Clark

By ROSS NEWHAN

Tiny halfback Don Buford and a hard-charging Southern California line drew most of the praise from both SC coach Don Clark and Washington coach Jim Owens following the Trojans' 21-6 victory over the Huskies at the Coliseum Saturday—a win that kept SC's Rose Bowl hopes alive.

Buford, who was brilliant against Stanford last week, sparked SC to a great first half performance Saturday and kept the Trojans together in the second half when they seemed to lose some of their desire.

"We played just about as well in the first half as we've played all season," said Clark. "However, we lost our continuity in the second half and the kids, I think, slowed down so as not to make any errors and preserve the win."

• • • •

CLARK TERMED Washington as aggressive a team as the Trojans have met all season. "They hit viciously," stated Clark, "and never gave up."

Asked why he thought Buford had suddenly become such an outstanding runner, Clark said, "We've discovered that Buford is most effective in spot situations. Because of his size (Buford is 5-5 and weighs 154) he takes a severe pounding and can't play for any length of time, that's why we alternate him with Coia.

"Buford also has gained a great deal of confidence," continued Clark, "he knows he no longer has to carry the whole load."

Clark also singled out the play of his line in the first half, "especially Luther Hayes," and said quarterback Tom Maudlin kept the Washington defense honest with a keeper play that accounted for huge chunks of yardage each time he used it.

"Maudlin is coming along real well," said Clark. "It's fortunate he played such a good game because Wood (first string quarterback Willie Wood) couldn't have played at all." Wood is plagued with a shoulder injury which fails to respond to treatment.

FRESNO—Fresno State College struck for two touchdowns in the first six minutes of the third quarter to subdue Long Beach State, 22-6, before 1,000 fans here Saturday night.

The Fresno surge actually began with 1:35 left in the first half when halfback Dale Messer raced 49 yards for the Bulldogs' first touchdown to tie the score at 6-6.

But the Long Beach dike broke wide open in the second half, and a fairly good 49er performance before and after ended in their third straight and sixth defeat of the season against two wins.

Messer was the sparkler for Fresno, which clinched at least a tie for the CCAA title. His fleet excursions around Long Beach's slow ends resulted in two touchdowns and led to the third.

Larry Manly was the whole offensive show for the 49ers with a strong running and an amazing string of punts for 44, 49, 47, 49, 38 and 54 yards. He also took over at quarterback when Jerry Nicholson was forced out of the game in the third quarter.

Long Beach scored its touchdown on its second play from scrimmage on a 57-yard pass-run from Nicholson to flanker back Don Radford, who caught the ball over his shoulder on the Fresno 32 and streaked into the end zone untouched.

It was by far the 49ers' longest touchdown play of the season.

OREGON WINS ON SOGGY TURF

Stanford Duck Soup as Webfoots Find Offense

EUGENE Ore. (UPI)—Oregon's Webfoots finally found a scoring punch Saturday and defeated Stanford, 12-0, on soggy Hayward Field before a slim turnout of 12,500 in a regionally-televised Pacific Coast Conference football game.

After a rainy first half which saw neither team threaten seriously, Oregon put together scoring drives of 64 and 85 yards in the final 30 minutes. Quarterback Dave Grosz and fullback Marlan Holland scored the touchdowns on 1-yard plunges.

Stanford, which found its ground game stopped by the tough Oregon defense and the wet turf, took to the air when the rain stopped, and gave Oregon a bad time. With quarterback Bob Nicolet completing 10 out of 13 passes, Stanford threatened seriously to score but costly fumbles spoiled its chances.

* * * *

STANFORD DROVE to the Oregon 10 late in the third period but a fourth-down pass from Nicolet was dropped by Doug Dick on the two.

The Indians got another big chance in the final quarter after guard Bob Peterson recovered a fumble by Oregon's Willie West on the Webfoot 33. Nicolet passed to Irv Nikolai on the 15 but he fumbled the ball and tackle Jim Linden recovered for Oregon.

That's when Oregon launched an 85-yard march to score the clinching touchdown. The running of Grosz and West and a 21-yard pass from Grosz to end Pete Welch led the drive.

* * * *

GROSZ LED the march to the first Oregon touchdown, passing for 24 yards and running for 31 yards.

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH

BERKELEY—One of the alltime heroes in Strawberry Canyon here is a gentleman well-known in Long Beach's better supper clubs along E. Broadway, John Olszewski. Along about 1951, Olszewski was THE campus hero . . . the Joe Kapp of that period.

Johnny, now with the pro Washington Redskins, wasn't the only big campus man at Berkeley in those days, however. Another youngster, fellow named Les Richter, who is engaged in some business in Southern California these days, also was on the Bear campus.

Yet, Johnny-O was the chap with all the color.

"There was more excitement revolving around Johnny than any Cal players since the 1937-38 era of Vic Bottari-Perry Schwartz-Sam Chapman-Bob Herwig," one gentleman of the press here confided to me. "Even the way he got his monicker, Johnny-O, was a cause celebre."

The man went on to explain:

"Everybody claimed he thought of the tag, although I don't know that he didn't actually get it when he was playing with your St. Anthony team in Long Beach. Anyway, people around here figured a gal actually hung the 'Johnny-O' tag around Olszewski.

"She wasn't a student. She worked on the campus and was an ardent football fan. She was a department secretary and since all the players had to enroll for her department's courses, she came to know most of them—and to like them.

"Why, I remember a senior on that 1951 club that she knocked herself out for. She made darned sure he got straightened out academically to stay eligible, believe me.

"Anyway, she was married and didn't have a coed's crush on kids like Olszewski. She thought Johnny was 'sweet,' that another of your Long Beach kids, Billy Mais, looked like an angel, and that still another player from your city, Johnny Peterson, had nice table manners, and so on.

"Well, one day Olszewski came into her office and the radio there was playing a tune that was pretty popular around the campus then, Wee Bonnie Baker's 'Oh, Johnny!' so the secretary wheeled around and giggled, 'That's what we should call you, Johnny-Oh.'

"The name caught on around here like wildfire and look how it stuck. The Redskins even have a big 'O' on Johnny's back as his number today!"

ANOTHER REPORTER who has been on the Cal scene too many years than he likes to remember, dug into his briefcase and came up with a parody on the "Oh, Johnny!" tune that was hummed on campus in 1951-52. It went like this:

"Oh Johnny, Oh Johnny, Oh Johnny O.
"Oh, Johnny, Oh Johnny, how you can go!
"You are the answer to our prayer.
"And Pappy's biggest little Bear.
"And we love you—yes, we love you!

"Oh Johnny, Oh Johnny, Oh Johnny O.
"You're Mister Touchdown, U.S.A.
"Though no Rose Bowl this year,
"We'll take egg in our beer.
"And Oh Johnny, Oh Johnny, Oh, Oh!"

Did it catch on? I don't know . . . but, remember, the words of a song sound real flat in print sometimes. When they're sung, that's different!

FOOTBALL PEOPLE at California are most unhappy with the so-called "Voice of the West" here, the San Francisco Chronicle. Seems the newspaper racked up the Bears in a brutal editorial. Glancing at it Saturday, I noted that the paper didn't do a bad job on ripping apart SC and UCLA, either. Here's a few excerpts:

"Football fans who throng into Berkeley Stadium will be witnessing the obituary of the Pacific Coast Conference. The conference was changed by what might be called Losangelism. At first this was a soft breeze from the south, involving only the prettying up of uniforms, the appearance of long-legged majorettes, and the substitution of the St. Louis Blues for Souza.

"The original representative of Losangelism was USC, which turned up with a high-powered team and a memorable marching song. The general feeling toward USC was expressed by its rivals to the tune:

"'Time out for old SC—
"'The halfback wants his salary!'

"Then the breeze became a strong wind, with the rise of what was once known as the 'Southern Branch' of the University of California. The virus of Losangelism spread . . . and killed the PCC.

"California has joined with USC, UCLA and Washington in forming a new league. USC does not have the same admission standards as California. Neither do most of the teams which have been suggested to fill empty spaces on Cal's schedule for future non-conference year. Their common interests seem to be principally large, full stadiums and winning teams.

"Losangelist 'realism' has won. Goodbye, Pacific Coast Conference! Good luck, East Bay Packers!"

Everyone here claims the typewritten hatchet job was hacked out by—of course—a Stanford man!

Nick Valenta of Sepulveda captured the 25-lap main event at the new Ascot Stadium in a thrill packed sprint car race Saturday night.

By JACK TEELE

The Los Angeles Rams and the San Francisco 49ers will clash for undisputed possession of third place in the Western Division of the NFL today before a Coliseum crowd that could reach 106,000 . . . "the house that Jon built."

Ram management having rectified the error made by those who designed the Coliseum (how could the designers know there would ever be a footballer like Arnett?) by adding 5,000 seats in the peristyle end, today's throng should break some records.

The Rams will be shooting for the NFL attendance record of 102,368 that saw the same two teams in L.A. last year and the Coliseum mark of 105,-236 that saw SC and Notre Dame in 1947.

Also, lest we forget the true nature of the occasion, the Rams will be gunning for their fourth NFL victory and a clean sweep of their three-game season's series with the 49ers.

Arnett and Co. are 7-point favorites to get the job done, but their task is made considerably more difficult by injuries to key men in the defensive lineup.

* * * *

DEFINITELY OUT is safetyman Alex Bravo. Probably sidelined is linebacker Bill Jobko. Possibly missing will be defensive captain Will Sherman. Hobbled are Sherman's safety twin Don Burroughs and ace linebacker Les Richter.

If Sherman is unable to play because of a crushed foot, halfback Jim Harris will move back to his spot and rookie Jim Jones will move into a corner post. If Richter finds the going too tough (ha!) on his injured ankle, Roy Wilkins will replace him. Jack Pardee will sub for Jobko.

Against this weakened pass defense, the 49ers will start John Brodie at quarterback and hold veteran Y. A. Tittle in the bullpen. The combined completion average of this pair is a league-leading 60 per cent (108 completions in 180 attempts). The Rams' Bill Wade is third with 51.2.

* * * *

BUT GREAT as are the passing attacks of the two teams, the offensive spotlight will be on the Rams' amazing Arnett and the 49ers' great duo of Hugh McElhenny and Joe (Jet) Perry.

These three had extremely productive days last Sunday as the Rams upset the Bears and the 49ers evened their record at 3-3 by topping the Detroit Lions.

Arnett's heroics have been recounted over and over this past week. Perry had his best day ever against the Lions by gaining 174 yards and McElhenny came close to that total.

One of the two teams will be dead as far as title contention is concerned after today's match. But the loser can take consolation in the fact that the dollars pushed across the ticket windows will buy a mighty fancy funeral.

30,000 Seats Left

Approximately 30,000 general admission seats for today's Ram-49er game will go on sale this morning at the Coliseum at 9:30.

Parking will be banned on six streets near the Coliseum, but state lots between Hoover and Menlo will open an hour early—at 10 a.m. Streets closed for parking are:

Vermont, between Exposition and Santa Barbara;
Menlo (Exposition to Vermont);
Exposition (Vermont-Arlington);
Figueroa (Exposition-Santa Barbara);
Santa Barbara (Hill-Vermont);
39th St. (Vermont-Denker).

Today's game will be broadcast over KMPC beginning with a pre-game show at 1:25 two-point conversion was nullified by an illegal procedure penalty and Bill Grigg's subsequent kick failed.

The quick strike seemed to spur the 49ers to some of their most alert play until Messer changed the complexion with his first TD ramble. He took a pitchout around left end, escaped several traps, and was home free for the final 20 yards.

Fresno's first third quarter score came on a 60-yard drive in only five plays assisted by a personal foul penalty against the 49ers which brought the ball to the 20 and Messer's 18-yard run which carried to the two. From there, Billy Wayte hit off guard for the six points. A Mike Pratt-to-Jack Maddox conversion pass gave the Bulldogs a 14-6 lead.

* * * *

ON LONG BEACH'S first play after the ensuing kickoff Rich Lindner fumbled after taking a Nicholson pass and Fresno recovered on the 49er 29.

On the second play, Wayte went 18 yards through a big hole off tackle to the seven. Messer then circled end for the score, Pratt's pass to Fred Raco made it 22-6 with only 6:25 gone in the period and that was the scoring for the night.

Long Beach could never sustain a drive and was severely hampered by 135 yards in penalties, a new school record. One 15-yarder ruined a 59-yard pass completion from Van Voorhis (who was called in for quarterback duty late in the final quarter) to Greg Sibala that carried to the Fresno three.

* * * *

VAN VOORHIS also hit Radford for 19 and 34 yard tosses in a last-minute march that ended with an interception.

RAMS ROBBED EVEN BEFORE 49ER CONTEST

"We wuz robbed," cried Los Angeles Ram officials Saturday, long before the team even took the field for its game with San Francisco today.

What they were complaining about, however, was the fact somebody broke into their office and stole an estimated $7,000 in cash.

The money, receipts from the heavy ticket sale for today's game, was inside a 200-pound safe, but this didn't bother the burglars a bit.

They simply put the safe on a dolly they had brought along with them and trundled it out the back door.

Ram officials said the thieves were more interested in money than football. They left untouched a big stack of hard-to-get tickets for the game.

Bad Kick Sets Up Only TD

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) Sophomore halfback Ted Cano sparked Washington State College to a late touchdown and a 7-0 victory over Oregon State Saturday and moved the Cougars into contention for a possible bid to the Rose Bowl.

The inspired Cougars, thwarted twice by interceptions which halted deep marches, finally went all the way with three minutes left to play and knocked the Beavers out of first place in the Pacific Coast Conference.

California, 34-14 victor over WSC early in the season, leads the conference with a 4-1 record. WSC is 5-2; Oregon State and SC are next with 4-2.

Washington State could not muster a payoff drive itself, although the Cougars controlled the ball for much of the game.

But they cashed in when an Oregon State quick kick wobbled off the foot of halfback Dainard Paulson and skidded out of bounds on the OSC 43 in the fourth period. It took ten plays to score the only touchdown.

* * * *

IT WAS CANO who legged it around left end 11 yards for a first down on the Oregon State 14 after it appeared the drive might bog down. A roughness penalty, another big break for the Cougars, put the ball on the one. Then Cano plunged over and the 17,500 homecoming fans howled with delight. Halfback Lee Schroeder booted the extra point after a clipping penalty moved the ball back to the 18.

Washington State had made two serious threats earlier but interceptions halted them. Oregon State's only serious march also ended with an interception. That came in the fourth period when the Beavers came from their 19 to the Washington State 29. Center Marv Nelson hauled in Paulson's pass and the Beavers could not muster another march.

* * * *

BEFORE THAT, their best effort was a move to the Washington State 35 in the first half.

WSC, mixing its ground and air game, surged to the Beaver 19 in the fourth period but wingback John Horillo intercepted quarterback Dave Wilson's pass. Horillo also nabbed Chuck Morrell's pass in the second period after WSC had moved to the OSC 13.

Wallace, Bass Lead COP, 26-13

STOCKTON (AP) — College of the Pacific's Dick Bass went on the prowl Saturday night and led his fellow Tigers to a 26-13 victory over San Jose State. Bass eclipsed the stadium rushing record of 212 yards with 226.

The Tigers' short punt formation threw the Spartans' timing off. Bass and Herman Urenda, usually a quarterback, acted as tailbacks.

The last COP score came on a 76-yard run by fullback Henry Wallace, who broke over left tackle, hit the sidelines, cut back and was away.

WORST DEFEAT IN 29 YEARS

LSU Rips Duke, 50-18

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Top-ranked Louisiana State, behind 6-0 early in the first quarter, snarled back with a parade of touchdowns Saturday night to shatter Duke, 50-18, for the unbeaten Tigers' eighth straight victory.

It was the worst defeat suffered by Duke in 29 years.

Duke took a 6-0 lead early in the first quarter when George Dutrow tossed an eight-yard running pass to Wray Carlton in the end zone.

But LSU, to the delight of 63,000 partisan fans, knotted the score in 41 seconds on a 63-yard pass play. Billy Cannon outran the Blue Devil defenders and Warren Rabb hit him with a perfect pass.

The "Chinese Bandits," LSU's defensive specialists, put the Tigers ahead in the second quarter after guard Emile Fournet blocked a Duke quick kick and end Gaynell Kinchen pounced on the ball on the Blue Devil one.

Merle Schexnaildre, the "Bandits" linebacker, smashed over on the first play and Cannon came in to kick the extra point.

The Tigers took over a few minutes later when a Duke kick rolled out on the Blue Devils' 35. LSU scored in four plays with fullback J. W. Brodnax driving over from the one.

Guard Larry Kahlden grabbed a Blue Devil fumble on the Duke 40 and LSU moved for a touchdown in five plays.

Halfback Johnny Robinson slashed 45 yards off right tackle for a third quarter Tiger touchdown and Cannon romped 25 yards for another in the fourth quarter.

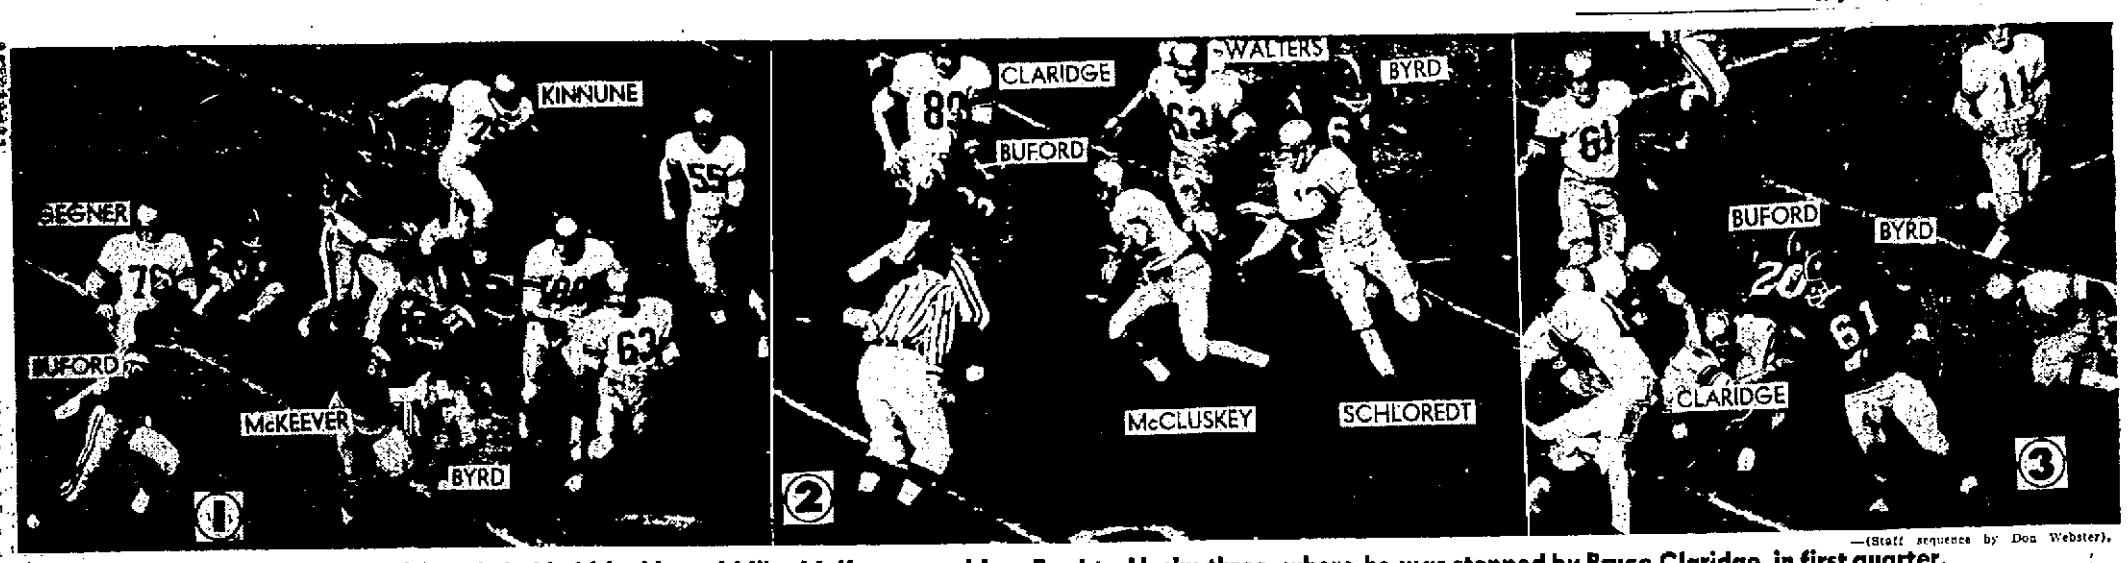

The final LSU tally came on an 8-yard run by Durel Matherne after Don Purvis raced a punt back 56 yards.

FOLLOWING OSC LOSS--

PA Words Keyed Bears

MEMORIAL STADIUM, Berkeley — An announcement over the public address system here that Washington State had defeated Oregon State, 7-0, in the north keyed California to its gruelling 20-17 victory over UCLA Saturday, Bear coach Pete Elliott admitted.

"When the score was 14-9 and UCLA had pushed down to our 22, our boys heard the announcement that Oregon State (which beat the Bears last week and was leading the PCC before Saturday's games) had lost," pointed out Elliott. "We stopped UCLA right there on our 22, then drove 78 yards to our winning touchdown.

"The announcement couldn't have been timed more perfectly, because the whole bench buzzed with excitement and I know the kids on the field were charged up."

• • • •

THE EXUBERANT Elliott, whose Bears only have to win games next week against Washington and the following Saturday against Stanford to nail down a Rose Bowl berth, gave UCLA loads of credit.

"My scouts had told me UCLA wasn't as weak as past scores might have indicated," commented Elliott. "UCLA definitely isn't lacking in substitutes, because, after all, their second team scored against us. We weren't able to stop them nearly as well as we did Oregon State.

"UCLA's reverse over guard gave us fits, but the boys solved it themselves by sitting tight and waiting for it.

• • • •

"THANK THE LORD no-body found out Joe Kapp had two charley horses all week. He was slowed down some, but I thought he played his usual great game.

"I give lots of credit to tackle John Michael and halfback Grover Garvin for great games today. We jumped them both from third string and they really came through."

Actually, Cal's "come through" player was Garden Grove's Jack Hart, who had a hand in 13 tackles and carried the ball 11 times for 44 yards. Jack took such an interest in the game that he was booted from it for overexuberance with his fists in the final minute.

UCLA coach Bill Barnes said the Bruins played their finest game since their seniors "graduated."

"Kapp didn't hurt us, too much with that pitch-out," sighed Barnes, "and I felt we contained their offense pretty well. This Garvin and Hart played fine games for Cal, while Chuck Kendall played good for us.

"If you don't defense Kapp just right, he'll kill you. Like on that last Cal touchdown pass play, which is tough to defense. But, they've worked it against better teams than us. In fact, they've used that play for 10 years — it's Pappy Waldorf's old play.

"Cal can throw well when it has to, but the Bears are pretty much of a ball control team."

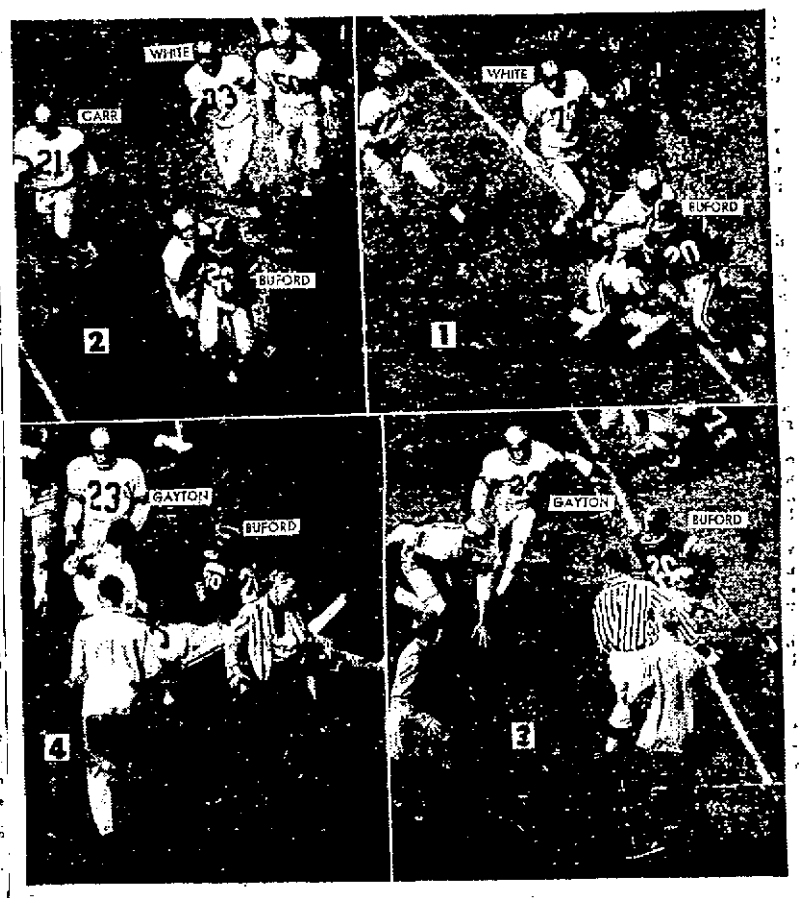

Billy should have peeked at the statistics. Cal controlled the ball only two plays more than UCLA Saturday—68 plays to 66.

Here's How AP's Top 10 Fared

1. Louisiana State defeated Duke 50-18.
2. Iowa defeated Minnesota 25-6.
3. Army defeated Rice 14-7.

BUFORD RETURNS HUSKY PUNT

Trojan scatback Don Buford takes Washington punt on SC 18 yard line and returns 10 yards before being forced out of bounds in second quarter action.—(Staff sequence by Don Webster.)

Buford, Maudlin Spark Trojan Win

alty gave Troy a first down at the 50.

Angie Coia then swung around right end for 18 yards and Maudlin barreled around left end for 14 more to get the ball in position for his 14-yard scoring pass to George Van Vliet in the end zone.

Washington made only three first downs and was limited to a net gain of 54 yards in the first half while still within striking distance.

Two Washington fumbles led to the third Trojan score at 6:53 of the third period.

• • • •

VAN VLIET pounced on Hivner's fumble on Washington's 37 on the second play of the second half, but the Trojans were denied a score after hammering their way to the 12 when linebacker George Pitt picked off Maudlin's pass on the six and returned it to the 30.

Two minutes later, though, the Trojans were on the prowl again when Maudlin's punt bounced off Luther (Hit and Run) Carr and Ken Antle recovered on the Husky seven. Three plays later, Jerry Persinger slammed over from the three-yard line to send the score rocketing to 21-0.

Washington snapped back after the kickoff to move 69 yards for its lone TD in 11 plays . . . but only after Buford almost intercepted Carr's pass on the first play of the advance.

Buford muffed an easy interception, though, on the Husky 40 and Carr came back on the same play to hit Bruce Claridge with a 23-yard aerial to get the drive in high gear and Hivner capped it with a 19-yard rollout that set the stage for his scoring sneak from the one at 12:08.

• • • •

TWO CONVERSION attempts failed. After Hivner's run for two points was nullified by an illegal procedure penalty, George Fleming attempted a placement from the 15, but it was wide.

Buford streaked 57 yards to the Washington 37 on the kickoff to produce another Trojan threat, but the Huskies held for downs on the 29.

Twice more they held the Trojans for downs in the fourth quarter after SC had penetrated to their 33 and 34-yard lines.

The victory leaves SC tied with Oregon State for third place in the PCC standings . . . a half-game behind California (4-1) and Washington State (5-2).

The Trojans' mathematical chance for a Rose Bowl date now depends on a victory over UCLA in their conference finale on Nov. 22, while Cal and Washington State falter in the stretch. The Golden Bears have Washington and Stanford left on the schedule, while the Cougars have only Washington to play.

SC LINE--

a junior executive than a football coach, agreed with Clark by saying the SC line was the big difference between the two teams.

"We knew they had fast backs who could run the ends well," said Owens, "but their line moved much better than we had anticipated.

"However," continued Owens, "we can play much better football—this was far from our best effort."

• • • •

OWENS, WHOSE Huskies were edged by Ohio State 12-7 earlier in the season, termed the Buckeyes better than any Pacific Coast Conference team Washington had played so far. He refused to pick the team that he thought would best represent the PCC in the Rose Bowl.

SC gets a bye next week before meeting UCLA and Clark called it the best break the Trojans have had all season.

"We've got to get everybody well so I can use more substitutes," said Clark. "The boys tired badly late in the game. We haven't been in top shape all season and we'll have to play our best game if we're going to beat UCLA."

Clark said his team was not yet thinking of the Rose Bowl. "Right now, we are only interested in beating the Bruins."

However, the Trojans might as well be thinking of the Bowl, because they're right back in the middle of a wild race that ends Jan. 1 in Pasadena.

HAPLESS GOPHERS FALL, 28-6

Iowa Sews Up Bowl Bid

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Willie Fleming, a rocket-fast halfback, and Randy Duncan, one of college football's wisest field generals, guided top-ranked Iowa to a 28-6 victory over Minnesota in Saturday to clinch the Big Ten title and a Rose Bowl bid for the Hawkeyes.

A sellout crowd of 64,485 huddled in near-freezing weather to watch Fleming dash to two long touchdowns in the first half. Duncan tossed a pair of scoring passes and called a near-perfect game.

It was the sixth win of the season for Iowa, the nation's No. 1 collegiate power. The only blot on the Hawkeye record is a 13-13 tie with Air Force. Winless Minnesota has lost seven straight this season and 10 in a row over the last two years.

The Gophers, last in the conference, scored their lone touchdown in the closing minutes of the third period on a 30-yard pass play from Larry Johnson to Bill Kauth.

Iowa fumbles, one of which played a part in the Gopher tally, kept the Hawkeyes from posting an even more lopsided triumph. Miscues deep in Minnesota territory ended three Hawkeye scoring bids.

Except for the Gopher touchdown, the game was all Iowa, with the Hawkeyes rolling up 307 yards on the ground and 161 passing. Minnesota had 205 total yards.

Fleming, a 19-year-old sophomore from Detroit, notched his first touchdown in the opening period. He followed fullback Don Horn through the Gopher line and raced 43 yards to the end zone. His second score came midway in the 2nd period on a 63-yard scamper.

The score was set up on the preceding play when tackle Charles Lee intercepted a Minnesota pass.

The Hawkeyes added a third touchdown before the half ended when Duncan, a 21-year-old Des Moines senior, gave his quick ball carriers a rest and took to the air. End Jeff Langston pulled down an 11-yard Duncan aerial to cap a 94-yard scoring surge.

Duncan passed for 75 yards in the series.

Another Duncan pass, this one to end Don Norton for 10 yards, gave the Hawkeyes their fourth touchdown.

Wisconsin Wins Battle of Breaks

MADISON, Wis. (UPI)—Wisconsin won a battle of breaks, converting two enemy fumbles into a touchdown and a field goal to edge Northwestern, 17-13, Saturday and end both Big Ten title and Rose Bowl hopes for the upstart Wildcats.

Wisconsin, winning its fifth game against one defeat and a tie, scored all its points in the second period. Its first touchdown was earned as sophomore fullback Tom Wiesner plunged over from the one to end a 66-yard march.

Then Northwestern gave away the game. Sam Johnson fumbled and Jerry Stalcup recovered on the Wildcats' 30 to set up a 22-yard field goal by Jon Hobbs. Ron Burton fumbled the kickoff immediately and Hobbs covered the ball on the Wildcats' 16. Bob Zeman picked up a fumbled lateral from Sid Williams to run it over from the 11.

Northwestern had its breaks in the second half, but they were too few and too late. Both Wildcat scores came after penalties, one a 37-yard pass interference call against Dale Hackbart which gave Northwestern the ball on the Badger one and for which Hackbart was thrown out of the game for protesting.

The other penalty for 15 yards after Johnson had recovered Hobbs' fumble on the Wisconsin 22, also put the ball on the one, and Burton plunged over.

The other touchdown, from the one, went to Dick Thornton, who quarterbacked the whole game as Northwestern lost for the second time.

Hackbart was the star for Wisconsin. He completed seven of 19 passes for 84 yards, while Thornton hit on seven of 16 for 83 yards for the Wildcats. But Thornton was held to only 36 yards passing until the final scoring parade.

Fumbles told the tale. Northwestern lost the ball four times and Wisconsin only once, and the only pass interception was by Wisconsin.

Once Over Lightly

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

One of the best tips we've ever heard on how to double your money is "fold it over and put it back in your wallet!"

This holds true in most gambling operations . . . particularly the football cards.

While in Las Vegas recently, a gambler was telling a group of us that "betting those football cards is strictly for suckers."

"I bet on just about everything, including football, baseball and the horses. Why, one time around here one of the books put out a betting line on what they were going to name the heir to the throne of England. Edward was 8-5, George 7-2, etc.

"Finally, listed at 1,000-1, was the name Jake. I bet on that. Sentimental, you know.

"But those football cards are no good. I wish more people would realize what a ridiculous bet it really is. I resent the betting of football cards as a reflection on our national intelligence."

HE WENT ON TO SAY that well over $100,000,000 is wagered annually on the cards . . . "and that's a conservative estimate," he said. It might well be over twice that amount.

He painted the football cards as "a vast, expensive and complex business. The odds are made in Minneapolis on Saturday night and early Sunday for the games on the following weekend. Then the cards are printed, put in the hands of the vendors, sold, the money turned in and the payoffs taken care of. There aren't too many payoffs, but a bettor does get paid occasionally. The organization behind these cards is tremendous."

The football rings recently uncovered at a couple of Big Ten schools where they were doing a $10,000-a-week business on each campus, are part of a central organization that controls the card business throughout the nation.

"Independent operators never work out at this sort of thing," the Las Vegas character said. "They're too lazy and dishonest. Yeah, dishonest. Give the average guy a thousand cards. Give him a bad week—and they do happen once in a great while—and he'll just keep the money and disappear.

"It takes organization and overhead. And the public has to pay for it."

HE WENT ON TO EXPLAIN "the odds are all wrong. On most cards you get 9 FOR 1 if you pick four games . . . not 9 TO 1. That would pay $10. But the way they've got it, it only pays $9. They even cheat you with a preposition.

"Suppose you parlayed the money like you do a normal bet. If you won one game, you'd have $2 going on the second. If you won that, you'd have $4 going on the third and finally $8 going on the fourth game. So, if you picked four teams you'd collect $16.

"When I bet a "parlay," which is rarely, that's the way I do it. My bet and winnings go on the second game and so forth. Another thing, ties on the cards make you a loser all the way. But when I bet with a bookie (they're legal in Vegas, of course), we just throw out the tie games. If I bet three games on a parlay and won two and tied one, I'd get paid for the two games."

Is there much chance of "fixed" games involving the cards? "No," he said. "They have too many games from which to pick from and it would be silly to try to fix any. They wouldn't know anyway which games the public was going to play. And it would be impossible to fix 'em all."

IS IT TRUE THAT the oddsmakers have men on the various college campuses to report in injuries and what other information they can pick up?

"Yes, but it doesn't affect the cards much because the odds are made up too far in advance. Naturally, if a team loses a couple of guys for an entire season, it would make a difference.

"Where this information helps is on the late odds and point spreads which the bookies use when their patrons bet them on a game-to-game basis.

"And it really affects the regular bookie line which also comes out of Minneapolis. You get a player injured on say a Thursday. The odds will change on that game so fast it'll make you dizzy.

"In the meantime," he concluded, "I hope this football card business goes out just because the bet is stupid and as a gambler I hate to see bad gamblers in such numbers.

"Sure, they offer you an attractive lure of 1,000-for-1 if you pick 20 correct games.

"But, at those impossible odds . . . I'd rather bet on Jake!"

Score-Crazed Cerritos Hands Weber 59-0 Loss

BY JERRY EZRIN

If Cerritos College isn't the top junior college team in the nation, it will take a lot of talking to convince the near-capacity crowd which viewed the Falcons' 59-0 rout of Weber College of Utah Saturday night in their first homecoming game at Excelsior High.

Bob Bagwell led the scoring parade with four TDs, the final tally coming on a 73-yard punt return.

John Desmond, Cerritos' sure-footed kicking specialist, established a new national JC field goal record when he booted one 43 yards in the final period.

Hoosiers Shock MSU

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI)—Earl Faison, a hulking six-foot-five-inch sophomore end, broke loose for a 92-yard touchdown run after blocking a field goal attempt to give Indiana's surprising Hoosiers a 6-0 upset victory over Michigan State Saturday.

It marked the first time in nine years that Indiana, for years the doormat in the Big Ten, whipped the Spartans, who are still winless in conference competition.

The only tally in the game came as fast as it was surprising. With the Spartans bottled up deep in Indiana territory in the second period, Dan Follis tried a field goal from the 15. But Faison, an 18-year-old defensive star, crashed through to block the kick.

★ ★ ★ ★

THE BALL rolled crazily along the gridiron, Faison scooped it up and ran 80 yards to the Spartan end zone. Since the scrimmage line was the Indiana eight, officials said the play started there and counts as a 92 yard touchdown run—tying the longest in the Big Ten this season.

Tom McDonald's kick was wide, but the Hoosiers didn't need it.

The Spartans, two-touchdown favorites, drove four times deep into Indiana territory. They got to the four in the first period, before Roger Donnahoo lost a fumble to Indiana's Tom Campbalie.

In the second period they drove to the Hoosier seven before Tom Wilson's pass was intercepted by Vic Jones in the end zone. They got to the three, before Follis' unsuccessful field goal attempt and to the nine in the final stanza, before passes again failed and the Indiana defense threw them back.

Illinois Pounds Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—All-American candidate Rich Kreitling grabbed three touchdown passes Saturday from sophomore quarterbacks, including one of 83 yards, to give Illinois a 21-8 triumph over Michigan in dark, rainy weather.

The six-foot, two-inch junior flanker offset Michigan's ball-control game with quick thrusts before rain fell heavily in the second half and play on both sides mired down.

His other scoring receptions were for 60 and 14 yards and gave him a total of five for the season and an unofficial 616 yards on 18 passes for an average gain of 34.2 yards per pass.

• • • •

MICHIGAN HAD the ball for 80 plays to only 40 for Illinois and racked up 20 first downs to nine for the Illini.

Illinois completed only one pass in addition to the three caught by Kreitling, giving the Illini four completions in nine attempts.

4TH QUARTER RALLY

Purdue Ties Bucks, 14-14

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Hard-hitting Purdue surged from the brink of defeat with two last period touchdowns Saturday but had to settle for a 14-14 Big Ten deadlock with Ohio State's slumping Buckeyes.

The rugged contest, played mostly in a drizzle before a record Ohio Stadium crowd of 83,481, eliminated both teams from the Big Ten title race.

The Boilermakers struck savagely behind a fierce line in the final period to salvage the tie after two first half Ohio touchdowns. Trailing 14-0, they scored first on a 63-yard drive ending in 197-pound fullback Bob Jarus' three-yard plunge. The passing try for extra points failed.

• • • •

WITH TIME running out, Purdue traveled 62 yards on the passing of quarterback Ross Fichtner to the Ohio State seven. Fichtner rifled a pass to end Dick Brooks in the end zone for the second score with 2:02 remaining.

On the vital try for the extra points, Fichtner crossed up the Ohio defense by handing the ball to halfback Clyde Washington, who tossed a pass to Brooks in the end zone.

Both Purdue touchdowns were scored against a tired Ohio line, which included four linemen who played the entire game.

Ohio tackle Jim Marshall and end Jim Houston combined for two lightning Buckeye touchdowns on unusual plays in the first half.

Houston blocked Washington's punt early in the first period and Marshall grabbed the ball and raced 21 yards for a touchdown. The pair combined for another touchdown in the second period with Houston deflecting Bob Spoo's pass to Marshall, who ran 25 yards to score.

Purdue, checked by Ohio's interceptions of passes in the first half, dominated the second half with fire goal line stands by the Bucks keeping Purdue from scoring earlier.

PITT SAVED BEST PLAY FOR LAST ONE

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Jubilant coach Johnny Michelosen said Pitt's 29-26 victory over Notre Dame was "a great one for the kids."

"We let one slip by last week (the 16-13 loss to Syracuse) but it was a different story Saturday. We sent in a few plays on that last drive but Billy Kaliden saved one for the last play."

Michelosen was referring to Pitt's final and winning touchdown with only 11 seconds remaining when Kaliden skirted his own right end for five yards.

Pitt Upsets Irish, 29-26

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Second-string quarterback Bill Kaliden, who spent most of the afternoon on the bench, scored with 11 seconds remaining Saturday as Pittsburgh upset Notre Dame, 29-26, in one of the wildest finishes at Pitt Stadium in years.

Kaliden directed a Pitt drive that carried 73 yards in 14 plays and capped it on a fourth-down touchdown run that had 55,330 screaming fans on their feet.

The Panthers signal-caller's heroics brought the Pitt team from what looked like certain defeat. Only moments earlier, quarterback George Izo of the Irish had tossed to halfback Red Mack for a 72-yard pass-run play that set up a touchdown and gave Notre Dame a 26-22 lead.

• • • •

THE GAME WAS a see-saw affair marked by 11 fumbles and numerous penalties that had a major effect in the early scoring.

The Pitt touchdowns went to left halfback Dick Haley on runs of one and two yards, a 10-yard scamper by first-string quarterback Ivan Toncie and Kaliden's clincher. Norton Seaman kicked three extra points and Toncie passed for a two-pointer.

Izo figured in all four Notre Dame scores, passing to end Monty Sickles for 11 and eight yards and sneaking for two touchdowns himself. He passed to fullback Nick Pietrosante for the only Irish conversion.

Notre Dame riddled the rugged Pitt defense, third best in the land, for 20 first downs, 62 yards on the ground and a whopping 332 yards in the air.

The victory, Pitt's fifth of the season against two defeats and a tie, still left the Panthers with a possibility of a bowl bid.

Navy Passes Crush Terps

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Navy, propelled by a lethal pass attack after early failures to gain on the ground, Saturday romped to a 40-14 win over Maryland before 30,035.

A fumble on the 50-yard line by Navy halfback Joe Bellino set the stage for the first long offensive drive of the game and saw Maryland sweep to a 7-0 lead on Joe Lauman's plunge.

Navy didn't begin to click until midway in the second period after Maryland fumbled only two yards from a score.

Second string quarterback Jim Maxfield, skillfully mixing short ground gains with passes of 11, 10, and 11 yards, moved quickly upfield. The Middies climaxed their 98-yard, 12-play drive with a four-yard touchdown pass from Maxfield to fullback Jim Tenbrook.

* * * *

NAVY STUCK to the air and closed out the half with another touchdown, Fullback Joe Matalavage plunged from the one after a series of long gains, marked by passes of 17 and 19 yards by quarterback Joe Tranchini. Navy added two more touchdowns in the third period to push its margin to 28-7.

Matalavage burst away on the Maryland 36 and ran for one score. Third-string Middie halfback Dick Pariseau intercepted a Rusevlyan pass on the 23 and raced for the other score.

CAL FUMBLES AWAY TD

Bears on Inside to Rose Bowl

with only 1:50 remaining in the half as all-American Joe Kapp rifled a pass for two points to the pride of Garden Grove, Jack Hart, who made a diving snag in the end zone.

Hart put UCLA in the hole in the opening moments of the third quarter as he punted to the Bruin one-yard line. The pin-point perfect punt was the more remarkable as Hart never had kicked before for the Bears.

After the Bruins kicked out of danger momentarily, Cal wasted little time in running the count to 14-3. The Bears smashed 36 yards in eight plays behind the alternate running of Hart and Arnold, with the Garden Grover hulling the final four on a crunching burst over right tackle. Cal went for two points again, but Kapp fumbled the handoff.

* * * *

UCLA STILL had some life remaining, though. The Bruins drove 72 yards in the next 15 plays on perhaps Bear Westwood's finest march of the campaign to cut the margin to 14-9. The big drivers in this march were Skip Smith, who piled up 31 yards in eight carries, and Davis, who kept the defense a little more honest with two fine spinners for 15 yards. Skip Smith was stopped as he tried to run for the two points.

UCLA took the initiative again in the fourth period on the ill-fated march mentioned earlier that wound up with a puzzling pass at Cal's 22.

Cal latched onto the ball at this point and ground out its winning touchdown. Hero of this drive, which might have been the one to ensure the Rose Bowl bid for Cal, was Garvin, who notched 45 yards in five plays. The touchdown was recorded, however, when Kapp, fairly well contained by UCLA's driving forward wall all day, passed 14 yards to end Jerry Lundgren in the end zone. All-American Joe again fumbled the handoff and Cal was deprived of two points again.

* * * *

UCLA GAINED new life, though behind 20-9 with only five minutes remaining, when Dave Peterson recovered a Bear fumble on the Cal 28. Four plays later—and with a 15-yard penalty thrown in against them—the Bruins had their final touchdown as Chuck Kendall flipped a 6-yard scoring aerial to Phil Parslow, who made a one-handed outfielder's catch in the end zone.

The belated passing game gave UCLA its last two points as Kendall chucked to Jim Steffen in the end zone.

Cal's victory was coated with sugar as it was the first time the Bears have whipped UCLA since the 35-0 victory in 1950 in this same stadium. That was the year Long Beach's Johnny Olszewski powered Cal to its decisive victory.

* * * *

INCIDENTALLY, Kapp, according to Bear coach Pete Elliott after the game, was not up to his usual par because of two charley horses he incurred last week against Oregon State. Elliott's secret was well-guarded all week.

Kapp's 113 yards shoved him into the No. 3 spot ahead of Bob Celeri in all-time Cal offensive records. The No. 2 man, by the way, is the aforementioned Olszewski.

Texas Edges Baylor

WACO, Tex. (UPI)—Larry Cooper, a lanky left-handed sophomore, threw a 26-yard touchdown pass to end Bob Bryant in the fourth quarter Saturday to give Texas a 20-15 comeback victory over Baylor.

Cooper, a 6-foot, 3-inch reserve qarterback who had completed only one pass this season, came off the bench late in the final period and tossed three passes good for 48 yards to spark the Texas win.

The late Texas drive took the spotlight away from the brilliant aerial game of Baylor quarterback Buddy Humphrey, who completed 18 of 26 passes, including one touchdown throw. Humphrey completed 10 straight passes in the first half as Baylor took a 7-6 intermission lead.

* * * *

COOPER'S leadership of the winning 71-yard march came after he relieved starting quarterback Bobby Lackey, who was injured and had to leave the game.

The victory was Texas' second in four Southwest Conference starts and kept alive slim Longhorn hopes for a share of the conference title or a possible bowl bid.

Gators Nip Georgia, 7-6

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida's 142-pound sparkplug quarterback, Jimmy Dunn, saved the Gators from an upset Saturday with a 76-yard touchdown run and Billy Booker kicked the winning points in a 7-6 football victory over Georgia. The winning points came in the final period.

Georgia punctured Florida's supposedly invincible line with apparent ease and came close to the goal often but crossed it only once—on a 10-yard pass from Francis Tarkenton to Fred Brown.

Army Nods Owls, 14-7

HOUSTON (UPI) — Quarterback Joe Caldwell threw a 64-yard touchdown pass to Pete Dawkins in the last 51 seconds of the game Saturday to give wilting Army a 14-7 victory over Rice's upstart Owls.

The Cadets, suffering under the humid 77-degree gulf coast heat, were played to a 7-7 deadlock until Caldwell hit halfback Dawkins on a last-gasp play.

Rice quarterback Alvin Hartman passed the Owls to a 7-0 lead at the opening of the second quarter. But Army tied it up on the next series of plays with a pass from left halfback Bob Anderson to "lonesome" end Bill Carpenter.

Army, sluggish on the ground, counted on Caldwell's arm to keep the Cadets undefeated.

Army failed to drive past its own 36 in the final quarter until Caldwell completed the game winning touchdown pass.

Rice thrilled a near capacity crowd of 69,000 fans by driving to the Army nine-yard line with only two minutes to go.

Coach Jess Neely sent in left half Bill Bucek to attempt a fourth down field goal from the Army 20, but the kick was blocked by fullback Don Bonko, who recovered the ball on the Army 24.

ARMY WITH only one minute to go, went for the long passes. Caldwell tried one to Dawkins. It failed. Then he passed to Anderson for 12 and on the next play tossed the longest completed pass of the game for the Army victory.

Auburn Romps to 33-14 Win

AUBURN (AP)—Little Jimmy Pettus, sophomore replacement for Auburn's injured Tommy Lorino, paced the fifth-ranked Tigers in a terrific offensive show for a 33-14 victory Saturday over Mississippi State.

It was Auburn's 21st consecutive game without defeat and the 20th consecutive victory in the home stadium.

Pettus, a 162-pounder from Oxford, Ala., caught three touchdown passes for 16, 10 and 58 yards.

State stunned the 36,000 homecomig day fans with two quick scores in the second quarter to take a 14-12 lead, but the Tigers scored again quickly and were never in danger thereafter.

RECORD STILL INTACT

Field Goal by AF Clips Denver, 10-7

DENVER (AP)—George Pupich booted a 19-yard field goal with two minutes left that pulled Air Force past Denver, 10-7, Saturday and protected the Falcons' unbeaten football record.

The Falcons, stalled in the air by Denver's persistent defenders, opened the scoring with a second-quarter touchdown that Denver matched in the third quarter to send the game down to the wire.

Halfback Steve Gallos, a consistent gainer on the ground, intercepted a Denver pass on the Air Force 21 that started the Falcons on a 49-yard march that seemed destined to produce a winning touchdown in the closing minutes. Denver stalled the drive on its 11 and on fourth down Pupich booted a perfect field goal from the side with Eddie Rosane holding.

Two passes by quarterback Rich Mayo, for 24 and 29 yards, were the big blows in the Air Force's 80-yard march in seven plays for its second period touchdown. Halfback Mike Quinlan scored on a 2-yard dash around left end.

Sooners Trim Ia. State, 20-0

AMES, Iowa (UPI)—Mighty Oklahoma started like a whirlwind but then had to capitalize on breaks to stop tiny Iowa State, 20-0, here Saturday.

The Sooners, who ran through their 69th straight Big Eight conference game without a defeat, ground out a touchdown without making a mistake after the opening kickoff.

But Oklahoma did not score again until it received a break as the second half opened.

Iowa State, which hasn't beaten Oklahoma since 1931, played like a band of demons. The Cyclones gang-tackled and recovered seven Oklahoma fumbles but in the end their tiny squad of 30 men was no match for Oklahoma's massive strength.

The turning point came when Iowa State halfback Mike Fitzgerald fumbled the second half kickoff and Oklahoma's Brewster Hobuy recovered on the Cyclone 19.

Four plays later, Jimmy Carpenter dived into the end zone for a 13-0 lead. Another Iowa State fumble, this time by halfback Don Webb, gave Oklahoma the ball again on the Cyclone 34. It took the Sooners seven plays to score again as quarterback Bobby Boyd sneaked over from the two.

Kentucky, Vanderbilt in 0-0 Tie

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Kentucky and Vanderbilt, both unable to cash in the breaks, they got on a windy, rain-swept field, battled to a scoreless tie Saturday, preserving Vandy's bowl hopes but probably wiping out its chances of sharing the Southeastern Conference title.

Kentucky gave up the ball three times on fumbles and twice on pass interceptions to the wide-awake Commodores, but a taut Kentucky turned back every Vandy threat. Each team penetrated once to the others 17 yard line, and each fell short on field goal attempts — Kentucky's coming on a play run after the clock had run out at the end of the game.

Monroe Scores 2nd Round KO

Boots Monroe, California bantamweight champ, Saturday night scored a second round knockout over Roque Fernandez of Mexico City in the scheduled 10-rounder at Hollywood Legion Stadium.

Monroe, 121, Compton, drew blood from his opponent's nose in the first round, scoring almost at will with combinations to the head.

In the second, Boots unloaded a barrage of blows to deck Fernandez, 119¾, for the full count.

Bob Kelley Says—

No doubt about it, Knute Rockne was the first man to realize how truly important the American sports writer is.

They're having a special "Salute to Rockne" TV show on KNXT tonight at 6:30. I was out of town when the special press showing was arranged last Monday, so I didn't get a chance to see it.

They tell me, however, that it's extremely well-done, featuring numerous film clips of Rockne in action on the field and in the dressing room.

Every year, following the end of the football season, Rockne used to toss a huge party for the sports writers in one of New York's swankier hotels. The best of everything was ordered; the scribes could have anything their little pure hearts desired.

(Too bad Hollingworth wasn't born 25 years earlier. He'd have been dynamite at a free load like Rock used to toss).

ONE TIME, the tab ran higher than usual. When he returned to the South Bend campus, Rockne was summoned to the office of the president, Father O'Donnell.

"Rock," said the good father, "I've got bills here for about $5,000. Don't you think that's a little too much for one party?"

Walking toward the window, Rockne stretched his arm out dramatically: "Father O'Donnell," he said, "You see that new chemistry building over there? And that building, and that one? Well, those were built by men like Ring Lardner and Grantland Rice."

Slowly he turned back and faced the priest. "To answer your question, Father. No, I don't think $5,000 is too much to pay for all those buildings."

Still my favorite story about Rock is one that is not told by him, but on him. The other night on the air, I recalled Jim Crowley's classic banquet yarn as he impersonates Rockne delivering a halftime pep talk to his famed Four Horsemen.

YOU MUST remember that this Crowley imitating Rockne . . .

"You, Layden, there! You're supposed to be a fullback, right? Fullbacks run hard, they get those knees high, they've got power. You're not running like that, Layden! You're tip-toeing through that line. Get mean, run hard, show me a little drive!"

"And you, Miller! When you run that reverse, lemme see a little speed. You act like you're asleep when you get the ball!

"This is a rough game, Miller! You're a Notre Dame man, right? Well, Notre Dame men are rougher than the other guys. That's how we win football games. Get out there in the second half, and wake up!"

"Stuhldreher! You're a Notre Dame quarterback, right? Notre Dame quarterbacks are supposed to be smart, right? You're letting me down, Stuhlie. You're not thinking out there! That off-tackle play is bread and butter for us. I want to see you run it right. So get out there in the second half, Stuhlie, and do a little thinking for a change!"

"And Crowley!" (Rockne's tone softens) "Well, Jim, just go out there in the second half and play your usual fine game."

SMU BURIES A&M, 33-0

DALLAS (UPI)—Dazzling Don Meredith and bold Billy Dunn led a tremendous Southern Methodist ground and air assault that buried the Texas Aggies, 33-0, Saturday as they figured in all five touchdowns and personally accounted for a whopping 329 yards between them.

Meredith romped for two touchdown runs of four and seven yards and was on the firing end of a 78-yard pass-run touchdown play to Jimmy Welch, while Dunn spun scoring tosses of seven and 23 yards to halfbacks Frank Jackson and Billy Polk.

The Methodists put on a brilliant 505-yard offensive display that almost obscured an equally great defensive performance from the 53,000 fans in the Cotton Bowl as they stayed in the thick of the scrap for the Southwest Conference title and a possible bowl bid.

Meanwhile, a rugged Methodist front line led by tackle Tom Koenig and center Max Christian chocked off the Aggie running game to a measly 29 yards and Christiah and guard Rodney Parr turned in two of SMU's four interceptions of Aggie passes.

The Aggies, playing better than half the game without Charlie Milsted, the nation's top total offense performer, finally cranked up a passing attack engineered by tailback Ed Dudley in the last half, but it was a futile 166 yards that it netted.

Milsted wound up with a minus two yards rushing and no pass completions in three attempts as compared to the 59 of 103 connections for 779 yards and 1,006 total offense he brought into the game.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

A group of 20 fishermen and their families gathered the other night in one of the projection rooms of Hal Roach Studio in Culver City to see films taken last September when the anglers fished at Lac La Ronge, Saskatchewan.

Because of my close association with some members of the party, Gene Aylesworth, one of the 20, took me there as his guest. Seeing the pictures (movies and slides) was like reliving that famous trip of 1954 when I flew about northern Saskatchewan for two weeks.

It was that 1954 trip that led to the mass fishing excursion this year. Ham Bennett, chief projectionist for Hal Roach, read about my trip, and, with three studio friends, went to La Ronge in 1957 by automobile. It was so successful and Ham was so enthusiastic that he and others decided to charter a DC3 for the 1958 journey. They talked Herman Jones and Ed Stewart Jr., pilots of the Stewart Air Service in Hawthorne, into the deal.

No one had to twist Aylesworth's arm when he heard about the plot. He signed up as soon as he could get to Culver City. And Gene, who is president of the National Spin-Fishing Assn., took plenty of honors with his light tackle. He set three world records: 13½-pound lake trout on 8-pound-test line; 9-pound laker on 4-pound-test, and 2-pound, 4-ounce walleye on 1-pound-test.

EVEN THOUGH COLD WEATHER kept the 20 fishermen in wraps most of the time, they had a wonderful time. Their pictures proved that.

There were some "big names" on the plane's manifest, Beryle, Manny Farber, Charles Heintz, Ray Honeycutt, such as Hal Roach, Hal Roach Jr., Jack Roach, Clint Althouse, Ira Anderson, Hap Anderson, Harry Barner, Tom Charles Lick, James (Hal) Selcy, Scott Larson, Boris Thogerson, Frank Stevens and Louis Wuttke.

Jones and Stewart, enthusiastic fishermen in their own right, made stops at Salt Lake City, Great Falls, Mont.; Medicine Hat, Sask., and Prince Albert.

Weather "souped in" the party at Prince Albert and they had to hire taxicabs to finish the journey to La Ronge, where they had made reservations for lodging and meals.

Despite rain and cold weather, they caught all the lake trout, walleyes and northern pike they wished. Two members of the party took a short flight into country farther north and returned with limits of Arctic grayling.

The trip was such a success that the 20 have signed up for a 1959 junket, and plan to add 20 names to the list, making a total of 40. The Stewart Air Service will have a 40-passenger Convair available next year.

THE GENERAL PHEASANT SEASON begins throughout the state next Saturday and prospects are about equal to those of 1957, perhaps better in some places.

California is experimenting with a 30-day shoot in Imperial Valley this year. The season there will last from Nov. 15 through Dec. 14 and will embrace Imperial County and the eastern part of Riverside County. Such areas as Coachella, Imperial, Palo Verde and Bard Valleys are in the 30-day season.

For the rest of the state, it will be Nov. 15 to Nov. 30. For the two Southern California state co-ops, Etiwanda and Morena (San Diego County) the season will be shorter—Nov. 15 through Nov. 24.

Just a suggestion for all pheasant hunters: Get your pheasant tags now at your local license dealers, instead of waiting until you reach the shooting areas. Also, pick up a copy of the California Hunting Regulations so you'll know where and when to shoot and how many.

The Southern California quail and chukar seasons open Nov. 15. It looks like a great quail year. Some of the best areas will be Lucerne Valley, Barstow, Victorville, Antelope Valley, Indio and Coachella and Imperial Valleys. There are lots of mountain quail in San Bernardino and Riverside Counties.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—The waterfowl population of California continues to grow, with the DF&G estimating that eight million birds are on the wing. Perhaps we should say "on the water" because most of the ducks and geese are content to stay around the refuges where the weather is good and there is plenty of feed.

Barney O'Malia, of the El Capitan Club, Hawthorne, Nev., writes that his lodge will sponsor the 6th annual cutthroat trout derby, beginning Nov. 27. Barney is putting up $500 cash for the largest trout caught in the winter season and $100 for the first cutthroat weighing more than 10 pounds. In addition, there are numerous other cash prizes.

Eddie McEwen, skipper of the Fisherman (Pacific Landing), has another two-day San Clemente Island run scheduled for tonight, with return late Tuesday. On his run last Wednesday and Thursday, he gave the patrons some real thrills. They returned with bluefin tuna, large yellowtail and sacks of barracuda and bull bass.

A recent story in Southland Magazine (not mine, thank goodness) was in error in saying that the abalone limit is 10 and the size limit on pinks 5 inches. It should have read "a limit of five per day and six inches for the pink abalones."

FIVE DEER HUNTERS of the Long Beach area remain in the running for some of the $10,000 in prizes being given by the El Cortez Hotel, Las Vegas. Topping the list is Ted J. Bose, Huntington Beach, who checked in an 11-point buck with a spread of 36 7/16 inches. Longest horn was 27½. He got it in Utah.

Cliff A. Slope, 2505 Fanwood Ave., and Bill McDowell, 2508 Fanwood, both of Long Beach, hunted in Wyoming and both got nice trophies. Slope's buck had six points. McDowell's deer had eight points, a spread of 32, longest horn 27⅞.

Paul McCombs, Long Beach, is among the leaders for the longest-horn classification with 33¼. Harold Weatherly, Norwalk, is among those competing for the shortest forked horn, with 4⅛.

ANOTHER RECORD FOR GENE

Gene Aylesworth, Long Beach resident and president of the National Spin-Fishing Assn., holds another record fish to add to his trophy collection. This was a lake trout weighing 8 pounds, taken on 4-pound-test line in Saskatchewan. See FISHIN' AROUND for story.

MORENO, GONSALVES

Crack Boxers in Lafayette Drills

By FRANK HARVEY

Several nationally-known fighters will be on hand in the Cameo Room at the Lafayette Hotel this afternoon to go through boxing drills as they prep for coming important engagements in Southland rings.

The sparring sessions will start off at 1 p.m. with Ricardo (Parajito) Moreno, who meets Davey Moore at the Olympic November 20, boxing Richard Kirby and Collyer Cox.

Winner of the Moore-Moreno fight is slated to fight Hogan "Kid" Bassey in a title fight in January.

Johnny Gonsalves, Oakland lightweight who has appeared on national TV several times also will drill here today. Gonsalves fights Cisco Andrade at Hollywood next Saturday night.

He recently trounced the "Cisco Kid" in Oakland and is favored to win the repeat bout.

• • • •

MARIO DeLEON, flyweight champion of Mexico, and Abe Villa, Los Angeles speedster, who clash in the 10-round feature at the Olympic Thursday night, also will be on hand here today for workouts.

Several other well known fighters are expected to put in an appearance as well as matchmakers George Parnassus, Jackie Leonard, and a host of managers and trainers who will be on hand to scout the main event performers.

Moreno and Moore will work at the Olympic Auditorium next Sunday.

Ga. Tech Glides by Tigers, 13-0

ATLANTA (UPI)—Halfback Floyd Faucette, dancing and spinning like a ballet master, turned in a series of beautiful runs that included a 54-yard touchdown jaunt to lead the Georgia Tech Yellowjackets to a 13-0 victory over the Clemson Tigers before 45,000 here Saturday.

Faucette, a 185-pound junior from Brent, Ala., refused to go down even when grabbed by a host of defenders. He picked up 116 yards in 10 carries.

L.B. Soccer Club Battles Glendale

After battling Lynwood-Downey Dons to an exciting, 1-1 tie last Sunday, the Long Beach Soccer Club returns to Van Ness Field in Los Angeles for another Olympic League game this afternoon against Glendale AC. Game time is 3 p.m.

The L. B. club trains on Monday nights at Wilson High's Stephens Field and will play its first home game there on Nov. 30. There is no charge for admission.

WORLD RECORD FALLS

Shadow Wave Wins Second Leg of Rich Pace Classic

Shadow Wave burst to the front in the final sixteenth Saturday and set a new world record for 3-year-olds as he won the second leg of the $75,000 American pacing classic at Hollywood Park.

Widower Creed, who won the first leg and could have clinched the winner's purse with another victory, ran out.

Shadow Wave's time for the mile was 1:56⅘, a new track record and also a new world standard at this distance for 3-year-old pacers.

Early in the day the American trotting classic champion, Charming Barbara, lowered her own mark as she trotted the fastest mile ever stepped at Hollywood Park, 1.58⅘, in a time trial.

The pacing classic was an amazing exhibition. Widower Creed, scoring from the pole with Jim Dennis in the bike, was extremely rank and Dennis had no choice but to go to the front.

• • • •

WHILE DICK BUXTON shot forward at a suicidal clip with Libby's Boy and flashed an opening quarter in :28 flat, Dennis couldn't hold Widower Creed.

Widower Creed flashed by the half in :57 flat, with Belle Acton right behind. These two kept up their killing pace into a 1:28 three-quarters, with Joe O'Brien holding Shadow Wave in fourth as Libby's Boy dropped out.

Widower Creed staggered into the stretch and Belle Acton assumed command, but O'Brien had more horse and hustled to the wire three and a quarter lengths ahead. Belle Acton had a length and a half edge on Dottie's Pick, with Diamond Hal taking fourth.

Missouri Crushes Colorado

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's salty young Tigers, unimpressive and pretty well whipped the first half, scored five touchdowns in 11 minutes and 20 seconds to crush favored Colorado, 33-9, in a Big Eight game Saturday.

The victory was the Tigers' fourth in the conference against no losses and cleared the path for a championship battle with Oklahoma in Norman next Saturday.

The Tigers spotted Colorado a nine-point lead in the first quarter via a touchdown on a 37-yard run on a pass interception and a field goal. Then Missouri fought back furiously as a ailing quarterback Phil Snowden got the sophomorish club rolling late in the third period.

The first touchdown came on a 9-yard pass from Snowden to end Russ Sloan. Within four minutes the Tigers had two more touchdowns by Snowden, one on a 16-yard keeper and a one-yard sneak. Colorado fumbles set up both.

Loop Leading Rocket '9' Hosts Angels

The unbeaten Long Beach Rockets hope to stretch their winning streak to eight this afternoon when they meet the L. A. Angels in a Winter League semi-pro baseball game at Blair Field. The game begins at 2 p. m.

Bill Feistner's club, managed by Jack Graham, shares the league lead with the L. A. Eagles. Each has won two and lost none. The Angels have obtained permission from the Dodgers to use the nickname of the former PCL club.

The big bats of Chuck Winslow and Bob Carter and the pitching of Bob Campbell and Chuck Adams have been largely responsible for the Rockets' streak.

Feistner announced that the Rockets will play the Dodgers' Winter League entry at Blair Field, Dec. 28. Among the Dodger regulars who will be seen here are Don Drysdale and Ed Roebuck, who will pitch two innings each; Don Zimmer, Ron Fairly and George Anderson.

MORE GLORY IN UPSET WIN AT TANFORAN

SAN BRUNO (AP) — G. I. Martin's More Glory beat out Predacious, a 50-1 outsider, by a neck Saturday and won the $11,100 Peninsula Handicap at Tanforan.

Battle Dance was third and Lord Fauntleroy fourth. No more than a neck separated the first four horses.

More Glory ran the six furlongs in 1:11 3/5 and paid $14.90, $8.40 and $4.40. Predacious returned $13.40 and $11.10. Battle Dance, carrying 127 pounds, paid $8.40.

Rich Stakes Program Set for Alamitos

The quick quarter horses will race for more than a quarter of a million dollars during the 19-day fall meeting at Los Alamitos Race Course, Nov. 22 through Dec. 13, it was announced Saturday by racing secretary Edward Burke.

Burke said the total stakes and purses would reach $255,000, with the $15,000 Autumn Championship, the traditional 440-yard closing day feature, headlining a program of eight stakes.

J. B. Ferguson's sensational Go Man Go, three times voted "horse of the year" honors, an unprecedented feat in horse racing, and Oscar Jeffers' Mr. Bar None, this year's leading money winner, top the candidates for the rich invitational championship.

Go Man Go, back in training after four months of enforced idleness due to a serious hip infection, will be seeking his third straight triumph in the Autumn classic.

Minimum daily purse will be $1,000, Burke said, with purses in overnight races ranging up to $1,800.

The stakes schedule:

Sat., Nov. 22—The Clabbertown S., 3-year-olds and up, 350 yards. Purse $5,000.
Thurs., Nov. 27—The Bardella, 2-year-olds, 350 yards. Purse $3,000.
Sat., Nov. 29—The Hard Twist, 3-year-olds and up, 350 yards. Purse $5,000.
Sat., Dec. 6—The Johnny Dial, 3-year-olds and up, 400 yards. Purse $5,000.
Sat., Dec. 6 — The Pacific Coast Quarter Horse Racing Association Cal-bred, 2 year-olds, 350 yards. Purse $7,560 added.
Wed., Dec. 10—The Kindergarten, 2-year-olds, 350 yards. Purse $7,560.
Sat., Dec. 13—The Endurance, 3-year-olds and up, 349 yards. Purse $7,560.
Sat., Dec. 13—The Autumn Championship, Invitational, 440 yards. Purse $15,000.

'QUESTION OF ROMANCE'

Pee Wee Reese Makes TV Dramatic Debut Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Nobody has asked Pee Wee Reese to portray Tarzan yet, but he'll play the part of someone equally as famous tonight in his first dramatic television role.

And he won't have to go around swinging from trees and thumping his chest to do it. All the role requires is that he go on being the same mild-mannered, respected baseball player that he has been always.

Harold (Pee Wee) Reese, off-season citizen of Louisville, Ky., will play Pee Wee Reese, captain and shortstop of the Dodgers, in "A Question of Romance" (CBS, 6 p.m., PST).

REESE

When the boys in the Dodger clubhouse heard the title, they gave Pee Wee the same kind of treatment accorded Milwaukee Braves' third baseman Ed Mathews when a Hollywood producer said he would like Eddie to become the new Tarzan.

"They called me Gregory Peck, Tyrone Power, and even Frankenstein," said Pee Wee. They had big plans to throw a TV party so they could sit around and criticize my acting. I was glad that the show, filmed during our last road trip, was scheduled for TV after the season."

• • • •

THE STORY involves an impending marriage which is almost broken up when the girl becomes so wrapped up in baseball that her boyfriend takes a poke at Pee Wee—not a Tarzan at 5 feet 10 inches and 175 pounds but also one never to shy away from a pair of flying spikes.

"My wife made the trip back to the coast for the filming with me. We were between series with Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, and I guess she thought she should come along to protect her interests."

And how about Pee Wee's interests? Does this mark the start of a new career? Had he ever acted before? At 39, what is his baseball future?

"I ENJOYED making the TV show," Pee Wee said, "but I don't know if I would like it for a steady diet. The Dodgers have made the transition to youth, and I know there's no place for me in that youth movement."

"THANK YOU" From The LONG BEACH MUNICIPAL BAND

"Your overwhelming vote of confidence shall be our inspiration to provide even more and better music for all in the years to come. No musical organization has ever been so acclaimed and we are deeply grateful to all who worked so generously in our behalf."
Sincerely, The Band.

Smart Alec Almost Not

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Alec Guinness says he turned down his Academy Award winning part in "Bridge on the River Kwai" three times before he finally took it.

The Britisher stopped here en route to Mexico City where "The Horse's Mouth," a movie in which he starred and wrote the screen play, was shown at the Mexican Film Festival.

He said he had to shelve plans for "The Loved One," Evelyn Waugh's satire on Hollywood mortuaries.

"I loved the script and still want to do it," he said, "but I guess I'll have to finance it myself. For some reason, the money men here don't like the subject matter."

New Theater Sets Opening

Back in Long Beach for a return engagement as Cherie in William Inge's "Bus Stop," Dorene Porter will launch the new Off-Broadway Theater, 211 Lime, when the theater opens Friday night.

Al Rashkow directs the show, which will run Friday, Saturday and Sunday night, through Dec. 1.

Backers of the theater have planned "premier" type ceremonies to open the show.

An Oscar Can't Buy Groceries

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Oscar winner Donna Reed had a tough decision to make recently.

Director Frank Capra gave her first choice on the script of "Hole in the Head," opposite Frank Sinatra. Donna is a veteran of Capra pictures, some of the best ever made in Hollywood.

The picture starts shooting this month but Donna already is in the midst of her ABC-TV series. She and her producer husband, Tony Owen, own the series. With eventual re-runs, the ownership rights mean a nice annuity—security.

"The last time Sinatra and I were in a picture together," says Donna, "we both won an Oscar. But Tony says 'They don't accept Oscars at the supermarket — security they do.'"

So she turned down the script. Eleanor Parker will play the part.

John Huston Hustles Home

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Director John Huston was brought up in Hollywood but he's seldom home. That's why he made news last week. He came to town.

"I have not made a picture here in eight years," says the lanky director, "That was 'Red Badge of Courage,' but I've been working steady ever since—all over the world."

Huston just wound up "Roots of Heaven" in Africa and France, next goes to Mexico for "The Unforgiven." Before "Roots" he was in Japan for "The Barbarian and the Geisha."

"I've never done a picture in Afghanistan," the globe trotter says almost apologetically.

It Happened Last Night

By Earl Wilson

KEEP 'EM GUESSING

NEW YORK—It's been reported that Claudette Colbert objected quite strenuously to Miss Julie Newmar (age 23, height 5-10, bust 38) wearing nothing but a towel in one big scene they do together in the new Broadway show, "The Marriage Go-Round."

COLBERT

"I see her point — the whole scene everybody sort of wonders if the towel's going to fall off," Miss Newmar, Broadway's premier screwball, said the other evening in her rather unexpected apartment in the West 60s.

"They tried to get me to wear something under it—like a bathing suit!

"But it says in the script that she comes in from a nude sunbath perfectly nude and throws a towel around her.

"So I said, 'We've got to be realistic. Remember Stanislavsky!' I hold it up with—well, I don't breathe. I hold it up with one finger, if anything. There was one man in Philadelphia who came several nights. His wife told me, 'He's certain that one night that towel's going to fall off.'"

Julie's towel-tossing talents may make her this year's Jayne Mansfield. She plays a brilliant Swedish student who tries to persuade Charles Boyer to father a small prodigy for her.

• • • •

WHY WAS IT that Anita Ekberg didn't get this part, as she was supposed to?" I asked Julie.

"You'd better ask her," Julie said, sitting on the floor and pouring me some coffee. In her apartment she has a painting she did of her mother, Helene Jesmer, who was a Ziegfeld Follies beauty, and "a bird with a psychosis" which she says was given to her by "Big John Murphy, my self-elected bodyguard, who's down in Wall Street."

Also on the mantle are a couple of men's overshoes with flower pots, and flowers, nesting inside. "I stole those from this boy friend," she explained.

Julie's been around for about three shows—"Silk Stockings," the Tallulah Bankhead Ziegfeld Follies which didn't come into New York, and "Li'l Abner" — and strangely enough, even with that body she appears to be a brain (I.Q. about 135).

Yet Edie Adams and other friends from "Li'l Abner" remember principally that Julie brought cheese sandwiches to the theater—inside her sweater.

"The dressing room was cold and so I devised my own way of keeping the cheese warm," Julie said. "What else did I bring to eat? Oh, yogurt and milk."

• • • •

JULIE WAS graduated from John Marshall High in Los Angeles at 15, when very young was prima ballerina with the Los Angeles Opera and a choreographer at Universal, where she taught dancing to such dolls as Miss Ekberg.

Daughter of an L. A. professor, Don Newmeyer, she never had any financial hardships.

"Did I ever model? Oh, no, I can't stand it! It's too uninspiring, I find it much too dull. Even though I could do it and make a lot of money."

She's found her own way of studying acting.

"Instead of taking cabs, I always take the 8th Ave. bus so I can study the characters."

• • • •

JULIE CLAIMS she never weighs herself or diets—"once when I did I gained eight pounds"—and that she looks forward now to doing TV for Ed Sullivan or Steve Allen when the show gets rolling.

"Sullivan offered me $3,000 to do part of my night-club act," she says. "In that, I wore an unusual garment, a sweater that was a sweater all the way down. With nothing under it. It's easy to move in, no restrictions, no girdles or anything."

"Are you trying to revive the Marilyn Monroe idea of wearing nothing under anything but you?"

"Why not, if I can?" she said.

Boys Will Be Girls!

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—In "Some Like It Hot," Tony Curtis and Jack Lemmon hide out from gangsters in an all-girl orchestra led by Marilyn Monroe.

The two pose as girls but designer Orry - Kelly would have no part of designing any Roaring Twenty gowns for the two males. The prop department, which never throws anything away, solved the costuming.

Tony's gown was worn by Laura LaPlante in "The Cat and Canary," made in 1927, and Lemmon uses a Constance Bennett item from "The Easiest Way."

Shoes, however, were a problem.

Lemmon's feet are even bigger than Garbo's. He wore new shoes.

Since 1940, newspapers have maintained a constant level of popularity. Newspaper circulation has virtually paralleled the growth of households in the United States.

'MADWOMAN' PRESENTED

LBCC Cast Does Giradoux Justice

"The Madwoman of Chaillot" is surely one of the best plays of the last decade. Jean Giradoux's comical fantasy has just the right combination of zany nonsense and sound good sense to make it delightful and informative at the same time.

The production given the play by the Long Beach City College players is almost as good as the play, and that is giving it great credit indeed. Played Friday and Saturday evenings in the new theater on the campus, it was a triumph alike for cast and crew. The sets, designed by J. L. White, were exactly right for the content of the play. The second-act scene especially was a masterpiece of stage setting.

The cast, which numbered more than two dozen, was uniformly good. However, one must single out for particular praise Patt Henley, who portrayed the title role with convincing and ingratiating looniness. Mad or not, she is able to set the world back to rights in the course of one Paris afternoon.

• • • •

NOT ALONE, of course, for she has three other madwomen to help her, those of Passy, St. Sulpice and La Concorde. How can the Prospector, the President, and the Broker expect to survive in their evil world with that kind of opposition? Caryl Wichman, Jo Calthamer and Dina Gossett play the assisting madwomen, and almost make lunacy seem more attractive than its reverse.

Among the others who align themselves on the side of right and the madwomen are the Ragpicker, played by Patrick Dunavan with an appropriate flamboyance, and the Sewer Man, played by Bill Wildman. Both are confident and convincing in their roles. Among others in a cast too long to mention in full, Will Dimmitt, Ron Hogue and Gary Mitchel performed with distinction.

Giradoux presents a world pretty much at the mercy of the unscrupulous, the greedy and the powerful in the first act of the play. The little people are their victims. Once Countess Aurelia puts her mind to the problem, however, the trouble is over. As she carefully explains in the second act, after she has disposed of the undesirable element, "Nothing is ever so wrong in this world that a sensible woman can't set it right in the course of an afternoon."

In the course of one evening, the college players prove she is right.

New Lark Makes Trip to Death Valley

Furnace Creek Has Many Diversions

By ART STEPHAN
Independent, Press-Telegram Auto Editor

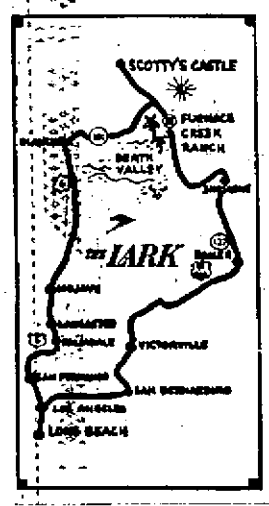

Off on a Lark to Death Valley.

And that bit of whimsy can be used without impunity as a start for today's article because it was a Lark—Studebaker's brand new "small" car—that took us on last week's motorlog to Death Valley National Monument, 315 miles away.

It was Bob James, local Studebaker dealer at 1350 American Ave, here, who loaned us the Lark, the car with which Studebaker hopes to grab a sizable chunk of the "economy car" market in 1959. Brand new, and not on public display until November 14, Bob loaned us a sharp-looking coral-colored four-door which had just arrived.

As the Lark was being hailed as an economy car, we decided to give it our own "economy run" test, so before pulling out of the Jamestown service department, we had the gas tank filled clear to the brim and then by keeping a record of the gas purchased on the trip, refilling to the exact mark on our return, then checking our speedometer, we would get a fairly accurate idea of the Lark's gas mileage. This done, we eased the little beauty into the Friday afternoon traffic and we were Death Valley bound.

For an interesting trip, our motoring party of four — the Stephans, son Craig and his friend, Craig Cantor — decided on alternate routes going and returning. On our way up we pointed the Lark over the Angeles Crest Hiway, down into Antelope Valley, thru Palmdale, Mojave, along Highway 395 to Olancha, where we turned right for the climb over Townes Pass.

It was dark now and there's one feature of mountain driving at night — you can't see the sharp dropoffs a few feet from the road and to one of our party who doesn't care for mountain roads, the darkness on either side of the headlights was almost a blessing.

But soon we were over the Panamint Mountains speeding along the floor of Death Valley and at 8 p.m., six hours from leaving Jamestown, we pulled up to Furnace Creek Ranch, our week-end stopping point. In a few minutes we were comfortably settled in adjoining cottages, comfortably but not lavishly furnished, ready for our Valley tour next day.

In the morning we introduced our party to Walter Lindborg, young resident manager of Furnace Creek Ranch, who suggested a variety of diversions. For the golfers, there's an inviting 9-hole course. A brand new Olympic size swimming pool, tennis courts and horses are for hire nearby.

Walking along the ranch grounds with the manager pointing out the interesting facilities, we noted the Ranch is a veritable desert oasis fringed with date palms, 178 feet below sea level, Lindborg explained. In the center of the Ranch grounds is the Death Valley museum containing many relics of the early-day history of Death Valley. As the Valley is now a national park, rangers are on hand to explain historical happenings and periodic tours are conducted over the scenic points of the valley.

Our first tour choice for the day was a tour to the northern end of the valley for a look at Scotty's Castle, a beautiful rambling mansion built in the middle of nowhere by Walter Scott, ex-cowboy of Buffalo Bill fame who became known as Death Valley Scotty.

On the 58-mile trip from the Ranch to the Castle is some of the most desolate, yet ruggedly beautiful scenery we had ever seen. On the west are the forbidding Panamint Mountains and on the east the valley is guarded by the precipitous slopes of the Amargosa Range. Early-day Indian inhabitants called the area "Tomesha," which means "ground afire" but the name Death Valley was given it by the hapless emigrants who, seeking a short cut to the California gold fields, were trapped and died in the fiery desert wastes.

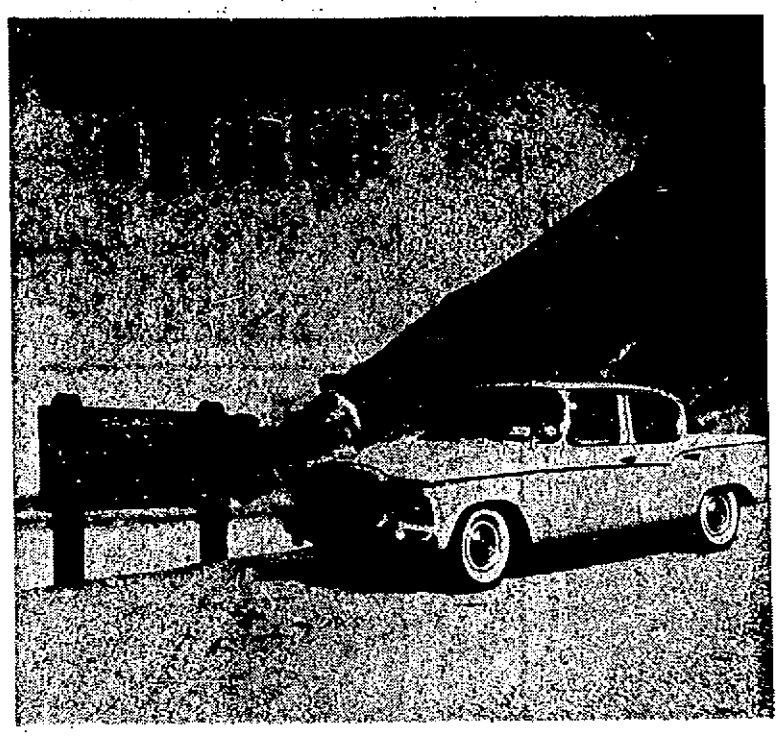

Seldom did we see another car or human on this little-used road to Scotty's abode and as the Lark purred effortlessly along the barren desert we were entertained by our teen-agers' remarks like, "Hey, here's a good spot for a bowling alley," or "How about a drive-in theater right over there." That's the kind of guff you have to take from the younger generation these days.

Once at Scotty's we decided not to take the tour through the Castle which leaves hourly at a cost of $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for kids. Instead, the boys had spotted some huge sand dunes a few miles back and they decided they'd rather romp over those than go through the castle.

Once back at the ranch, the younger members of our party were off on a horseback ride while we toured the museum and grounds until time for dinner. Food at the ranch is served cafeteria style and is excellent. Prices, a la carte of course, were reasonable considering the ranch's location miles from civilization. If you care for more plushy accommodations and meals, a mile away is the Furnace Creek Inn, also operated by Fred Harvey, which offers the American Plan, from $32 to $45 a day for double occupancy. The comfortable cottages we occupied at the ranch, $14 per day for two.

Well, our Death Valley week-end was near the end. Saturday evening we attended a dance at the ranch social hall, both western and modern music, then to bed for an early start home via Badwater, Shoshone, Baker and Victorville.

Monday morning back at Jamestown the Lark gas tank was filled again with exactly 13 gallons. This with the 27 gallons purchased on the trip gave us a total consumption of 40 gallons for the 789-mile trip, so the average for the Lark was 19.7 miles per gallon. And, although this is referred to as a small car, this Lark had a V-8 engine, automatic drive, power steering, brakes and the works. Ready driving over roads mile-high to below sea level, I would say it qualifies as an "economy" car. It was a Lark.

'THAT THAR'S BAD WATER, MA'AM'
Motorlog party member scans sign at Badwater in Death Valley. Two hundred and eighty feet below sea level, Badwater marks lowest point in the Western Hemisphere.

'SO THIS IS THE LARK'
That's the comment of Walter Lindborg, right, manager of Furnace Creek Ranch, as he notes trim lines of Studebaker's new "economy" car at ranch entryway.

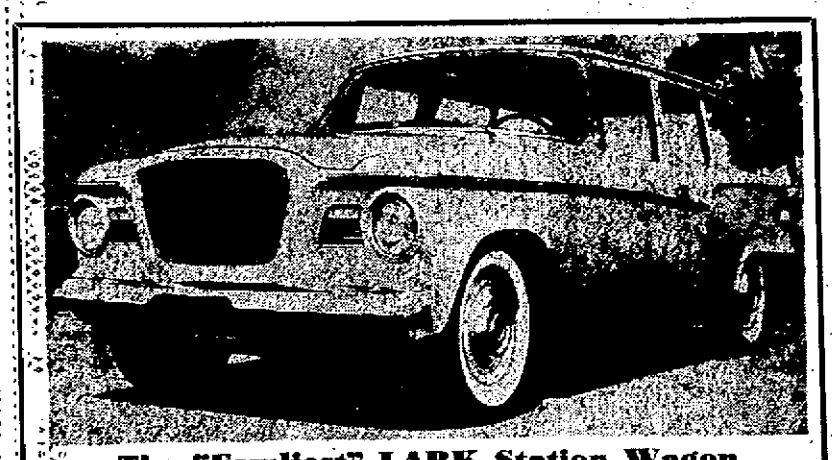

DESERT GRAVE MYSTERY
Youthful motorlog members study gravesite in desolate section of Death Valley. Marker notes "Val Nolan, Died August 1931, Buried Nov. 1931. A Victim of the Elements." No one at Valley could explain who was Val Nolan and why he remained unburied for three months after his death.

SHADOWS ON THE SAND
A pair of Craigs—Craig Stephan and Craig Cantor—leave their footprints on desert sand dunes as they race up huge sand formations in heart of Death Valley.

OUR COVER

Al Jennings, 95, one of the most feared "bad men" of the Old West, lovingly holds his cat, Tuffy, as he thinks about the days when he was a train robber. Living now in Tarzana, he describes himself as a great lover of poetry, "clear back to Rome's Pliny." He is also one who holds great respect for constitutional rights. Citing England's "Magna Carta," foundation of that nation's constitution, Jennings fondly quotes a British authority as saying: "It made it possible for an English peasant and his family in a thatched cottage, that rain might enter and the wind might enter, but the king could not." For more of Jennings, read Bert Resnik's "Still Quicker on the Draw," Page 7.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: Would appreciate your anlysis of BANTA. Mrs. C. L., Lakewood; Mrs. V. J., Long Beach; Mrs. L. B., Torrance

C. L., V. J., L. B.: The BANTA family originated near the town of Harlingen, in Friesland, northwest Holland. The famous, ancient Dutch and north German warrior name "Bana" meaning "the avenger" is the root from which Banta stems. Epke Jacobs Banta sailed for America from Holland in February 1659. He settled at New Amsterdam (now New York City) and was a member of the Dutch Reformed Church. His descendants married into the Helling, Terhune and DesMárest families in America. Hendrick Banta, born in 1717, migrated to Kentucky in 1780. Descendants went to Henry County, Missouri, to Colorado, and another founded the town of Banta in the 1860s, near Stockton, Calif. The Banta coat-of-arms is not available since records of many Dutch armorial shields were destroyed by Spanish rulers of medieval Holland.

DEAR MISS RULE: Brief genealogy on BOWEN would be of interest. J. B., I. B., Long Beach; C. W., Torrance; Mrs. F. S., Seal Beach.

J. B., I. B., C. W., F. S.: The etymology of the BOWENS starts in Wales, the southwest coastal section of England. This family has owned estates in Cardiganshire, Wales, from time immemorial. "Bowen" represents a blending of the Welsh surname "Ab-Owen," meaning "Son of Owen." Owen, the ancient Welsh hero-name, meaning "well-born one," was used in memory of Owen, king of the Picts in A.D. 736. London baptismal records of 1568 show Daniell, son of John Abowen. The Bowen coat-of-arms has a golden rampant lion on a red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform me about MAUGHERMAR. B. M., Long Beach.

B. M.: MAUGHERMAR is a Flemish-Belgian spelling of an ancient French warrior name, Maugher-Mar. The source was Amal-Gari, a royal Visigothic appellation meaning "home-lover," to which was added "Mar" meaning "celebrated." The resultant "Amal-Gari" evolved into Maughermar after centuries of usage. No coat-of-arms is known for this lineage.

DEAR MISS RULE: I would like analysis on DUCOLON. Mrs. C.L.W., Long Beach.

Mrs. C. L. W.: DUCOLON, formerly the surname Du Colon, was a west French derivative of Colomba, meaning "the dove." Colon was used in memory and honor of St. Columba, famous Irish religious teacher. No coat-of-arms is available for this family.

DEAR MISS RULE: Our ancestors were the KEARNEYS. L. L., Mrs. J. K., Long Beach.

L. L., J. K.: The KEARNEYS of Ireland held extensive estates in County Mayo throughout the Middle Ages. Their ancient Gaelic name O'Cearnaigh meant "Sons of the victorious one." Anglicizing the name in the 1500s brought about O'Kearney and Kearney. The family coat-of-arms has three green wheatsheaves on a silver stripe across the top part of a black shield. Among American descendants was Denis Kearney, famous as a labor leader and politician in San Francisco, 1860-1890.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give the history of HUFFOR. M. C. H., Anaheim.

M. C. H., HUFFOR is an unusual English surname shortened from Hufford. The source, Hughff-Ford, mean "fiver crossing or ford in the hollow." "Hughff" was a curious distortion of "hough" meaning "hollow."

DEAR MISS RULE: Would be pleased to have philology on HODGE and HODGES. P. H., R. H., B. H., Long Beach; R. H., Downey.

P. H., R. H., B. H., R. H.: The English nickname Hodge was a formation from the Saxon given name Roger. Hodges meant "Son of Hodge." The ancient warrior name Roger, the source, translates as "famous spearman." The Hodges coat-of-arms has three black crescents on a gold shield; the Hodge shield has a red chevron under a vertical black stripe on a gold background.

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

Cheer Up! Things Really Are Bad!

By Stella George

RECUPERATING from a simple appendectomy, I was reclining happily in a hospital bed reading a new Perry Mason book when an aunt of mine came to visit.

"You should be flat on your back, not sitting up straining your muscles," she stated.

"I feel wonderful. I could run a mile," I said blowing her a kiss.

She took the book and placed it out of reach. "And you shouldn't be straining your eyes at a time like this," she said firmly.

"What have my eyes got to do with . . ." I said, reaching for a cigarette.

"AND FOR GOODNESS sake don't smoke," she said. "Why when I had my operation I wasn't permitted near anyone who smoked. It took three hours. The operation, I mean. I had 18 stitches, and did it ever hurt when they took them out. They took them out too soon, anyway. Don't let them take yours out too soon. They kept me flat on my back for days and days to help my terrific headaches. Operations always cause headaches, you know. I've never gotten over mine, even though it's been years."

"You poor dear," I said.

"It's the after-effects that

Al Jennings as he appeared in his outlaw days, one of West's most feared badmen.

THE WEST'S oldest surviving gunfighter strode to the television set and clicked it off.

"Westerns," snorted Al Jennings. "Cowboys in beads and brass. Not a real cowpuncher in the whole bunch. Westerns, hmph! They grind them out like a load of wheat."

At the age of 95, Jennings has the background to be authentically critical of TV's "New West."

It's a varied background including:

Twenty to 30 men who died before his six-shooters.

Train robberies.

Prison, pardon and parole.

A law career.

Nominee for governor of Oklahoma.

Author of a book, "Beating Back."

A brief fling—about 1923—as front man for a Long Beach real estate firm bearing his name.

(The Long Beach office was "close to the beach in the heart of town" and Jennings didn't make much money. He did, however, get to know "some of the slickest salesmen, who had tongues like parrots and could talk on both sides of them.")

It seems almost impossible that the little old man —he's 5 feet tall— could pack such adventure into his lifetime.

THE COUNTRY QUIET of Jennings' frame house in Tarzana, the calmness of his wife, Maude, 77; his solicitude for their cat, Tuffy, belie the excitement of a badman's reign in the past.

He looks frail—until you put his muscle to the test. His arms are like granite—no loose fat, no sags. His legs are equally firm.

And the documents he retains add muscle to his testimony of a life of true action that pales fiction by comparison.

About those 20 to 30 men who were slower on the draw:

"I never shot a man in my life that wasn't trying to kill me—and they hadn't a chance in their life."

Jennings' life started in a blinding snowstorm. His mother fled from Yankees headed toward their plantation near Chattanooga, Tenn. She made it to Tazewell County, Va., where Al's impending arrival halted her by a fence corner.

Later they found an empty church in the Blue Ridge Mountains and lived there until Jennings' father, a Confederate colonel, came for them after the outlaw days. Jennings returned to claim a place in society inside the law. Here, he addresses crowd in role as Oklahoma governor candidate.

Law:
Do-It-Yourself Style

Parties argue a point in minor traffic accident involving claim (which must not exceed $150) in this posed photo before a municipal judge in Small Claims Court.

By Renee B. Simon

DURING THE last 10 years the mass market has been booming for anything Americans can make themselves—from mountain cabins to costume jewelry. But "do-it-yourself" has an even more unique counterpart in the legal world—and this one has been around for centuries.

Since 1605, when the first Small Claims Court was introduced in England, people have been hieing themselves to the bar of justice, trying their own cases and arriving at sound, satisfactory results. At a time when all other courts have overcrowded calendars and long delays, small claims court retains its reputation for quick, efficient justice. Always a unique adjunct to our judicial system, its purpose is to curtail the usual expense and delay of litigation when the amount claimed is small.

With minor variations, almost any community in the United States can boast a small claims court. In California it is not a separate court at all but merely a "special service" of the Municipal Court, presided over by municipal judges who act within the procedures of the small claims statute.

WHILE DIFFERENT from any other court, it is these very differences which are responsible for the speedy results. As the name implies, the cases must be "small" and on today's litigation market this means a maximum recovery of $150, a figure that has crept gradually up since 1925 when it was initially set at $50. The second point of departure, and the one which most directly accounts for the rapid turnover, is that cases are generally heard not more than 30 days from date of filing—with a few specified exceptions. Lastly, the law states that neither party to the action may be represented by an attorney. It is probably on this one fact that the whole informality of small claims court hangs.

Since lawyers are generally regarded as the key to the courtroom door, it may seem surprising that they and judges alike advocate a legal remedy which specifically excludes them. However, the small claims statute intends to make it easy for the individual to sue for money damages where his claim is too small to warrant hiring an attorney.

If your fender is dented in a minor auto accident, if your tenant leaves owing two weeks' rent, or if your dog chews up the postman's trousers—and if these differences cannot be settled amicably—you are a potential small claims litigant.

IN MANY SUCH situations, filing fees plus an attorney's charge for preparing the case would probably come to more than your loss, explains one lawyer who frequently advises clients to file in small claims court. Here, in a true court of law, you can informally tell your story to the judge—informally, because none of the parties involved is expected to know the complicated trial procedures of higher courts.

With a just claim in mind, you need be no legal wizard to file your case—a number of people are ready to help you. The clerk's office on the 8th floor of the Jergins Trust Building at Ocean Blvd. and Pine Ave. is regularly staffed with two clerks especially assigned to filing small claims. In non-technical language, they will tell you what to expect, what to do and how to do it. In a few minutes an experienced clerk can explain such ominous phrases as jurisdiction, limits of recovery, affidavits and default judgments. However, you won't even begin unless you are in the proper court—geographically speaking! That is, unless the action you are suing on occurred within the judicial district or the defendant lives within its boundaries. The Long Beach Judicial District, for example, includes the cities of Long Beach and Signal Hill. If you find you are in the right office, the rest is easy.

AS A CLAIMANT, you would first be given a form entitled "Information for Plaintiff." This explains in simple words the general provisions of the law and how to serve papers on the defendant. After reading this, you would be asked to complete a one-page form whose seven questions merely establish the basic facts of your claim—whom you are suing, why and for how much. From this information, the clerk makes out the affidavit or more formal sworn statement of the same facts. In addition it shows the time and date of trial. The cost to you: One dollar plus a nominal fee for process serving.

Nine o'clock, before the regular municipal calendar is called, small claims court is in session. In contrast to the silent corridors at that hour, the large courtroom of the presiding judge is crowded and busy. Often, however, defendants in these cases do not bother to appear in court and such claims are handled quickly by the presiding judge. The cases which do require trial, perhaps four or five each morning, are distributed to several courtrooms. By 10 o'clock the last traces of small claims court are gone, but during that hour real curbstone justice has been in action.

THE SANCTITY of the courtroom is unmistakable; the judge is robed, the bailiff uniformed. However, the absence of jury, lawyers and casual observers sets a less formal tone to the proceedings. Somehow a mid-point is reached between the solemnity of full court and the informality of telling your story to the judge who acts not only as judge but as jury and lawyer as well.

While his questions are direct and incisive, they are intended not only to determine the facts but to put you quickly at your ease. Both parties are usually tense and too often violently sure that they are right. In fact, in a Los Angeles court, defendants and plaintiffs are separated by a partition to assure that legal skirmishes do not become physical ones.

The judge studies all the evidence carefully. However, even with the testimony of both sides and the visual evidence offered, it is often difficult to come to a quick decision. A case may take 10 minutes, seldom more than half an hour. If he cannot render a judgment immediately, the case will go under submission and his decision mailed to both parties in a few days.

OF THE 400 CASES filed each month, the most common are for automobile damage, rent due, damage to clothes in cleaning, and bills due to service station owners and repairmen of household appliances. While few are of the "headline" variety, unusual cases do occur with some regularity. No one locally is better acquainted with our small claims files than Mrs. Ruth Bauchet, clerk of the Municipal Court—a position she has held since July 1925 when Municipal Court was first introduced in Long Beach. The most remarkable case she recalls and one she claims "still offends my feminine pride" involved a young man who sued for alienation of affections (in the days when one could) affections he apparently valued at no more than the then small claims maximum of $50.

Before appearing in Small Claims Court, those having a claim in mind first must file case with clerk Ruth Bauchet. (Posed for photographer Chuck Sundquist.)

Statuesque Myrna Hansen, a former Miss USA in Long Beach's Miss Universe Pageant, brings her curves to the Cinemascope screen.

Cyd Charisse combines sex appeal with classic glamour in lead role. "The money I want," she cries in one scene, "the men you can keep."

Five for the Price of One!

The bargain hunter for beauty will cast his winking eye in the direction of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's upcoming "Party Girl" for what probably will be the glamour buy of the year. Here are five of Hollywood's most striking beauties all in one film—a story of girls who go out with men for money, the hoodlums who make them jump.

Redhaired Claire Kelly opens bedroom eyes to lure her man.

Sultry Carmen Phillips shows why she's a nightclub star.

A Time to Laugh

An uproarious exploit by Tugboat Annie, a memorable episode in the life of Penrod, the antics of Alexander Botts and his earthworm tractor—plus the wittiest stories, poems and articles by such masters of humor as H. Allen Smith, Irvin S. Cobb, Ring W. Lardner, James Thurber, Damon Runyon and Joe Penner—make up "THE SATURDAY EVENING POST CARNIVAL OF HUMOR" (Prentice-Hall, $7.50). All this plus 100 and more uproarious cartoons (see above and below). Editor Robert M. Yoder went through 50 years of files of the SatEvePost, America's oldest magazine, to make the selections. He couldn't have come up with a happier or more amusing collection if he'd gone through all magazines being published.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

It's Individual and It's Feminine

Pale-pink bookcases, white furniture upholstered in cherry-red silk join with classic appointments—urn, figures, fixtures—in this library alcove.

By Eileen Ball

PASTEL COLORS, gently undulating lines and sumptuous fabrics blend to create an emphatic femininity in the attractive apartment of Mrs. Dorothy Hogarth, 3437 E. 2nd St. Individuality is expressed throughout, in the manner so often found in the dwellings of single persons.

Mrs. Hogarth's apartment is unique and uncompromisingly feminine. It clearly states that a lady lives here, one that loves beautiful things and takes wholehearted delight in expressing individual taste in her surroundings.

The second-story apartment is reached by an exterior stairway that ascends to an imaginatively decorated landing. Tubbed shrubs and Italian garden figures provide a pleasing prelude to the residence. Opening off the landing is the front door, its top section inset with leaded glass panels in soft amethyst-pink ripple glass.

THE LIVING ROOM is interesting architecturally for its contour—composed, not of a single rectangle, but of a spacious living area off which an open alcove serves as an intimate little library. The latter provides a wonderful spot to serve tea, play cards or simply to enjoy the good company of a friend or a book.

Throughout, the color scheme plays a medley based on variations of pink. Walls have been completely papered in a tiny textural, French diaper print of eggshell on pale pink. Pink bisque carpet and draperies fill in the other major background areas.

Everything from the principal item of furniture to the most incidental accessory has been selected with discrimination and taste. Specifically, the rather formal decorative style, Florentine, has been blended with French appointments. Both moods merge fluidly and femininely to present a graceful and highly effective composition. Admittedly, there has been no attempt at austerity—at tailored or spartan simplicity. The gently curving lines of delicate, antique ivory furniture—the glint of crystal—the soft glow of velvets and damasks were specifically selected to impart an atmosphere as frankly feminine as a petticoat. To the left of the front door stands a French, off-white heavy, antique, baroque mirror in goldleaf and matted in French blue velvet. Reflected in the mirror is a classic urn filled with amethyst-and-pink grape clusters.

French wing chairs, white velvet chaise provide comfortable seating for an inviting conversational group in this view of Mrs. Dorothy Hogarth's home.

ROUND BOLSTERS embellish the modified tuxedo sofa upholstered in pink-bisque antique satin. Before it is an off-white, marble cocktail table.

A hanging, filigreed light fixture painted white illuminates the library alcove which features open bookcases and storage cabinets painted French pink. This built-in unit is flanked by windows dressed in pink-bisque antique satin. Directoire chairs in off-white are upholstered in cherry silk fabric that lends a sure touch of inspiration to the paler pinks. An antique French pastoral scene, matted in French blue velvet, hangs over a small Louis XV console, its exquisitely inlaid fruitwoods bespeaking both its antiquity and its excellence.

Natural ash paneling flanks an open doorway to the kitchenette, lending structural importance to what might otherwise have been an apologetic opening in the wall. Then, screening the kitchen from too-plain view is a four-panel, antique wood screen decoupaged with Audubon birds. Adjacent to this stands another Florentine-inlaid commode; on it is a tall, antique, European multi-branch candlestick, the sweeping height of this objet d'art creating an occult balance with the screen.

Antique screen, ash paneling and tall candlestick on commode form decorative doorway leading to kitchenette.

Overlooking the outside landing is a bank of high windows fitted with pale pink shutters. In this area of the living room is a pleasant conversation area comprised of a pair of French provincial wing chairs upholstered in amethyst-pink sculpture—quilted, polished cotton patterned with pale floral clusters. Finally, there is a chaise longue upholstered in white hobnail velvet.

IN ITS OWN RIGHT, the tiny kitchen is handsome for its pale ash cabinets, shutters, copper hood and accessories as well as for the continuous use of the same pink all-over pattern paper as used in the living area.

Off a short hallway are located a den-guest room, a stunning bath, and Mrs. Hogarth's bedroom. The den is papered in a French pink, rose and white harlequin paper and is furnished principally with a long, contemporary walnut desk at which a handsome antique armchair stands. A continuous bank of windows are fitted with white shutters and dressed with French antique satin cafe curtains.

French pink and white wallpaper provides a decidedly delicate background for the bath with its white shag wall-to-wall carpet and pale pink wainscot. The tub is curtained with a diaphanous swag of sheer white silk interwoven with gold. Over the tub hangs a preposterously long, pale-pink birdcage in which swings—of all things—a pink feather bird over a "nest" of tiny pastel-colored soaps!

The bedroom achieves a special simplicity that has been attained with an almost total absence of color. Deep shag carpet of white wool provides posh underfooting. Two walls are hung, ceiling to floor, with thin white silk striped with horizontal gold bands. The headboard is upholstered in white hobnail velvet; flanking this are two provincial bachelor chests ornamented with gilt. A softer-than-air bedspread is fabricated of snow white quilted dacron. Only two pale notes of color enter the scene . . . in a pair of pale pink drum shades that top white iron figurine lamp bases and in rose damask upholstery for a tiny antique white Victorian lady's chair.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Old Western in Design; Modern in Execution

By John O. B. Wallace

THIS STYLISH ranch combines the atmosphere of the old and romantic west with the improvements of the newest home designs.

Numbered X-26 in the architect-designed House of the Week series, it is a modern adaptation of the cattle ranch dwelling.

It was created, appropriately, by a western architect.

He borrowed from western lore for structural lines of the house, but elsewhere his plan was steadfastly modern. By Architect Jerry Gropp of Seattle, Wash., the design is an improvement over many ranch homes for several reasons:

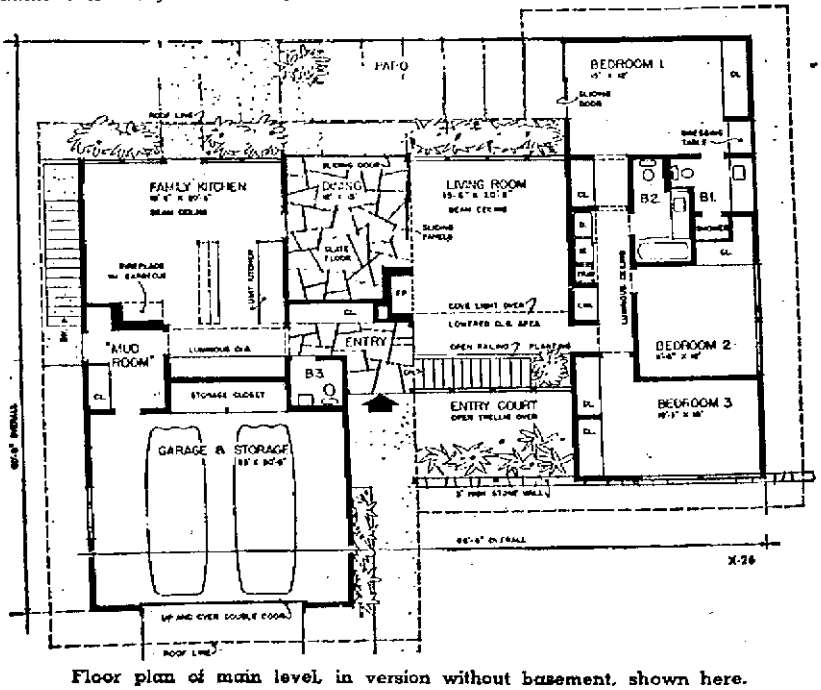

(1) It completely divides the sleeping and living areas, (2) the interior abounds in a variety of decorative details and (3) the owner has the option of building with or without a basement.

Full details on this breath-of-the-west plan, in an easy-to-follow area by area description, follow:

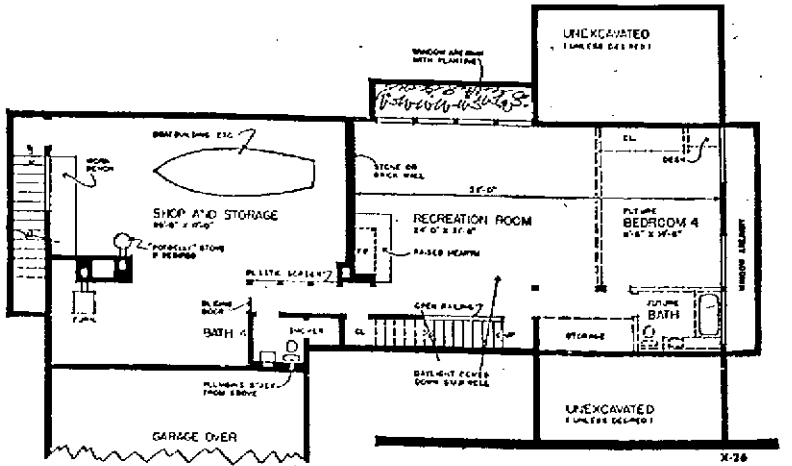

THE BEAM-CEILING living room is 15 feet 6 inches by 20 feet 6 inches and has a stone, raised-hearth fireplace. The beams support a wire-brushed, surfwood ceiling. The living room has a view both to the rear garden and to the front entrance courtyard. The latter is shielded from the street by a stone wall. Other living room features include cove lighting and hardwood paneling.

The dining room, 12 by 15 feet, has a slate floor and can be shut off from the living room by sliding shoji screens. An aluminum sliding door opens from the dining room onto a rear patio.

There are three large bedrooms and three baths on the one level. The basement version provides space for a fourth bedroom and two more baths. All bedrooms have sliding door wardrobe closets. The master bedroom has its own private bath with shower. Baths are arranged for economical installation of plumbing.

Floor plan of main level, in version without basement, shown here.

Basement version, adding 4th bedroom, rec. room, two baths, shop.

THE FAMILY KITCHEN is 19 feet 6 inches by 20 feet 6 inches. It has a beam ceiling, cove lighting and a fireplace with built-in barbecue grill. The kitchen proper has an all-in-one kitchen unit and matching cabinets. There is ample space for informal family dining.

The mud room, between the family kitchen and the garage, can be entered from an outside entrance and from the garage. The laundry center, with washer, dryer and tray, is in an alcove off the main bedroom hall — handy to accumulated soiled clothes.

A rear patio extends nearby the full width of the house. In the basement version, there is a lower recreation room, 24 by 21 feet 6 inches, with a raised hearth fireplace. The basement version likewise provides space for a large work or hobby shop, 17 by 29 feet.

The double garage, with access to the family kitchen through the mud room, has numerous storage shelves and a large storage closet. There are closets in the mud room, the entrance foyer and in each of the three bedrooms. In the bedroom wing, additionally, there are a linen closet and a large special closet just outside the master bedroom.

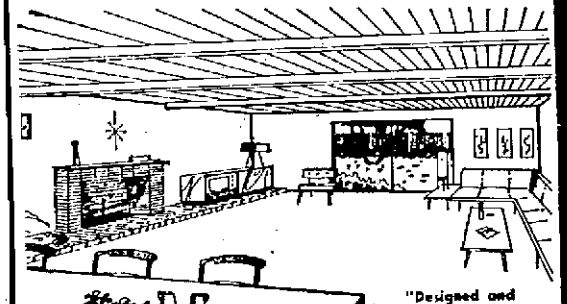

THE ENTRANCE courtyard has a low, stone wall as a backdrop for plantings. The plan provides for construction either with or without a basement. There is a separation of sleeping and living areas. Halls have luminous ceilings. In the basement version, the basement stairwell is illuminated from above by natural light. Most of the rear wall of the house is crystal glass, nearly floor to ceiling in height.

Wire-brushed plywood and battens are used for exterior walls along with some stone veneer. The roof is of white marble chips. The rear patio is of pebble-finish concrete.

Overall dimensions of the house are 60 by 66 feet 6 inches. The main level living area has 2,012 sq. ft.; the garage has 700 sq. ft. For the basement version add 1,634 sq. ft. but remember the dollar cost per square foot for the basement is much less than for living areas.

To obtain plans, address Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., enclose 35 cents and request House of the Week, Study Plan, Design X26.

Pages from Palomar's Past

By Nanette Thompson

MANY YEARS before the coming of the white man, more than a dozen Indian camp grounds dotted the top of San Diego County's Palomar Mountain, now world famous for its observatory.

The Indians believed Palomar to be one of the "First People" who, according to the story of Creation, were the first things to be created by "The Great Spirit."

Palomar was a favorite hunting and camping ground of the Indians, especially during the summer. They would walk or ride up the side of the mountain by an old "Indian Trail" which was approximately where the "Highway to the Stars" is now. The women were very modest; if they were fortunate enough to have a horse they rode sidesaddle fashion mounting only when no one was looking.

IN THE FALL, the Indians gathered acorns and made meal which was the base of their diet. One of their favorite preparations was thickened, like some of the modern cooked cereals, and was called "biote."

Each family had its own tepee, which was repaired and occupied again and again.

When Adelind Bailey, Palomar's beloved postmistress for many years and who still lives there, first saw Palomar in 1911, two tepees were still standing and in good condition.

One was at Cedar Crest and the other was on the south edge of the mountain. These tepees were kept up until about 1931, probably for sentimental reasons.

Broken and completely whole pottery and arrowheads, as smooth and shiny as on the day they were made, have been found.

As many as 20 grinding holes, or mortars, have been discovered in the rocks which rest beneath the oak trees. When a mortar became too deep from constant use, it was abandoned and a new one was started. The holes are different in size, which could mean that they were used for several purposes. Perhaps one was used for grinding acorns, the others for smaller seeds.

Relic of an age when Indians lived on Palomar Mt. This tepee formerly occupied site at Cedar Crest.

WOOD RATS, MICE, squirrels and deer were eaten by the early Indians. Wood rats and mice were considered delicacies.

The Indians spent their winters in the lowlands because sometimes there was as much as six feet of snow atop the mountain.

Decendants of these Indians, who enjoyed the warm, balmy days of Palomar's summer and autumn, now live at the foot of the mountain on reservations in the San Luis Rey Valley.

In the early 1850s when California was struggling to maintain peace and order, Palomar became a haven for deperadoes. Lying along the border route the mountain was considered a safe hideout. Hidden valleys became a refuge, brands on stolen cattle or horses could be changed in these remote spots.

Palomar has been called a mountain of mystery. There were very few people living there when the Observatory was first started, although there is evidence that Palomar had numerous residents in the past.

WORN TRAILS, almost covered with the bracken or fern which grows abundantly on Palomar, lead to fallen cabins; where now only a rattlesnake or a lizard lurks.

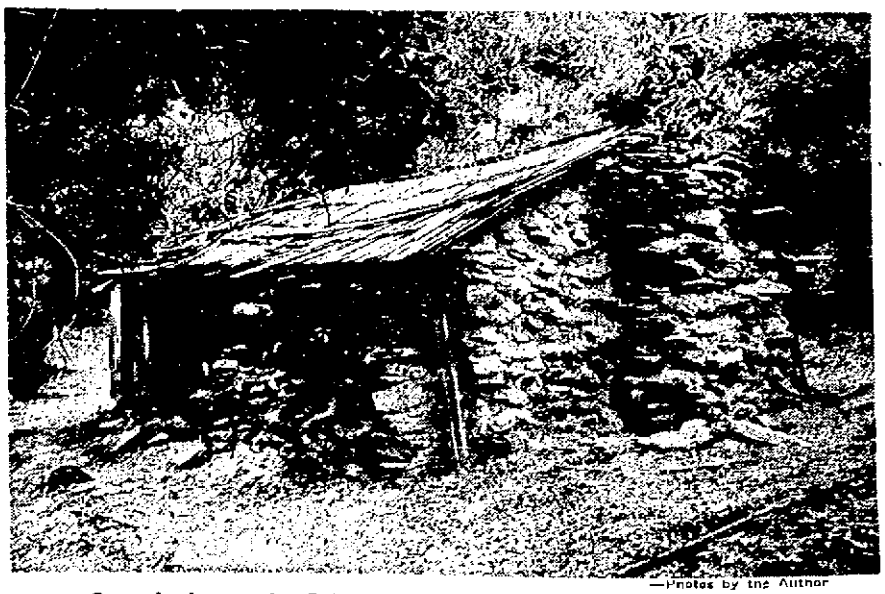

Doane's Valley, named after George Doane, one of the earliest white settlers on Palomar, is now included in the State Park. Old ruins, crumbling deserted farm buildings are silent reminders of the past.

Abandoned apple orchards, yielding delicious fruit, are still found in unexpected places.

The "Palomar Giant," an apple known to grow as large as six inches in diameter and to weigh as much as a pound, and crabapples, small in comparison, offer a luscious treat.

DEER ENJOY the fruit and

Broadway to End o' Track

By Terry Vernon
Independent, Press-Telegram TV Columnist

Stars of "Union Pacific": Susan Cummings as Georgia, dance hall operator, and Jeff Morrow, a rail official.

IT'S A LONG jump from Broadway shows to the end of the Union Pacific Railroad line but that was the feat of Susan Cummings in the period of a few short months.

Susan portrays Georgia, owner of the Golden Spike gambling hall and saloon in the new TV series called "Union Pacific" that shows on (4) each Wednesday at 7 p.m.

I met her at the Hollywood Brown Derby for lunch and an interview the other day and was surprised to learn that her only experience with gambling was at Las Vegas.

"I like to put coins in those machines and pull the handles," she said, with charming candor. "I didn't really do any researching on the other kinds of gambling even though I own the Golden Spike in the TV series."

SHE TOLD ME that her gambling hall and saloon is really a very nice place and not at all rough and tough as one would expect. "I like to think of it as a railroad man's USO," she said.

Susan, who is amply supplied with female endowments, is a strawberry blonde but her hair appears black on TV. She was born in Alsace-Lorraine and was named Suzanna Gerda Ta Fel, which sounds not at all like Susan Cummings, but that is Hollywood.

Once in America, at the age of 12, she began a career of singing and wound up on radio station WIBI in Newark. At 14 she was singing with the Clyde Lucas band in the Biltmore Hotel in New York and then sang for the bands of Gene Krupa and Claude Thornhill.

TWO BROADWAY SHOWS flopped under her and then she joined the cast of "Carousel" which played for 46 weeks in New York. She came to the West Coast and wound up in the "Big Town" TV series. In between shows she managed to have featured roles in a number of movies. This year Susan got her first starring role in "Verboten" to be released soon.

She's a 5-foot, 4-inch gal and her measurements are 37-22-34½. She wears a size 8 dress and a 6½ shoe.

For lunch she had a cocktail (orange juice straight), hamburger steak with french fried onions, salad, two huge rolls, and a hunk of grapefruit cake.

"I like to eat and on the set they are amazed that a girl as small as I am can stow away so much food. I never seem to gain weight, and maybe it is because I'm pretty active. I like to ride, swim and dance. Right now I'm busy supervising

Law: Do-It-Yourself Style

Remembered also for its singularity was the landlord who filed a claim and appeared in court to recover from a tenant —the value of a lost key.

MORE FREQUENTLY now, however, is a new kind of claimant. Big business is filing small claims. Actions for unmet bills are initiated daily by local department stores, utility companies, and even by Los Angeles County for delinquent taxes. This broadened base actually creates a very satisfactory dual purpose for the small claims court. According to Mrs. Bauchet, "The more frequently people use the court for legitimate claims, the more the load in the overcrowded municipal court is eased."

Lawyers and judges point with pride to the small claims court. Here the so-called "penny-ante" case will receive the same careful and courteous atention as its huge-sum counterpart in the courtroom next door.

By offering fast justice at small cost, while also clearing the municipal calendar for larger, more complicated suits, the small claims court is operating at a great benefit to claimants and the legal profession alike.

21 Stories Up

Berlin's tallest skyscraper-to be is on the way up. The 21-story "House of Electricity," under construction, will be the city's highest office building. The building is going up at Ernst Reuter Sq., a busy West Berlin traffic center, which itself is presently being remodeled to cope with up-to-date traffic requirements. Reconstruction around the square, the largest in Berlin, is scheduled for completion in 1960, when the former "Knie" (Knee) of Berlin will be surrounded by modern office buildings, some of which are already completed.

Hobby Council

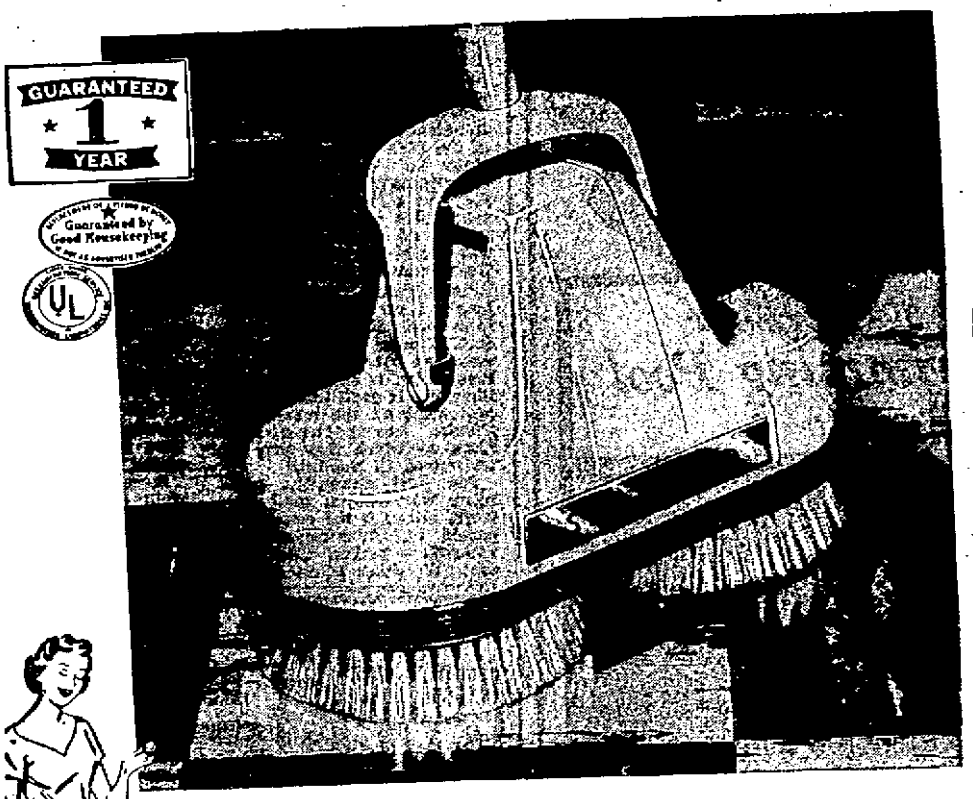

Theme for the 1959 Long Beach Hobby Show, to be held next May 8-11, will be selected and preliminary plans for the show discussed at the November meeting of the Long Beach Hobby Clubs Council at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Veterans Recreation Center Clubhouse, 101 E. 28th St. Mrs. Lois DeLano will show colored slides of previous hobby shows. All hobbyists are invited. Council officers say canned food is urgently needed for the Recovery Service Pantry, and urge those attending to make such a contribution.

Count Down for Mr. Lukawiecki

By Olive Breed

LAST FRIDAY, Count Eugene Lukawiecki, Polish nobleman and TV personality living in Long Beach, obeyed a legal summons. He reported at the Court House, Los Angeles. Shortly thereafter he raised his right hand and took the oath of allegiance to the United States. When he lowered his hand, he lowered the boom on the title his family had borne since 1245 A.D.

"Sign here, Count," said the clerk.

"Mr. to you," countered the new citizen.

"How does it feel, giving up a title?" he was asked.

"It is a square deal," was his comment.

"He means he thinks he is getting the long end of the deal," interposed the delightful Mrs. Lukawiecki, who is an American.

BECAUSE THE lands, castle and treasures that gave it meaning are gone, the title itself was not hard to relinquish. The accumulated possessions of 700 years were seized, first by the Germans, and are now in the hands of the Russians.

The count undoubtedly made millions of friends when he won $32,000 on a television show as a hot rod enthusiast. He came out of that unbeaten, but not unhonored, for he received a citation from the Auto Timing Association of America. The plaque in inscribed, "For great service on behalf of the nation's hot rodders."

"It could happen only in America," the former count maintains. "I have never seen a people who want to be so helpful. Here they are not envious of others."

AND HIS FUTURE as an American? The former "Duke of the DP's" seriously contemplates writing a book on his experiences of more than three years in a Nazi concentration camp. Out of 106 who were imprisoned at the time, he was one of the eight who had the stamina to survive.

"Any future is bright as long as I am in America. There is so much life, so much freedom. I have applied for an American patent on my invention, which is called Bilingual Simultan. It constitutes an improvement on the manner of showing foreign language films, by which they may be understood in English."

His final citizenship ceremony was delayed until last week, although the count had passed his Americanism examinations earlier. The reason: "We never admit anyone to citizenship within six weeks of election, because they might vote without knowing the true issues."

Lukawiecki had a hearty laugh at this, then added: "They were very right."

He's Mr. Lukawiecki today. Two days ago he gave up title of count to become U. S. citizen.

Space Men

SOME neighborhood children were fastening small containers to their kites—the kind of plastic boxes that come out of penny slot machines — and one of them said,

"Let's send him up a thousand miles into space!"

I asked the boys what they were doing.

"Oh, we're sending ants into space to see if they survive."

They were doing just that. Each small container had an ant in it, with holes punched in it for air and some bread crumbs for food. The tiny boxes were taped to the framework of the kite.

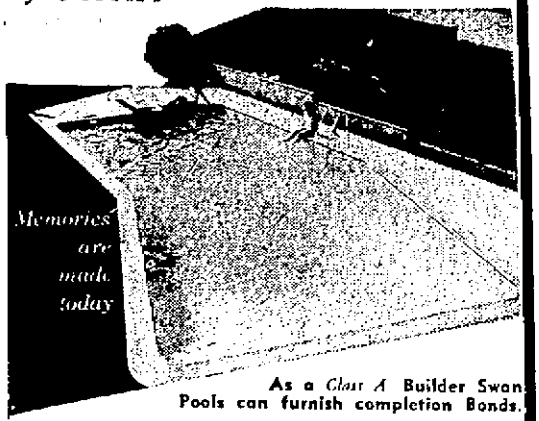

So I watched and felt the thrill of future scientists at work on one of their very first experiments.

Small loaves of French bread, sliced lengthwise and filled with... well, you name it but have plenty of it in variety. Let the boys "build 'em."

Hearty Hero Sandwiches

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

LOTS OF hearty food, a favorite beverage, simple informal service, and no womenfolk around—there is the recipe for a successful man-sized party when your man plays host to his own special gang.

Hearty hero sandwiches will make the boys thoroughly happy. Use small loaves of French bread, one to a sandwich, or the yard-long loaves, cut in thirds. Fillings, hot or cold, should be whole-meal type. In every case, slice the bread lengthwise into two or three slices and spread each slice generously with butter or margarine.

Hashburger Heroes

Corn beef patties, onion and pepper rings.

Use canned hash and make the patties thin. Broil to crisp brown. Add raw onion and pepper rings.

Chuck Wagon

Spiced meat balls, barbecue sauce, sliced cheddar cheese.

Spread sauce on both top and bottom bread slice. Fry small meat balls in skillet. Put in meat and cheese filling and bake quickly in oven until cheese melts.

Boston Boy

Baked beans, luncheon meat or frankfurters, chili sauce.

Cut luncheon meat into cubes. Add to beans, season with chili sauce. Add prepared mustard or minced onion to taste. Simmer 15 minutes.

Midnight Snack

Chicken livers, scrambled eggs, tomato slices.

Add chopped sauteed chicken livers to scrambled eggs seasoned with onion or garlic.

Cold Plate

Baked ham and potato salad. Top filling with pickle relish or a generous smear of mustard.

Sunday Special

Sliced chicken, cranberry sauce, lettuce.

Use canned cranberry sauce cut in thin slices and cover filling with Thousand Island Dressing.

Seafare

Shrimp salad, crisp bacon slices, slaw.

Substitute cucumber slices for slaw, if you wish, or add chopped butter-toasted nuts to shrimp salad.

Ham and Cheese Hearty

Sliced ham, Swiss cheese, lettuce and tomato.

Use mustard-horseradish spread for seasoning.

Antipasto Giant

Salami, cheddar cheese and sliced pickle.

Make up the fillings in advance and refrigerate. Your hero can do the last-minute cooking for hot sandwiches. Provide guests with choice of fillings, then it's each man for himself. If you want the sandwich to be a little less monumental, scoop out a part of the center from each half of the bread loaf. Of course, true hero slingers rave out without bothering to scoop out the bread. Dessert: Don't forget the knives!

Pacific Pork Chops

4 pork shoulder steaks, cut ½ inch thick
1 teaspoon salt
1 can (13½ ounces) pineapple chunks and juice
¼ cup raisins
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
2 teaspoons cornstarch
¼ cup cold water

Brown steaks well on both sides. Pour off drippings. Season with salt. Add pineapple chunks and juice, raisins, lemon juice, lemon rind and nutmeg. Cover tightly and simmer 45 minutes. Remove steaks to a hot serving platter. Measure cooking liquid and, if necessary, add water to make ¾ cup. Mix cornstarch and ¼ cup cold water. Add to cooking liquid and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Pour sauce over steaks before serving. Four servings.

SERVE WITH: Grapefruit Halves, Country Fried Potatoes, Eggplant en Casserole, Hot Rolls, Sliced Tomatoes, Caramel-Pecan Pudding.

Eye-Popping Latin

Saucy Latin, Isabel Sarli is a movie box office record smasher. Long Beach recalls her as Miss U entry.

By Sam Summerlin
Associated Press Writer

A SAUCY Latin lass has smashed South American box office records with the most daring dunking since Hedy LaMarr disrobed to fame in "Ecstasy."

Isabel Sarli's nude bath in her film debut rocked some Latin capitals. But the audacious 23-year-old Argentine raised hopes that she may be the key to pulling the world movie eyes southward.

Latin beauties have run away with the Miss Universe crown two years in a row, but there hasn't been a major South American movie queen since the fiery Carmen Miranda.

Sarli danced into the limelight by capturing the "Miss Argentina" contest in 1955. She didn't win the world crown at Long Beach, but she blazed a well-remembered trail with her pungent remark that her dream man would be a "Marlon Brando who bathes."

BACK HOME, Sarli wasn't interested in movie making. But the bug finally bit her when Armando Bo, one of Argentina's veteran actors and directors, talked her into taking the starring role in his film version of a Paraguayan classic, "Thunder Among the Leaves."

Bo, Argentina's Humphrey Bogart, was her leading man, but Sarli snagged the headlines in her film debut with a splash in the nude in a Paraguayan lagoon.

The movie, a brutal story of a white plantation boss and his iron rule over Paraguayan Indians and peons, was filmed in the jungle of the tiny landlocked nation that lies just north of Argentina.

The movie's premiere in Montevideo broke box office records. The opening in Buenos Aires was hailed as the start of a new era for Argentina's movie industry which has floundered since it fell under the iron grip of ex-dictator Juan Perón's propaganda chiefs.

Sarli says she has been offered tempting roles in European films, particularly in Italy. But . . .

"I want to stay home and learn to be a good actress, not just a nude one. Then I may go abroad."

SARLI, WHO MEASURES a firm 36-21-36, is a dark-eyed brunette who loves the outdoors. She is an expert swimmer and keeps her figure trim also by horseback riding and walking her pet poodle, Jack.

Latin movie critics haven't lost their heads over Isabel's acting ability, but they blow the horn for her daring. The big Montevideo newspaper "El Pais" headlined that one of her scenes makes Brigitte Bardot's latest film look like "a family movie."

LONG BEACH

Southland takes its readers into a different, attractive Long Beach area home each week.

Hunters say that the wild turkey is unsurpassed by any bird in world. Arizona has restricted hunting.

King of Wild Birds

By Joe Houston

SINCE there are few flocks in California, with no shooting permitted, Southland sportsmen stalk wild turkeys each fall in Arizona—often for Thanksgiving dinner. They have good reason to be thankful, too, if they get one, for these native bronze giants are considered the aristocrats of American game birds and, where hunting is concerned, unsurpassed by any bird in the world.

Designated the "Merriam turkey" by the Arizona Game and Fish Dept., these turkeys provide much sport for hunters who venture into the vast ponderosa pine and oak forests of north-central and northeastern Arizona. Besides the turkey season comes when the first frosts of autumn have turned the high country into a riot of color and sportsmen find the days warm and sunny while nights are crisp and invigorating.

THE PILGRIM FATHERS hunted turkeys in New England for Thanksgiving 82 years after white men saw turkeys in New Mexico during Coronado's Expedition. Because of their delicious meat, these wild fowl were practically eliminated from their historical ranges by greedy white men as early as 1903. But now the bronze beauty is being carefully managed and returned to former haunts by trapping and transporting under the wildlife restoration program.

Wild turkeys live at an elevation of from 7,000 to 9,000 feet in summer but come down to 4,500 in winter. Their range preference is actually determined by the abundance of food and amount of cover to satisfy their shy nature. They are so shy that a person may enter their haunts without seeing them although they may be found within five different vegetation type zones: mountain meadows, broad leaf trees, and conifer. Their foods consist of grass seed, ponderosa pine and oak mast (fruit), green vegetable matter, berries and insects.

THEY BREED in the forests and the mating season is late March or early April. The incubation period is about 28 days so that an average of 13 buff-colored eggs, spotted with rust, are hatched by June. Only the hen incubates the eggs and she tries to keep her nest location a secret even from her spouse. The young get very little care from the dad gobbler who conserves his energy also by strutting only during the mating season.

The average adult male weighs 12 pounds though some attain 30. The top of his head is creamy white while the rest of his head and neck shine a bluish-violet. Wattles hanging from the bill are brilliant red, feathers of under parts an iridescent bronzy green, tipped with black, and the tail and rump feathers broadly tipped with buff. His feet are greenish-brown with a spur on the inside. A bristly tuft of beard on the male's chest may be six to eight inches long. Quite a few females also wear beards. But this seems to be their only attempt at equal rights for they are duller in color and smaller than males. Domesticated turkeys are descendants of a relative of this superb game species, the most colorful of all.

TODAY, TURKEY is classed as big game in Arizona and the season is open in controlled units on a drawing basis only. Applications are available as early as mid-August. The public drawings are held in September and hunting dates start the first of October. Hunters, both residents and non-residents, must have a general hunting license plus a turkey tag. After the kill, the tag must be locked at once around the base of a wing.

Game regulations state that any rifle except the .22 caliber or any pistol of .357 caliber or larger is legal for turkey in Arizona. Smaller guns are better, however, as they waste less meat. Shotguns not larger than 10 gauge are also allowed as well as bows with a pull of not less than 40 pounds and broadhead arrows of not less than seven-eighths of an inch.

Stereophonic sound is a new way of recording and reproducing music. The new stereophonic records, properly reproduced, provide both depth and direction to the selection being played, thereby creating in your home the same fullness and brilliance you would hear if you were present in the concert hall.

Up to this time records have been made with only one sound channel in each record groove. They have been played on an ordinary pickup, single amplifier and speaker (or set of speakers). Because only one sound channel is available, such "monaural" recordings can reproduce sound only as if it originated from a single source rather than capturing the depth and brilliance of a full orchestra arrangement.

Stereophonic records are made by recording the sounds heard from two separately positioned microphones. These two separate sound tracks are actually transferred to the two sides of the single groove of the stereophonic record.

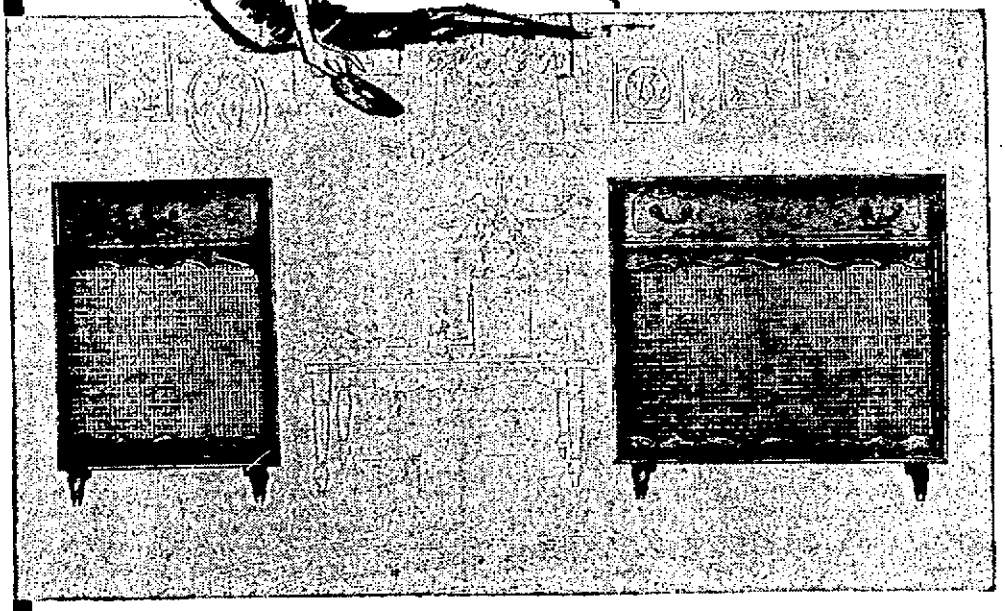

To reproduce stereo records one must have a special pickup which simultaneously responds to each of the separate channels recorded on the two sides of the record groove. Further, each sound channel must have its own separate amplifier and speaker system so that each channel is reproduced in your home exactly as it was heard by the two microphones during the original performance.

For finest reproduction the two sets of matched speakers should be separated by an appreciable distance (as were the microphones during the original recording). Then one can hear the direction from which the sound comes in the orchestra itself. You feel the depth of the sound in accordance with the orchestral placement. You hear all the sound recorded in its true living richness and beauty. Only stereo can produce the brilliant vibrance of living music at its best.

and why is Hoffman Stereo-Fi best?

In order to get the best stereo reproduction, the instruments must be of finest quality—and look at the features Hoffman includes!

With Hoffman you get exclusive "Floating Sound," most exciting Hi-Fi feature in the industry; you get a powerful amplifier with Hoffman's exclusive visual Frequency Display Scope; you get the new Garrard 4-speed record changer with dual diamond/sapphire styli; you get exquisite styling in cabinets made of solid hardwood.

The matching speaker/amplifier unit has 3 matched speakers in "Floating Sound" chamber; amplifier with visual Frequency Display Scope to make balancing of sound easy; crossover network; separate bass and treble controls.

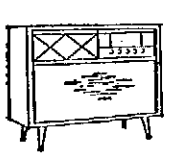

True high fidelity reproduction requires heavy magnet speakers. These speakers create mechanical vibration. Until Hoffman developed "Floating Sound" it was necessary to separate the speakers from the source of sound to avoid the record-chatter and rumble caused by speaker vibration. But in the Hoffman "Floating Sound" chamber multiple speakers are mounted in a solid hardwood enclosure and cushioned on springs within the cabinet, completely eliminating distortion due to vibration.

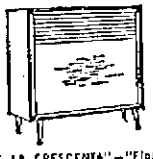

The Hoffman "Floating Sound" high fidelity unit and the "Symphony" 35F stereo speaker/amplifier are equipped with Frequency Display Scope. This exclusive Hoffman feature lets you adjust bass and treble controls on both units visually, lets you "see" what you like best to hear.

Let your Hoffman dealer demonstrate the full beauty of stereophonic sound on the great new Hoffman Stereo-Fi

TRAVEL AND RESORTS

Here's the World on a Platter

Qantas Photo

Qantas Empire Airways has 16 Super "G" Constellations, like this one shown flying over upper Sydney Harbor, operating on its 72,000-mile world girdling network.

YOU CAN HAVE the world on a platter in five days or 80 days or a year—thanks to the service developed for the American traveler by Qantas Empire Airways, Australia's globe-girdling airline.

Qantas, one of the major international airlines, serving 27 countries and five continents over 72,000 route miles, spans the world with a fleet of Super "G" Constellations. In mid-1959 Qantas will move fully into the jet age—with the delivery of its Boeing 707 jet for round-the-world service. Shortly thereafter Qantas will receive its Lockheed Electra—a prop jet medium-range transport for service in the Pacific area.

MANNED BY an all-Australian crew of 10, the Super-Connie is equipped with every passenger comfort. For de luxe first class travel the passenger can relax in adjustable foam rubber seats and dine on superb food served with complementary wines and champagnes of the finest vintage.

American travelers may board a Qantas round-the-world plane at San Francisco and New York. The service is the only global flight operating through these two cities and is twice weekly, Eastbound and Westbound. Traveling time for the 25,000-mile journey: 5 days and 22 hours. But anyone who wishes to take longer to get acquainted with his world has a ticket valid for one year in which to do it. His journey may be broken at any port of call without additional charge.

IMPORTANT ITEM: Free baggage allowance of 66 pounds first class and 44 pounds tourist class.

Here is a check list for the air traveler—whether you are going 2,500 or 25,000 miles:

1. Qantas will supply you with all the information about health, currency, visas and passports. Read them carefully.

2. Plan your flight wardrobe in advance. For women, darker clothes look less "lived-in" and double-duty clothes like jacket dresses and reversible coats are high on the list. A lightweight wool suit is a great standby. If travel is to warm climates, wrinkle-shedding fabrics like cotton, tweeds, wool jerseys, nylons, silk jerseys are best with wool tweeds, wool jerseys for the colder stops.

3. In addition to your baggage allowance, you may carry aboard a handbag, overcoat or wrap, rubbers, umbrella or walking stick, a small camera, binoculars, magazines or books and if you are traveling with a baby, his special formulas, as well.

4. Use travelers' checks. Foreign currency is available at foreign exchange booths at the airports or at any bank. Qantas also supplies currency coupons which are helpful in minor purchases of personal items and souvenirs.

5. Comfortable clothes while in the air will make the trip more enjoyable.

MEXICO CITY

"We plan to live in Mexico City for a year. Can we send our children to school there?"

THERE is an American school here. But most of the Americans put their children in school only until they are about 10 years old. Then they send them up to the States. Apparently they think the schools are better at home.

The American Embassy has all the information on schools.

". . . an inexpensive hotel in Mexico City?"

INEXPENSIVE hotels charge $1.80 a day single; $6.40 a day double. These are American-style hotels with help that speaks (more or less) English

The best of these are the Geneve and the Maria Cristina.

For more expensive hotels—about $8 to $10 a day single: The Del Prado, big modern, central; the Reforma, the Hilton, the Alffer, the El Presidente, the Monte Cassino.

Better shop these a little. Mexican investors want their money back in about one year. Consequently, hotel prices have gone up and you can get tapped for $20 a day.

For very Mexican atmosphere, the de Cortez (This is where I stay. But it may be too richly Mexican for a first time in Mexico.) The Majestic and the Francis are much the same. But—.

There are pretty good hotels, purely Mexican, in the old quarter where you can get economy rooms at $2 and $3 a day. The Hotel Isabel in the street Isabel la Catolica is one.

". . . a good place to buy silver?"

IN MEXICO CITY, the India Bonita next door to Wells Fargo and American Express has the best designs. Though I think the prices are pretty high.

Those little walk-in shops along Avenida Juarez are cheap. But when you you get back home, you'll find the things you bought look pretty shoddy.

All the shops in the block around the Hotel Geneve in the tourist section have good silver, well-designed.

If you are going over to Taxco, you get the greatest choice of silver. Los Castillos and Spratling are excellent shops.

The Mexico City guides will try to push you into the shops along the highway rather than those in town. For a good reason: The highway shops are giving the guides 40 per cent commission and this has become a major racket of Taxco.

Ski or Swim in Oregon

From skiing pole to swimming pool, winter sports areas promise a delightful vacation to Oregon visitors during the next few months.

Skiing poles will be in evidence at 16 ski areas—one of them new—distributed throughout this Pacific Northwest state. The swimming pool will be new to Timberline Lodge, Oregon's major ski resort, at the 6,000-foot level of Mt. Hood.

In winter or summer weather, this pool will be warm enough to provide excellent swimming in a rather startling location. Water temperature in summer will be 70 degrees, and in winter will hover around 80 degrees.

Winter sports enthusiasts will have a new skiing area on the north slope of Mt. Bachelor, 23 miles west of Bend, just off a paved U. S. Forest Service highway.

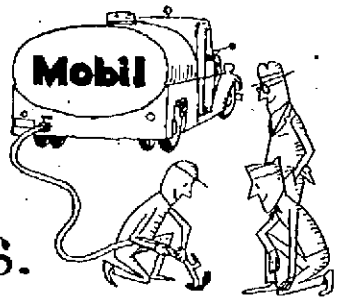

Another new Pomalift has been installed in an already-established ski area, Willamette Pass, at the Cascade Mountains summit on Oregon Hwy. 58. The lift has a length of 3,000 feet, with a vertical rise of 750 feet. Willamette Pass also has three rope tows and facilities for tobogganing, jumping and cross country skiing.

Timberline Lodge has two chairlifts and three rope tows. One of the lifts is the "Magic Mile," with a length of 5,000 feet and a vertical rise of 1,000 feet. The lodge can accommodate 250 overnight guests.

Additional accommodations are available at Government Camp, where several other ski areas are located. Among them are Tom-Dick Ski Bowl, Multorpor, Summit Area, Summit House and Sno-Bunny Lodge.

Among other popular skiing spots are Santiam Pass-Hoodoo Bowl on the Santiam Pass 37 miles west of Bend; Tollgate-Spout Springs, at Spout Springs Mountain north of La Grande, and Tomahawk Ski Bowl, 24 miles northwest of Klamath Falls.

Climbing the Plate Glass Cliffs

A GOOD MANY books are bitter, a good many are penetrating. The two qualities are combined, with considerable brilliance, by Edward Stephens, a former Balboa resident, where his parents still live, in "A Twist of Lemon" (Doubleday, $3.95)

It is a devastating story of a young man's desperate scramble up the cold and treacherous plate-glass cliffs of Madison Ave. Scott Willoughby, gray flannel wearer and ambitious young advertising man, sets forth to make a name for himself in the august offices of Temple & MacPherson, Inc. advertising agency, handler of big accounts.

Scott finds his co-workers friendly and helpful until he climbs high enough to be a menace, then the dog-eat-dog tactics begin.

"The agency business," Scott thinks, "is like a huge chess game. The point of everything is checkmate and then advance. But you can not advance until you have successfully boxed your opposition. A successful man is one who can energetically pursue the battle below and the battle above at the same time."

Through the novel move the three women in Scott's life: Marcia Ann, the first to help him, with whom he shares an apartment; Frances Dodd, who gives him his first understanding of the agency's top-secret, policy-making decisions, and then the bitch of a Mary Lou Albright, who preys on every man's weakness.

The odd title? A twist of lemon gives a drink bitterness but it saves it from flatness.

"THE MEMOIRS OF FIELD-MARSHAL MONTGOMERY" (World, $6): After 13 years, Field Marshal Montgomery points to what he believes were the failures of Allied strategy in World War II. He names names without partiality, generals and politicians alike. He and General Eisenhower were "poles apart" on strategy, he writes, but for the General he has nothing but warm friendship and appreciation of his over-all leadership during and after the war. He believes that if the Allies had thrown their entire resources into a single smash on Berlin and the Ruhr, which he advocated, the German surrender would have come in 1944. After the Allies broke out of the Normandy bridgehead, they had no strategic plan ready for dealing the Nazis a death blow. The Field Marshal's hindsight is bound to stir controversy.

"THE CONCISE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF WORLD HISTORY" edited by John Boyle (Hawthorn, $12.95): Twenty-three eminent historians, each dealing with the area in which he is a specialist, combine talents to produce this beautiful and altogether satisfying story which takes man from the dawn of recorded time into the 20th century. Edited by a renowned historian, there are more than 200,000 words, 160 pages of black and white illustrations, and 16 pages in full color. It all adds up to a classic to be read and kept in a handy place on the family reference shelf.

"PRINCESS MARGARET" by Gordon Langley Hall, (Macrae Smith, $3.50: You may call her "Margaret Rose" or "Aunt Margo" or "The Dolly Princess," but this younger sister of Queen Elizabeth II brings perpetual springtime to the hearts of the people of the British Empire. They love her, and their love is reflected in this informal biography by an English newspaperman who has covered the royal family on many tours. The princess, born in Scotland—to the joy of the Scottish people!—is slim, pretty, vivacious, devoted to her family, and an excellent ambassadress, representative of her sister. Her renunciation of the love of Group Capt. Peter Townsend was a severe test: her emotions and private life against her duty to the empire and her church. Mr. Hall does not discount the possibility that the princess yet may fall in love and marry. Her bridegroom, thinks her biographer, need not be of royal blood.

"THE SECRET OF SECRETS" by U. S. Andersen (Thomas Nelson, $3.95): Below the level of man's consciousness is a mind of tremendous power which, if tapped, can put him at peace with himself. In this inspiring book, Andersen, a successful Southland business man, offers his proof that such a mind exists and offers his formula for tapping it for a full and happy life.

"FAIRY TALES" by Hans Christian Andersen (Orion Press, $4.95): Long a source of delight for children from 8 to 80, some 40 enchanting tales by one of the world's most gifted storytellers make up this book, with illustrations in full color by children from 18 nations. The book would make a wonderful gift.

"THE KLONDIKE FEVER: The Life and Death of the Last Gold Rush" by Pierre Berton (Knopf, $5.75): Eleven months after gold was discovered in the Alaska-Yukon territory, the news leaked out and the stampede began. It was a crushing one, with fortune hunters fighting and enduring all manner of hardships for the vast wealth that awaited them. Mr. Berton spent the first 12 years of his life in Dawson City and seven years of careful re-

"She doesn't suspect a thing! She thinks I forgot her birthday!"

READERS OF The Saturday Evening Post often say that the first thing they do, upon receiving a copy of the magazine, is to run through it quickly and enjoy the cartoons. These and others who like a good laugh will get 350 chuckles out of 350 top cartoons selected from 25 years of the magazine in "THE SATURDAY EVENING POST CARTOON FESTIVAL" (Dutton, $3.95). The selections (the above is a sample) were made by Marione R. Nickles, and they make up a book which should not be forgotten when holiday gift lists are compiled.

Two other new volumes fall in the same category: "BEST CARTOONS OF THE YEAR 1958" edited by Lawrence Lariar, and "BEST CARTOONS FROM ABROAD 1958" edited by Lariar and Ben Roth (Crown, $2.90 each). Each, with 300 cartoons, is positively hilarious.

H. ALLEN SMITH

Brightly painted graveyards and lunatic cabbies, red-hot chiles and somber legends, defelict plumbing and a hog running wild in a tonsorial emporium where he's getting a haircut—H. Allen Smith leaves nothing unsaid about his sojourn to Mexico in "THE PIG IN THE BARBER SHOP" (Little, Brown, $3.95). A choice dish of humor for anyone contemplating a trip to Mexico or who has already been there, measuring up to the author's previous best sellers such as "Low Man on the Totem Pole" and "Rhubarb."

search before writing this book, which is the most sweeping and exciting of any yet published on the subject.

"LOST SUMMER" by Christopher Davis (Harcourt, Brace, $3.95): A compelling novel about a girl who, after being raped, finds herself rejected by love, society and, finally, her family. A book that should move up in the best-seller list.

"A PICTORIAL HISTORY OF THE TALKIES" by Daniel Blum (Putnam, $10): Like its predecessor, "A Pictorial History of the Silent Screen," this particular era in entertainment — from the time more than three decades ago when Al Jolson wowed the country in the first talkie, "The Jazz Singer," to the present. There is a minimum of text, yet plenty to review each advancement, all arranged in chronological order. The remainder of the outsize book is devoted to more than 1,000 pictures of stars, in striking poses or in scenes from movies. There are Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery in "Min and Bill" and Douglas Fairbanks in "The Iron Mask" to such present hits as Robert Ryan and Tina Louise in "God's Little Acre" and Cary Grant and Ingrid Bergman in "Indiscreet." In between are the old favorites — Jean Harlow, Carole Lombard, William Powell, Mary Pickford, Leslie Howard, Tom Mix, Warner Baxter, Hedy Lamarr (just like she appeared in "Ecstasy") — to such present-day boxoffice attractions as Marilyn Monroe, Sophia Loren, Leslie Caron, Anita Eckberg and Brigitte Bardot. What a gift for someone who has always liked going to the movies!

PAPERBACK originals (first time to appear in book form) just issued: "Revenge," a hard-hitting, tough, original novel by Jack Ehrlich (Dell, 25c); "The Concubine," love and a trouble-maker on a remote island, by Michael East (Dell, 25c); "Bell, Book and Candle," a comedy in play form, by John Van Druten (Bantam, 35c); "Mark Twain, a Laurel Reader," edited by Edmund Fuller. (Dell, 50c).

pay almost no attention to humans who pause to gaze at a spotted fawn.

Nan Van Rensselaer Couts of La Mesa went to Palomar for the first time in 1906, riding horseback up what is now known as the Old West Grade. Mrs. Couts, formerly of Fallbrook and Oceanside, with her parents, seven brothers and one sister used to camp at Palomar's Iron Springs during the summer. She remembers how black, red and white raspberries were gathered by the buckeisful and how the cherry trees bowed low with their fruit.

James Van Rensselaer, Mrs. Couts' father, and a worldwide traveler, often said, "If you stop to consider everything—climate, scenery, wildlife—there is no spot on earth as perfect as Palomar Mountain.

The mountain dogwood, one of America's favorite trees, blooms in early spring.

Azaleas line the creek beds, which wind through the hidden gorges, and intermingle with the willow tree. A swallow-tail butterfly refreshes itself with the sweetness of, perhaps, the best known flower on Palomar.

The lemon lily is rare but sometimes its bright head is seen nodding in the sunshine.

The tiger-lily is always dressed for Halloween in a red-orange gown with dark spots, it is found on shaded hillsides in early summer.

YELLOW BUTTERCUPS, blue and yellow violets and the first wild flower of spring—tiny Baby Blue Eyes—make a carpet upon which, surely, the fairies dance.

Early in the morning the wild rose is seen lifting its pink face to be refreshed by the morning dew.

Raccoons are numerous. A favorite pastime of the children of residents on the mountain is to put food under a tree, after dark, and wait, patiently with a flashlight, for a visit from these wide-eyed little creatures.

A garden in the sky, Palomar Mountain remains a silent sentinel guarding its past as it slowly unravels the mysteries of the future.

They're Chili, but They're Hot!

By Betty Hardesty

Photos by the Author

For ages, strings of chilis have hung like this from adobe dwellings of Indians, curing in the dry winds.

CHILI PEPPERS attract attention as they hang on walls and roofs of Indian dwellings near Mt. Palomar and throughout California and Arizona. The bright red of their shiny pods sparkles in picturesque strings which rustle when touched or swayed by the wind. Thus chillis have hung for centuries.

Today, as through the centuries, the gathering and preparation of chilis is an important ritual to the Indians. The moment of picking the ripened pods is a matter of close observation and tense decision for unless chilis are picked at exactly the right time, the brilliant red color will fade to a patchy pale yellow or white.

For this reason, the Indians take pride in their strands and love their beauty as much as their taste. Prior to stringing, the pods must be dried in piles and then spread out in layers about 2 inches thick.

ALL YEAR Mexicans and Indians eat incredible quantities of these hot dried peppers and during the growing season savor the green as well as the red fresh ones. Chilis are not only delicious but are a rich source of vitamins. However, they are less popular in U.S. than bell peppers.

Chili peppers hang from roof of Indian dwelling.

This was not the case in the early days of California. Then, the chili was considered a superlative viand as it had been for centuries throughout South America as shown by prehistoric fragments over 2,000 years old.

These chili peppers were found in Peruvian ruins together with garments embroidered with pictures of the pepper plant's fruit and flowers. Chili was highly regarded in the old world of Europe from the moment of its discovery and importation.

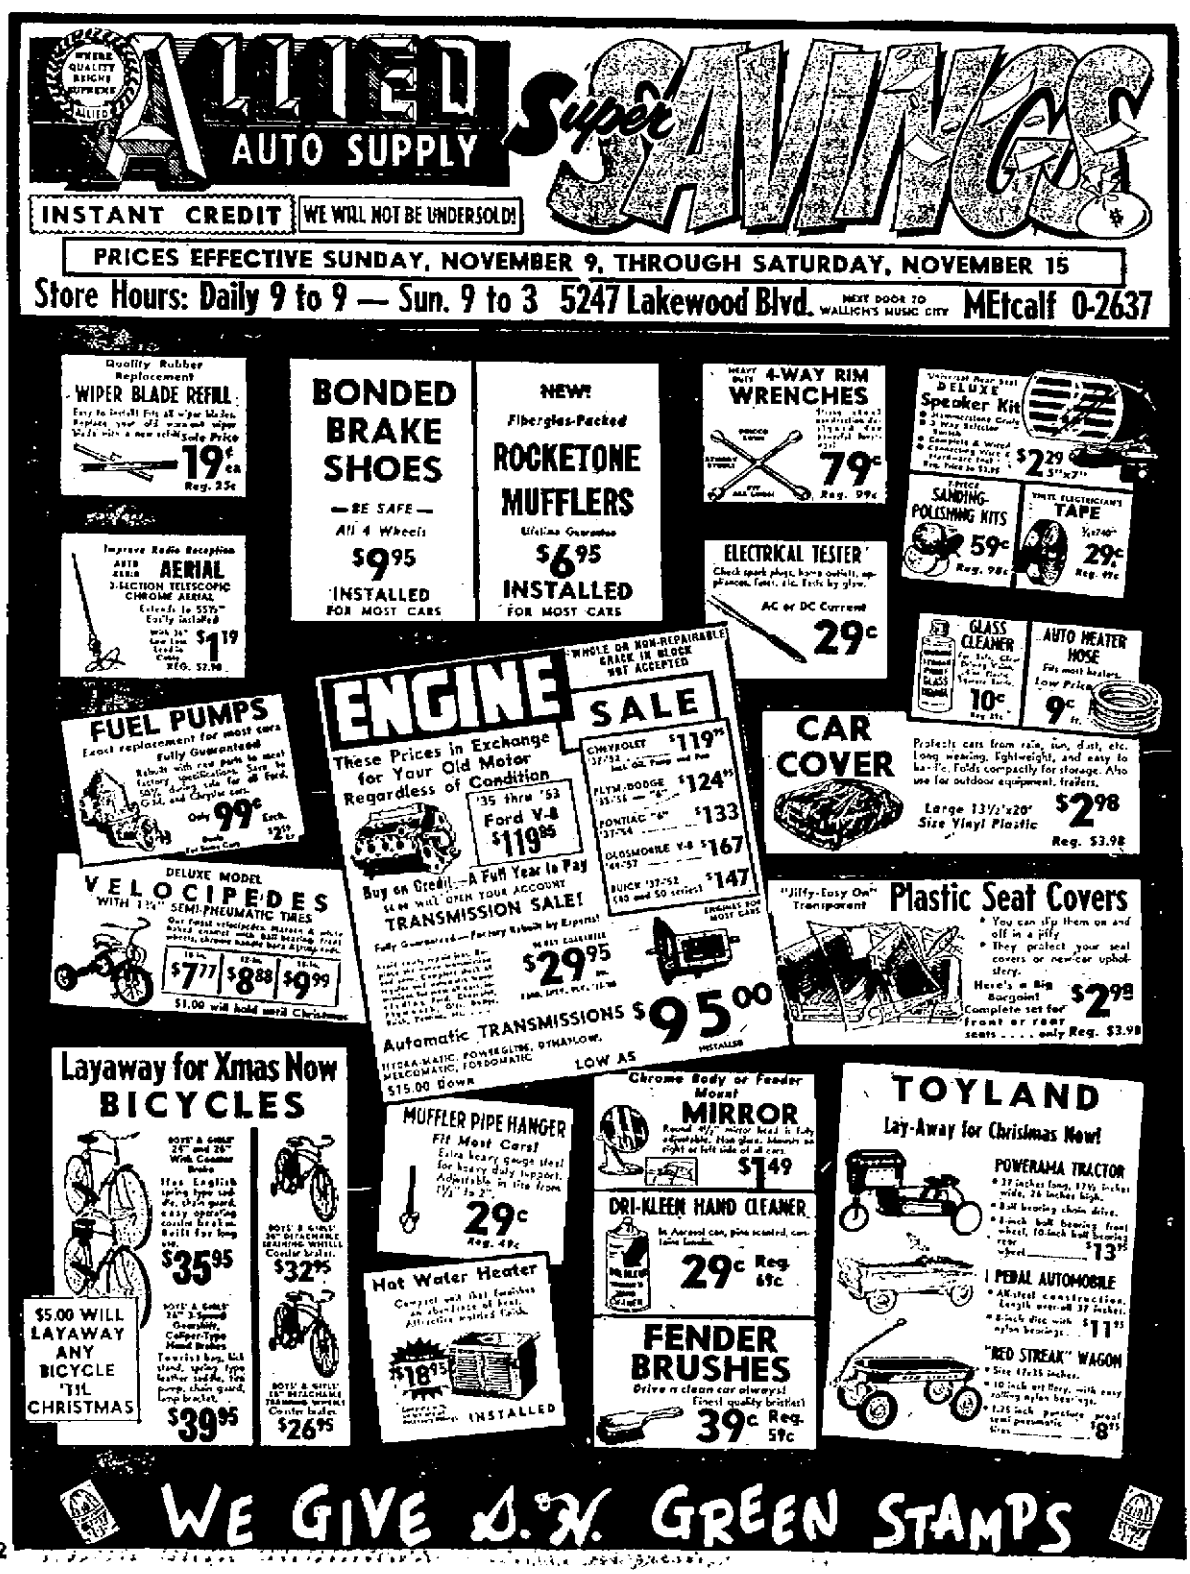

COLUMBUS FOUND chili peppers when he landed on the West Indies looking for a short route to the spice-rich East. To this spice-conscious explorer, the chili (Capsicum) was an invaluable find. The intense interest in the pungent forms of Capsicum peppers from that time on is shown by numerous descriptive records, unique in the history of American plants.

These records prove peppers were taken to Spain in 1493, were known in England by 1548 and in Central Europe by 1585. In the 17th century, the Portuguese took them to India where they became so common the American origin was long forgotten even though in India they are still called "chillies."

In Spain, the word for hot peppers is "chili," meaning from Chile, and their term for a mixture of chopped meat and beans highly flavored with chili pepper, "chili con carne," is also used in U.S.

THE MILD OR sweet kinds of peppers in Spain, "pimenta" or "pimiento" however, are not the same as the U.S. pimento which makes the orange stuffing for olives, flavoring for cheese, etc. A distinctive long, thick, bright red pepper with non-pungent flesh, grown in Hungary is what we know as paprika and the pepper, grown in our southern states, called the tabasco, is the basic ingredient for tobasco sauce.

Other regions of the U.S. have evolved new varieties of chili peppers: the Colorado, the Negro and the Pasilla but sometimes folks just call them plain "goat peppers." There are many ways to spell the name of this taste tingling pepper, too. Even botanical dictionaries and agricultural bulletins print it variously as "chili", "chilli" or "chile."

'As I Was Saying . . .'

are so bad," she went on. "You're bound to have them. Everyone does. Your poor uncle was the same way before he died."

"Poor uncle," I said.

"Well, I must run along now, dear. But I did want to drop by and cheer you up." She pecked my cheek. "I'll be by tomorrow if I can." She was at the door. "I think being cheered up at a time like this is most important. After all, you never can tell . . ." She was gone.

ON ANOTHER OCCASION I was just about to leave the house for a dentist appointment when the phone rang. It was my friend Agnes.

"Dentist appointment?" said Agnes. "Oh, you poor dear. What happened?"

"Nothing. Just a routine checkup," I explained.

"I do hope he doesn't find anything serious," said Agnes. "My cousin went for a routine checkup last month and do you know the dentist found seven huge cavities she never knew she had. And one tooth had to be pulled. Poor thing. How she suffered. Well, it's been so nice talking to you. I won't keep you any longer. Cheer up!"

Another similar event occurred one day when I was out in the front yard pulling weeds. A neighbor stopped to chat, and, as I straightened up my legs felt stiff and I stood erect with some difficulty.

"Ouch," I said. "This is exercise. Guess I should do more yard work and loosen up the muscles."

"No, you don't do much exercise, do you?" mused my neighbor.

"Not any more than I have to."

"YOU'RE TREADING on thin ice doing work like this at your age," she said. "You know—strain on the heart and all that. I'd watch that pain in the legs if I were you. It might indicate—well, something more serious. Well, I'll be off. But you be careful!" And she hopped on her bicycle and rode away.

I'll never forget the time when I cut my thumb slicing a roast and then attended a morning coffee the next day with a bound-up thumb.

"Just a little cut," I explained when someone inquired about the bandage. "And since it bled a little this morning, I thought I'd put an extra bandage on it. Haven't we had wonderful weather lately?"

"Oh, are you a bleeder?" said someone else, picking up the conversation.

"My goodness, no; I just accidentally pinched it this morning. This is wonderful coffee."

"Cuts can be serious," said another friend. "I knew a person who almost lost an arm through infection from a cut."

"EXCESSIVE BLEEDING is usually a sign of anemia. Are you anemic?" asked my hostess.

"Oh, no, I'm the healthiest person in the world," I said. "Don't be misled by the pale face. That's just me. I'd love another doughnut, thank you."

"Did you soak it in hot water?" asked my hostess.

". . . and another friend of mine had a cut that didn't heal for over two months," someone remarked.

"Anemia, can, of course, be very very serious. The trouble is that a person never knows that he has it until the real warning signals appear," said the lady sitting next to me.

"A pale face, is, by some standards, interesting," said the lady next to her.

"I'm terribly sorry I have to leave," I said to my hostess. "I just remembered a very important doctor's appointment."

"We'll get together soon," she said, seeing me to the door. "And you take good care of yourself and do everything the doctor tells you. Call me if you need me. And do cheer up, dear."

Make This Laughing Santa

By Steve Ellingson

IF THERE were no Christmas would we love little children — and one another — as much? Would another day have been set apart for a frank display of the finest sentiments of which the human heart is capable? Could any other event than the birth of the greatest Man who ever lived have inspired a day so filled with loving kindness and genuine charity?

The wonderful thing about Christmas is that we realize for an all too brief season that life is much more than making a living. We take time to stop and smile and be friendly with everybody. We look into one another's hearts and we see kindness, sympathy and understanding, where we had thought there was none.

AS LONG AS THIS is true we may rest assured that no one will ever be able to cut Christmas out of the calendar, nor out of the hearts of people.

Those who put the most into Christmas always get the most out of it. The preparation and anticipation are every bit as great as the realization. Children particularly take a great delight in the getting ready. The more the activity the more thrill there is in the holiday season. That's why we asked NBC's Bailey twins, Caryl and Cheryl, to be in our picture today. They're just as excited as they can be about Christmas. They even helped their father Paul to make the Santa and wreath shown here with them. As a matter of fact, this is a family project that everyone will enjoy. Both the Santa and the wreath can easily be completed in a couple of hours.

YOU SEE, both the Santa and the wreath come to you printed in bright colors. All you need do is paste the colorful pictures on plywood. Next saw them out, after that give them a coat of waterproofing material and they are ready to go on display in your yard. It's that easy. Because the pictures are all printed in color, there's no painting required.

To obtain the colorful six foot Santa and Christmas wreath pictures N. 189, shown here, send $2 by check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Independent, Press-Telegram, 15155 Saticoy St., Van Nuys, Calif.

Cheerful Santa and a welcoming wreath that are easy to make are shown by NBC's Caryl and Cheryl Bailey.

Old Gunfighter Jennings, at 95, Is Still Quick on the Draw

Civil War. They settled in West Virginia.

WHEN HE WAS 10, Al ran away from home, bitter because his father killed his pet squirrel for stealing corn. Hitchhiking in a covered wagon, he made it to La Junta, Colo.

Here he climbed into a "blind luggage" railroad car and then got kicked off in Trinidad, Colo.

Broke, he salvaged a bootblack outfit and tried to earn his breakfast. But none of the cowboys was having any shoeshining.

Al kept trying. He approached a tall man with the longest nose and grayest eyes he'd ever seen.

"Let me shine your boots, Mister," the boy said.

The tall man smiled. He had the "hardest" face the boy had ever seen.

"I've never had my boots blacked in all of my borned days," the man said.

"Al looked at the boots. The high heels ran down to sharp points. Al learned later that, with these boots, the man could plant his heels, rope a steer and throw it in one smooth action.

"Come on, Sandy," the man addressed himself to Al. "Let's go get something to eat." (Jennings' hair was red.)

THAT WAS JENNINGS' introduction to Jim Stanton and the "happiest moments of my life." The boy knew nothing of Stanton's reputation as a killer. He knew only that here was someone to help him.

Stanton, who has been depicted in many movies, took the boy back to his ranch. He taught him to ride, rope and wrangle. He taught him to shoot.

In the ensuing years, Jennings' six-shooter blazingly garnered the little man his own "killer" reputation.

Then Al's brother, Ed, a lawyer, came West. With Ed's encouragement, Al paid less attention to bullets and more to books. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in Comanche County, Kan., in 1884. Then he moved to El Reno, Okla., and was elected county attorney, Canadian County, in 1892.

Near the end of his term two years later, Al went to Woodward, Okla., to visit his brother. It was a trip that was to lead Al Jennings on a path away from the law he represented.

TWO LAW CASES triggered the explosion.

The first had already been won by Ed. Representing a wealthy rancher, he had defeated Jack Love and Temple Houston. The two men, Jennings claimed, had fenced off 20,000 acres of public land and charged cattle owners so much per head for going through.

In the second case, Ed, with Al present, defended a couple of boys accused of stealing watermelons from a box car.

At that time, with the whimsey of the West, Jack Love had been elected sheriff. His friend, Houston, had "scared the boys stiff," according to Jennings.

There was an exchange of insults between the Houston-Love faction and the Jennings' brothers.

That night, Houston and Love encountered Ed in a saloon. Al, who didn't drink, wasn't present. However, he learned that Houston asked Ed for an apology.

"If you're ever sober enough to accept one, I might make one," Al quoted his brother's reply.

When the smoke cleared, Ed was dead with two bullet wounds in the back of his skull.

AL SWORE VENGEANCE, but listened to friends who advised him to let the law take its course. It was a course that ended in freedom for Love and Houston.

Shortly afterwards, Love and Houston "died," but Jennings isn't admitting he killed them.

Al took off for Creek Indian country. Some time later, he was riding to a little store to get provisions when he spotted five men on the porch.

They opened fire, killing his horse. Al returned their fire—with more accuracy. Three dropped dead. The fourth, a marshal like his fallen comrades, fled. Al shot the fifth, owner of the store, in the lower hip.

"I went up to the counter," Al said. "The money drawer was open. There was $27.50 inside and I took it. That was my first robbery."

He gathered a gang and started holding up trains and banks. Next to Jesse James, he became the most notorious badman in Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas.

"Guess we robbed 15 or 20 trains," Jennings said. "Those in Texas didn't have any money on them, so we had to take up a collection from the passengers—just like in church."

ONE TRAIN in Kansas was more bountiful. The haul on that one was $75,000.

"I got a tip from the supervisor who assigned the guards on the train," he said. "All big jobs then were inside jobs—and they still are."

A few years later, Jennings got another inside job—inside the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan. Wounded, he had been captured by a "200-man posse" about 1899.

He was sentenced to life imprisonment, served five years, was paroled by President William McKinley, then pardoned by President Theodore Roosevelt in 1907.

He went back to Oklahoma, resumed the practice of law and brazenly ran for governor in 1914. He was defeated.

But there's no defeating the vigor of the 95-year-old man today. And there's no minimizing his scorn for television westerns.

"Take running a gun, for instance," he said. "Like they're always doing on television.

"It's crazy. You couldn't hit anything."

JENNINGS PICKED up his six-shooter. The sight was filed off.

"That's so she won't snag in the holster," he said. "Comes out fast when needed."

There was no trigger.

"That's so you can fire real fast by working the hammer with your thumb."

The old man picked up his pipe, packed it, lit it. Weary of talking, he clicked on the television set.

A cowboy with a beaded jacket and a silk handkerchief around his neck was fanning his gun.

Before the first shot was fired, Jennings switched the channel.

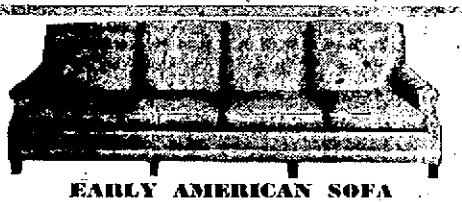

Still quicker on the draw.

CAMERA ANGLES

News of Foreign Makes for '59

By The Shutterbug

New Contarex 35 mm camera features cross-coupling of exposure meter (small circle), speed and lens opening settings. Giant model above seen at '58 Photokina.

EYES AND EARS of world photography were sharply focused and critically tuned to Cologne, Germany, when the 1958 Photokina opened recently. The event was the world's largest photo fair and drew 524 exhibitors and thousands of visitors into the eight large buildings of the fairground.

On an over-all basis, there are no startling innovations, there is a noticeable widening of the use of exposure meter control of proper lens settings in both still and movie cameras. "Extended automation" is probably the key phrase at the show in many languages as the booth attendants demonstrate the latest coupling of the exposure meter to the other camera controls.

THE AMERICAN PRESS group got its first introduction to the password at a preview staged the night before Photokina opened; by Zeiss Ikon. They displayed their newest baby, the Contarex, a 35-mm. single-lens reflex camera with focal plane shutter, interchangeable lenses and cross-coupled exposure meter. Its indicator needle is visible both in a window on top of the camera and in the viewfinder. When a knob is turned to match the needle, it automatically sets the correct combinations of speed settings and lens diaphragms and they all become cross-coupled. Thereafter any combination you turn to is the correct exposure. Its normal f/2 Planar 50-mm. lens can be focused down to 12 inches without any extra attachments or parallax problems.

Two new cameras have been added to the Rolleiflex 2¼x2¼ family, the "T" and the "3.5 F." The latter is the one with an exposure meter coupled to the diaphragm and automation starts after matching the exposure meter pointer. Thereafter, all the camera fan has to decide is what shutter he wishes to use. Each setting also indicates the exact depth of field with easy-to-understand visibility. Another innovation is a filter correction compensator. Setting a button on the film speed knob can adjust exposures to allow for a filter factor up to three times.

BOTH NEW ROLLEIS feature a new type of ground-glass screen based on a new optical principle for a vastly brighter image. Hardly noticeable or necessary when viewing a sunny day outdoor scene, the new ground-glass shows up when focusing in dimly lit interiors. It is claimed to be 13 times brighter in the darkest areas. Furthermore, through some form of optical magic, the image seems to spring into focus at the exact point of focus instead of easing into it gradually. So the margin for error is likely to be less.

At the Leica area, the greatest interest and longest lines were visible looking at their new mirror reflex housing for all their camera models, screw or bayonet mount. It's a mighty handy gadget for those interested in close-up photography especially. The new Summicron f/2 90-mm. lens in short focusing mount has been especially designed for direct use on this new Visoflex II and its range is from infinity down to three and a half feet.

After meeting Susan all we have to add is that Jeff must have holes in his head.

HOW TO Make Interesting Mosaic Wall Plaque

1. THIS VERTICAL panel of bottles and stemware is made with Mexican tiles. For effect, joints were not grouted; tiles were simply stuck on sealed plywood.

2. TRANSFER DRAWING of design—sketched on transparent drafting paper to a piece of plywood the right size. Then trace the design on the plywood in soft lead pencil. The soft lead on back of drawing acts as carbon paper for this. Be sure to seal the plywood surface first with varnish or white shellac.

3. TO CUT TILES to match the design, use pair of nippers or special tile cutters you can buy. Work out your scheme first, laying tiles in place on the plywood until the colors blend. These tiles are about 1-inch square; you can buy smaller or larger ones, or tiny chips. The smaller the tile, the harder it is to cut.

4. SPREAD ADHESIVE—a little at a time—on the plywood within lines of the design. Then stick the tiles into it. Use regular tile adhesive. On light-colored tiles, use white adhesive. Fill in one color at a time. Plaster of Paris [illegible] won't be used here. If you want it, use cement or grout, mixed to consistency of sour cream.

Cardinal Rule To Dog Training

By Eleanor Avery Price

THE CARDINAL RULE in teaching a dog, whether it is merely puppy housebreaking, obedience training to take orders, training of a field dog, or advance police or guide dog work, is to make certain that the dog understands what is wanted of him. In the matter of correction for mistakes or misdeeds, understanding is equally important.

According to a survey completed by Gaines Dog Research Center, a dog that grasps his lessons through loving guidance is not only a happier, better-adjusted canine but a pet that is long-lived, since a "sense of security" is the most important contributing factor to canine longevity.

Also, comprehending commands and discipline helps him to survive because he is reliable and is not out chasing cars, fighting other dogs, and in more ways getting into trouble.

SOME DOGS learn more readily than others because they have the capacity to learn quickly and because their teaching is not just nagging, grudgeful, chastising hit-or-miss efforts but steady, meaningful, proper training enriched with praise.

Pierre Morey, miniature poodle pictured with this article and owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Morey, 4431 Galeano, is an excellent example of both an extremely intelligent canine and carefully trained one. He graduated from his obedience training class with top honors, then proceeded to earn his three necessary legs to become a CD (Companion Dog) in three successive major AKC obedience trials, all in the first year of his life.

Jack Bradshaw, superintendent of Southern California's licensed AKC shows, and Joe DeBeck, Pierre's class trainer, claim this is an unusual performance.

ANYONE TRULY interested in correct dog training is invited to attend part or all of the full-day Southern California Obedience Council convention being held today at Lakewood Country Club starting at 10 a.m. Judge moderators for the morning session will be Mrs. Val Reid, novice, Harper Reid, open, and Nicholas Kay, utility.

Following luncheon (12:30 to 1:30 p.m.), Prof. Russel Lindskog will speak on "Applied Canine Metaphysics." A demonstration of a guide dog in action is scheduled for 2:20 p.m. The program will continue with Jack Weatherwax presenting his movie dog, Devil, with commentary by Scott Roberts. A Fashion Show for Dogs conducted by Earle of England will take place at 4 p.m.

Clarence J. Pfaffenberger, dog writer and vice president of Guide Dogs for the Blind, Inc., at San Rafael, will discuss his research work on dog behavior as a climax to the day's program following dinner at 6 p.m.

Popular Bulbs

Ranunculus are still high on the list of bulbs to be planted in November. Remember to soak the tubers for a few hours before planting and then plant with the "toes" down, about two inches deep in full sun.

Marauding birds dearly love the sprouting top growth, so provide some protection until plants are a few inches high and hardened off. Wire mesh is the best insurance against them. As an alternative, plant seedling plants from nursery flats that the birds will rarely bother.

Stocks for Winter Fragrance

Stocks do extremely well in the mild winter and early spring climate of this area; must have good drainage.

By Bob Gilmore

STOCKS are undoubtedly the most fragrant of all our winter annuals. Their perfume is heavy and permeating, and just a few spikes will perfume your house like a florist shop. In addition, the colors cover a wide and interesting assortment of shades.

Stocks are at the head of the list of those flowers that perform well in the mild winter climate of the Long Beach area. Actually, throughout Southern California they may be classed as hardy annuals. Wind, rain, grey skies and little sunshine do not prevent the plants from giving out a profusion of bloom. As a matter of fact, one variety —the Giant Winter Nice stock —has been named because of its ability to flower during this part of the year. You can expect blooms just ten weeks after sowing the seed.

HYBRIDISTS HAVE done a great deal during recent years to improve stocks. This is due largely to the fact that stocks are such a prominent florist subject. Many of the new varieties being introduced each year are the product of Southern California seedsman. Stocks are one of the most important flowers handled by the Los Angeles Flower Market, which incidentally is one of the largest in the United States.

There is no reason why you should not be able to grow prize-winning stocks in your own garden. Their demands are few, and the weeks immediately ahead will prove ideal for the culture of this spendid winter annual.

FOR SPECIMEN BLOOMS or indoor decorative purposes, the Double Giant Column stock will prove most exciting. The plants produce just a single spike, rather than several laterals as is the case with other types of stock. But this single stem is almost a complete flower show in itself. The central spike is almost completely covered with huge double florets, many times larger than the usual type. In addition, the florets appear in almost solid masses throughout the length of the stem.

For general decorative purposes in the outdoor garden you will find the Giant Winter stock perhaps most suitable. The flowers appear about as early as any comparable strain, and the plants attain a height of about one and one-half feet at maturity. This type produces a fairly large number of laterals, giving the plant a rather pyramidal shape. Colors available include shades of the following: yellow, rose, blue, white, red and lilac.

THE ONE "MUST" to be considered in growing stocks is the matter of drainage. The plants must have excellent drainage. They are quite sensitive to excess moisture; should the roots be in standing water for any length of time a large number of casualties may be expected.

There is a fast and a slow way of growing stocks, depending on how much of a hurry you are in, and also whether or not you wish to save a few cents. The quickest and perhaps more expensive way of growing stocks is to purchase established seedlings at your neighborhood nursery; if you are not in such a hurry . . . and want to save money . . . then sow seeds.

At this time each year, in all my columns, I make a statement that I believe in with all my heart: Garden hygiene is just as important as personal hygiene. At this time of year you can use a good oil emulsion to spray shrubbery and flower beds and fruit trees . . . and just about anything in the garden. And a good oil emulsion is a wonderful material to protect plant life.

First of all, give your garden a general housecleaning. This consists of raking up fallen foliage and debris, and pulling up dead plants and eliminating them from your garden. If left lying around they decay and encourage plant disease and insect life to over-winter there.

After that, apply your fall clean-up spray with a lime-sulphur-oil emulsion. Spray rose bushes, pyracantha bushes, peach trees (for leaf curl), shrubbery and berry bushes . . . your entire garden and you'll have done one of the most important garden jobs of the year.

Cobras-a-Cappella?

THE TWO STRANGE objects that look like Cobras-a-Cappella ready to strike are actually the unfolding fronds of a giant Australian fern. These ferns stand taller than a man, and are one of the most ancient types of vegetation in existence. They go back to the period of toothed birds, mammoths, and dynosaurs.

Although not many are grown here, they grow readily in shady spots in Southern California.

Wintertime Is Flowertime, Too

By Joe Littlefield

EXCESSIVE heat of late September and early October played hob with some of the earlier fall plantings. Sweet peas in particular took a bad beating. Some gardeners have had to replant their sweet pea plantings twice. Others lost some stocks, pansies and violas. Early plantings of bulbs too noticed the exceptional heat we had.

If you've had poor luck with sweet pea plantings, try them again but this time, buy the ones grown in plant bands already started for you. Space them two to four inches apart. It is optional whether you should take off the tar paper plant band with no bottom to it, before setting out the sweet peas. Personally, we prefer to remove them carefully, then set out the plants. The side roots then may grow out faster.

DELPHINIUMS PLANTED this month and, properly cared for during the winter, should develop spikes of gorgeous flowers at least four feet and more tall for spring. Plant them in the rear of a sunny flower bed. Mix a half cup of bone meal into the soil for each plant when setting them out. Feed them at least twice with a balanced plant food. Protect them from chewing worms by spraying with lawn and shrub spray, and scattering slug and snail bait. Water them as they need it, and you'll be pleasantly surprised with beautiful blue flowers in the spring. Snapdragons, stocks, pansies, violas, Iceland poppies and calendulas will do well in sunny flower beds. For shade, pack in as many Primula malacoides as you possibly can, with obconica primroses planted in the front rows, in the shade garden. Cinerarias planted in loose loamy soil, and protected from frost, produce the daisy-like masses of colorful flowers in late winter and spring.

Stocks, snapdragons, calendulas, Iceland poppies and dianthus Rose Marie transform narrow strip to beauty.

THE BEST WAY to cut camellia flowers from small plants, if you must cut them, is to cut the flower stem to within two leaves or buds above the current season's growth. There is a slight, thickened ring around the branch indicating this growth.

Camellias four feet or taller may be pruned at the time flowers are cut. Decide where you want to cut the flower branch, then simply cut. Remember, though, to cut just above a leaf, a bud, or above a side branch. If you feel squeamish about cutting the flowers at all, wait till plant has passed its peak of bloom, then prune them to shape.

Extra long, sucker-like azalea growths may be cut back to a point that helps to shape the bush.

Late fall aphids, slugs and snails, if left undisturbed, multiply merrily on till they're almost a plague later in the winter and spring. The smart thing to do is to spray for aphids when first few appear. Spraying now, helps to eliminate thousands of future aphids. Scattering slug and snail bait now stops future increases of these crawlers.

Try Growing Pansies from Seed

By John Ronson

PANSIES prefer a cool, relatively damp growing environment. Growing pansies from seed is a very rewarding gardening experience. Compared with raising this popular annual from established plants, the seeding procedure is extremely economical. As a matter of fact, for less than a dollar you can buy a packet of top quality pansy seed that will provide hundreds and hundreds of blooms in your winter and spring garden.

Generally speaking, the Swiss strains produce the largest flowers and biggest plants. It should be pointed out, however, that the commercial production of seed of the Swiss strains is not limited to Switzerland; actually, California seed growers are now producing top quality Swiss pansy seed.

Much of the hybridization work on Swiss pansies is now being carried on right here in Southern California. The flowers are tremendous in size and boast an extremely wide color range, enhanced by new and startling tones.

THE PANSY is a viola, and like all members of this family prefers a cool and fairly damp environment. In Southern California generally, pansies are grown during fall, winter and early spring. However, you might experiment with these gay-toned blooms during warmer weather, making sure that they have plenty of moisture and some shade.

Applying a mulch of peat will prove helpful in growing pansies. You can use either peat, leaf mold, or any other comparable product that holds moisture. Water is released slowly from this type of mulch. The evaporating process tends to coat the soil surface. American peats are highly desirable and, in addition to the moisture-conserving qualities, they also contain approximately 3 per cent of organic nitrogen.

PANSIES PREFER a loamy soil, somewhat on the lighter side. The addition of leaf mold or American peat will prove of benefit. Well rotted manure may be incorporated with the soil several weeks before planting time. Make sure it is thoroughly decomposed. Feed the plants about every two weeks, starting when the buds first appear and continuing until the flowers are in full bloom.

Pansies are used as a ground cover here, contrasting with Bird of Paradise. Pansies do best in a cool area.

Better than the 'Old Apple Tree'

By Walter Finch

IN THE SHADE of the old apple tree might sound very interesting this summer; but unfortunately, it won't prove very practical in most parts of Southern California. More desirable shade trees for this area are such interesting subjects as elms, sycamores, olives, acacias and pepper trees.

The evergreen elm thrives to perfection under Southern California growing conditions. Its only bad feature is its botanical name, Ulmus pervifolia sempervirens. Beacuse this elm is comparatively small, it fits well on all average-sized lots. At maturity it will obtain a height of from 35 to 37 feet. The tree is well rounded, the foliage very attractive.

ALTHOUGH KNOWN as an evergreen this tree is apt to lose some of its foliage during the cooler months. The branches have a rather pendulous appearance, often extending almost to the ground. Because of its wide-spreading shape the evergreen elm will provide lots of shade.

The Chinese elm, Ulmus pumila, is another interesting member of the same family. However, it possesses a deciduous habit of growth, that is, during winter the foliage drops off. Yet few trees have the vigor of the Chinese elm. It is one of the most rapid-growing trees for this area.

This specimen is extremely hardy, tolerating heat, cold, floods and drought with equal success. But it must not be planted on a pint-sized area. At maturity the Chinese elm will probably go to 50 feet. Once established it may be forgotten as far as care is concerned; it seems to get along on neglect.

OLIVE TREES succeed in diverse growing areas throughout California. Commercial groves dot the hillsides and valleys all the way from Sacramento to San Diego. As an ornamental the olive has several splendid attributes.

It is not too large for most homesides, growing usually to around 25 feet. The foliage is quite distinctive, being a delicate shade of grey-green. The fruits are purple and quite attractive. This tree wants a fairly dry location. Excess moisture may cause the tree to lose its natural shape.

The white birch, a most attractive subject for lawn areas, is best planted in threes. Set the trees in a triangle. As the trees develop the bark turns white. Landscape architects often place this tree near pools or bodies of water where pleasing reflections are cast. This is open known as the European white birch. Botanically it is Betula alba.

CALIFORNIA sycamore is another splendid shade tree for this area. It may grow to 100 feet at maturity. The plant is deciduous and during the dormant state the mottled bark and white markings are quite distinctive. The European sycamore also performs well as a summer shade tree. It reacts favorably to heavy pruning and thus may be shaped as you desire. It is a very fast grower.

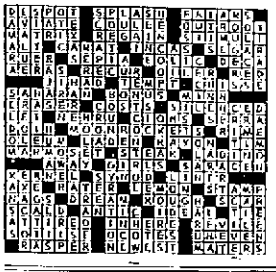

Avocados serve a dual purpose in that they provide both fruits and shade. In Southern California, avocados thrive practically everywhere but in the desert and high mountains. Nurserymen claim that if several varieties are planted you can have fruit throughout the year.

When watering the trees, make sure they are soaked. Light sprinkling will ruin the trees. In hot regions, protect young trees the first year from sunburn. Other interesting possibilities for shade are: pepper tree, acacia floribunda, "Camphor tree," pittosporum undulatum and eucalyptus ficifolia.

Many trees provide shade for Long Beach area homesites better than fabled "old apple tree." One is jacaranda.

It's monkey business, of course; but Jocko is calling attention to boating. Big boat show here ends tonight.

BOAT TALK

First Time—Big Time

By Bob Ruskauff

PACIFIC COAST Boat Show, which for a "first time" performance, has worked out something on the tremendous side, ends tonight, at 11 p.m.

The mere list of added events scheduled for the finale, (beginning with a 50-mile boat race at 9 a.m.), would almost fill all of this column. And so . . .

It seems congratulations are in order for Fred Taylor, Harry Louis, Skip Creger, S & W (that's no coffee ad lad, that's Sarver & Witzerman) and others who helped promote the show.

PLUS THE HOST of dealers who sponsored exhibitions of an imposing array of water wares under the 80,000 square feet of two big circus tops, gaily-decorated, well-lighted.

Plus the boat clubs, outboard and inboard, power squadrons of this and other areas, and individual boat-men, who contributed in scores of ways.

If any or all made a million, they surely deserve to keep a little of it.

This, we trust, includes Mac McClintock and the operators of Pierpoint Landing, who provided the setting for it all.

Until the final tally follows closing time tonight, of course, it will be impossible to peg how many came and saw; or how many bought how much of what, from the shipshape array of almost anything you'll be needing.

CERTAINLY IT will have helped add to the already legion of boating enthusiats and make others appreciative of how vast the combined water sport picture has become.

It might even help come true the recent prediction made here by John J. Hubley, sales manager of Johnson Motors, Waukegan, Ill.

While reading, bear in mind that "outboard pleasure boating," which Hubley was talking about, is big, but only one phase of the over-all boating picture.

He predicted that Southern California residents will invest more than $12,000,000 during 1959. Putting it together:

"We expect Southern California residents to invest $6,280,000 in 16,000 outboard motors, $5,102,500 in outboard boats and nearly $75,000 in trailers in 1959," Hubley said.

And that's not monkey business.

BOAT HOOKS: The 11-Mile Bank Race of Newport-Ocean Sailing Assn. off Newport; a water-ski feature on Salton Sea; conclusion of Armistice Day series at Balboa YC., are other events afloat today.

FRANCOIS RICHMOND
A Big Vote for America

AFTER SPENDING six weeks abroad last summer dining in all the famous spas, restaurants and hotels of Europe, Long Beach restaurateur Francois Richmond was asked this question:

"In your opinion, sir, which country has the world's best restaurants?"

Monsieur Richmond's reply was a bit of a surprise. He did not choose France, England, Germany, Italy or any of the other countries he visited.

"The United States gets my vote," he said. "This country now leads the world in outstanding restaurants and food."

Monsieur Richmond offered a simple theory for this turnabout situation.

"Europe's restaurants used to be the best," he said, "but all their top cooks are now in America, where salaries and working conditions are better. So, just like that, the U.S. now has the best cuisine."

MONSIEUR RICHMOND'S own restaurant—Francois' Manhattan at 1909 E. 4th St.—is an excellent example of exactly what he was talking about. The Manhattan serves continental cuisine which is so beautifully created and so perfectly delicious that Richmond receives warm and sincere congratulations from Frenchmen, Britishers, Germans, Italians and others who come to Long Beach just to visit his place.

The Manhattan's Flaming Duckling ($10 for two persons) is a fabulous gourmet item enjoyed again and again by people who just can't get enough of it. The same goes for the restaurant's table d'hote dinners which include such scrumptious items as baked oysters Manhattan ($3), roast prime ribs of beef au jus ($3.75), stuffed fresh mushrooms ($2.75), veal piccatta ($2.75), chicken Manhattan ($2.60) and numerous other selected entrees. All are served with gracious style and include many side dishes such as hors d'oeuvres, soup du jour (the tureen is left on the table so you can enjoy more); splendid salad with choice of dressing, vegetables, beverage and dessert.

THE AUTHOR, still a top box-office draw at 53, rubs noses with his wife, actress Betsy Drake, 35, prior to their recent separation.

I'll always remember . . .

A flip that flopped

by CARY GRANT

At 17, I was a proud member of Bob Pender's pantomime and acrobatic troupe, touring the U. S. from England. I was also pretty much the cock o' the walk. I had been with the Pender troupe since I was 13, and because he was England's outstanding clown and teacher of pantomime, I, too, considered myself something of an artist.

I was particularly proud of being a consummate acrobat. I had studied long and hard, learning graceful leaps, twirls and flips. And I regarded myself as a dashing, devil-may-care hero.

One of our first American dates was Mobile, Ala. Audiences were more than generous, and at my age I personally appropriated much of the applause. This led to more and more practice before full-length mirrors of my twirls and gyrations. Sometimes it led to simple sessions before the full-length mirrors, sans twirls and gyrations.

During our stand in Mobile, I met a charming young girl with whom I was immediately stricken. I felt sure she was equally or perhaps even more stricken with me. Distinctly I remember she had lovely blonde hair and big brown eyes. She didn't miss one of our shows and had, or so it seemed, eyes only for me. I met her at the stage door one evening, and we were soon chums. We would drink pop at the local drugstore, take strolls in the soft, Southern night and engage in the silly small-talk of youth. I felt every bit the seasoned showman, the man of the world. Being a ham to my sock feet, I loved every minute of it.

Finally came the time to leave Mobile for our next city, Memphis. My lovely friend came to the station to see me off. It was then that I decided to give her a last glimpse of me she would long remember. I would make no ordinary exit from her life. I would leave grandly, gallantly, gracefully, with cloak flying.

Here was my plan. I would not board the train in ordinary fashion. I would not even deign to look at it as it stood there. Instead, I would hold my girl in conversation until the train had started. Then, at just the right moment, I would kiss her lightly on the cheek, leap gracefully into the air and do a right-about flip that would float me, light as eiderdown, onto the top of the train steps.

According to Plan

The plan went to perfection. I gave my feather-like kiss, bade my fond adieu, made my leap and ascended, as planned, to the top of the steps. My lovely friend was all rapturous admiration. I was a hit. I was a smash!

But only for a moment. No sooner had I landed than the train gave a violent shudder which threw me to my knees on the bottom step. The train then picked up speed, leaving me in that grotesque, awkward ego-devouring position, hanging on for dear life.

It was humiliating enough for a lifetime, but even worse was the snickering and loud laughter which came from the girl I'd hoped to charm.

Unimportant as it may appear today, that incident had a lasting effect on me. While still young enough, I learned the folly of trying to be someone I wasn't. I learned to be myself, to act natural and to abandon for all time the role of the poseur. I'm glad it happened when it did. ■

On Parade

Should teenagers marry? No, wrote Robin Hart, a 17-year-old-divorcée in a recent PARADE story (Oct. 5). As you might guess, we've since been hearing all sides of the question. "Congratulations on printing the article," writes a lady reader from Plainville, Conn. "It should help parents who need strong arguments when teenagers want to marry."

Speaking for the opposite side, a lady from Hubbard, Ohio, points to her own experience: "I was married at 17 and can truthfully say I would not be happier if I had waited another five years . . . You say there are 15,000 teen-age divorces. But how many teen-age marriages are a success?"

One man's point of view comes from a New Mexico reader, who writes: "I feel the younger generation thinks marriage is a fairy tale. If there is the slightest bit of effort needed to make the marriage work, these kids have only one answer — divorce and try again—no matter what the heartbreak involved."

"Speaking as a loser," says a young Navy man, "I can well imagine the heartache the girl in your story must have had. But the man also was stricken, I can assure you! If there were only some way the parents could break through that 'defiant barrier against authority.' I know so many young people whose disappointing love affairs have done permanent damage to what should be happy lives—all because mixed-up parents couldn't see far enough beyond their own unhappiness."

Finally, a Youngstown, Ohio, girl, 19, married three years and "happy," writes: "Let's face it—no matter what we do, life isn't easy. But I know that with God's help my husband and I will always be happy."

Q Princess Soraya, who was dropped by the Shah of Iran supposedly because she couldn't bear children—wasn't she really divorced because the Shah's sister couldn't stand her? —L.L., Miami, Fla.

A It's true that Princess Ashraf, twin sister of the Shah, has always been hostile to Soraya—but that's not why the Shah divorced Soraya. The true reason was her inability to provide him with an heir.

Q Is Roberto Rossellini stone broke? Didn't Ingrid Bergman support him for years?—F.T., Baton Rouge, La.

A Two Italian businessmen recently brought bankruptcy action against the movie director, charging that he had failed to repay a loan of $34,768 due October, 1957. Ingrid never supported Rossellini financially. He borrowed heavily to support her in the style he felt she was accustomed to.

Q Can you reveal the salary of Robert Taylor, the Hollywood actor?—R.T., Lincoln, Neb.

A For acting in The Hangman, a Western movie, Taylor is receiving from Paramount Pictures $200,000 plus seven and a half per cent of the profits, if any.

Q A woman named Florence Ross sued Frank Sinatra for breaking down her apartment door a few years ago when Frank was trying to find Marilyn Monroe for Joe DiMaggio. Did she ever collect?—F.R., Oakland, Calif.

A Yes, $7,500 in an out-of-court settlement.

Q Is it true that novelist Ernest Hemingway is 60 years old? Has he been married five times and does he have five children?—K.N., Chicago, Ill.

A Hemingway is 60, but has been married four times, has three grown sons.

Q I have a bet that Jim Hagerty, the President's press secretary, once worked for Mamie Eisenhower as a social secretary. Do I win or lose?—G.T., Washington, D. C.

A For a short period after Eisenhower's first inauguration, Jim Hagerty filled in as social secretary for Mrs. Eisenhower, but only until the First Lady could appoint her staff.

Q Was Shirley Booth ever married to Ed Gardner of Duffy's Tavern fame?—D.W., San Jose, Calif.

A Yes, from 1929 to 1942.

Q How old is Clare Boothe Luce? Was she the first woman ambassador in American history?—L.P., Yakima, Wash.

A Mrs. Luce is 55. (She was born April 10, 1903.) She was the second woman ambassador to represent the U.S.A. abroad. The first was Mrs. Eugenie Anderson, our ambassador to Denmark in 1949. ■

Student-milliners Bob Tierney (l.) and Tom Morey get under single hat at USC campus.

PAPER HATS

How to start a business on $15

by LLOYD SHEARER
Parade West Coast correspondent

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

TOM MOREY and Bob Tierney, whose paper-hat creation Fantopper is shown on these pages, do not look like hat designers. They look exactly like what they are: two 23-year-old clean-cut college boys from the University of Southern California, whose knowledge of millinery is zero.

Yet Morey and Tierney may well turn out to be the most extraordinary hat makers of the 1958-59 season—especially should Fantopper develop into a nation-wide fad. Right now their honeycomb paper hat is enjoying great popularity here in southern California where it is worn every which way by movie stars, golfers, coeds and sports car drivers.

Slowly it is invading Detroit, Chicago, Miami, Fort Worth and other major cities, where it is catching on rapidly.

"If we only knew something about merchandising," pleads Tom Morey, "the hat would be going great guns by now. But we're absolute idiots when it comes to selling. This whole thing is an accident, you know."

Morey, a freshly graduated USC math major and Tierney, an engineering senior, decided last summer to invent a new lightweight surfboard. They began searching for a balsa wood substitute. "We went through all the rubber foams," Tierney explains, "but none were any good for the purpose. Finally we came across this honeycomb paper which is a combination of craft paper and phenolic plastic. It's used in aircraft construction because of its great strength."

The boys took the craft paper, mixed it with fiberglass, constructed a surfboard which they tried out at Laguna Beach, Morey's home town. On the second test, the surfboard broke in half under stress because the fiberglass and the honeycomb paper would not bind effectively.

Stuck with a small quantity of honeycomb craft paper (all free samples from manufacturers), Tom and Bob began to experiment with toys. "We read an article somewhere," Morey recalls, "that there was a fortune in toys, so we took the honeycomb, dyed it and made a toy box with a paper jack-in-the-box. We didn't like it, so next we made a plastic disk. We showed it around to a few fellows on the USC campus, and one of them put it on his head and pulled down. It made a nifty hat, and that's how we got into the hat business."

With a total capital of $15, Morey and Tierney ordered enough honeycomb paper to make 50 hats. Morey took a few of these to

Paper hats may sweep the country as a fad. They're cheap, durable, pliable and anyone can wear them

Laguna Beach. He peddled them to local merchants for 90 cents apiece and suggested a retail price of $1.98.

The first day he sold six paper hats.

Partner Tierney had a friend who knew Darrylin Zanuck, 27, daughter of movie magnate Darryl Zanuck. Darrylin owns a chic and fashionable ladies-wear shop in Santa Monica called Pour La Contessa. It is patronized by tourists, beachcombers, divorcées, several motion picture actresses who are under contract to her dad's 20th Century-Fox studio. Darrylin bought two dozen Fantoppers, wore one herself, began selling the others.

First actress to show up at the studio wearing one was Dody Heath (see cover), an attractive 5'5" bundle of blonde loveliness who plays a featured role in The Diary of Anne Frank. A few days later actress Joan Collins with a Fantopper jauntily shaped on her head, drove on the lot in her pink Thunderbird. Soon word-of-mouth advertising started up. Red Skelton, who has a fetish for hats, bought a dozen. Bob Hope was next seen wearing one at the Lakeside golf course.

Off to a Slow Start

With an increased demand for Fantoppers, Morey and Tierney rented an empty store two blocks away from the USC campus for $60 a month, set up shop. They hired a lawyer to patent their hat, called themselves Honeyart Products and began turning out Fantoppers as fast as possible. Since Tierney still goes to school (engineering at USC is a five-year-course), this wasn't too fast. They turned out 6,000 in two months, got a friend to suggest a national sales representative, and soon were selling Fantoppers to leading stores throughout the country.

Each Fantopper costs the boys 50 cents to turn out, sells to jobbers for 90 cents. The jobbers sell them to retailers for $1.20, the retailers to the public for $2. The hats are sturdy, cool and durable. Turned inside out, they assume the shape of Chinese mandarin hats. Caught in the rain, they can be stretched into various shapes, can be worn by men, women and children.

Met in Math Class

Morey, son of a retired realtor, and Tierney, whose father is dead but whose mother works for Ramo-Woolridge, a firm of electronics specialists which does secret missile work for the Air Force, first met in an elementary calculus class three years ago when both were sophomores.

"We took a great liking to each other," Morey recalls, "and decided one day that we'd do things together. But we never thought it would be making hats. That's a kind of odd business for two guys who've majored in math. But after all, you know what Voltaire said, or maybe it was Benjamin Franklin—'Money is money.'"

PERKY PILLBOX effect comes from turning the Fantopper wrongside out. Actress Dody Heath centers it squarely across brow.

CLOSE-HUGGING CLOCHE style is another Fantopper option. Dody has turned it wrongside out here and shaped it off the face.

SOPHISTICATED broad-brim is another wrinkle Dody can give the paper hat. Beauty of the hat is that it fits anyone's head.

ROARING TWENTIES look is a cinch for Dody to achieve. All she does is yank the hat down over her ears and shape the brim.

Just with her voice, a woman fouled up one of our newest weapons. Here's how scientists 'disarmed' her and how they cope with even more baffling problems...

THE STORY

BEHIND OUR MISSILE FAILURES

by FRED BLUMENTHAL

Parade Washington correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.

NOT A GLAMOROUS MATA HARI, but a woman dispatcher of radio-cabs provided U.S. missile scientists with their most baffling mystery. For days she had experts at Edwards Air Force Base tearing their hair at a sudden and inexplicable fault which had developed in the Navy's Regulus I—a high-speed, pilotless bomber.

The Regulus had been behaving splendidly in tests. Then, for no apparent reason, it began popping its drag-chute—a small parachute used to slow it down on landing. Scientists dismantled the chute release system and its radio control circuit, but both appeared to function normally. Even more puzzling, the misbehaving missile never acted up until 5 p.m.

Quick scientific detective work traced the trouble to a city hundreds of miles away. There, promptly at 5 daily, a woman took over a cab dispatcher's microphone. By a million to one electronic freak, her voice was just the precise pitch to modulate into the frequency used by the test crew to signal parachute release. As soon as she dispatched her first cab, pop went the chute.

Scientists tell this story today to highlight the fantastic number of obstacles which must be overcome before the U.S. has dependable weapons for the space age and before man can hope to reach the moon. Over the past few years, you've probably read with dismay of dozens of spectacular missile "failures" like the flaming smashup at Cape Canaveral, Fla., in the photo at left. But most of those "failures"—if the missile has left the ground at all—were not failures, but successes.

For, PARADE now can reveal that in most "failures," test crews have obtained 95 per cent of the data they set out for—including, in many cases, the very reasons why the missile failed. As one Cape Canaveral trouble-shooter told PARADE after a giant Atlas was destroyed, "We found out most of what we wanted to know. If this is failure, then failure is our business."

The real wonder is not that there are failures, but that there are not more of them. A rocket-powered guided missile is one of the most delicate and complicated pieces of equipment ever built. For instance, the Air Force moon rocket, which blew up August 17 after just 77 seconds of flight, contained 300,000 parts—and failure of any one meant failure of the rocket.

A spectacular blowup marks the first three-stage firing of the Navy's satellite-launching Vanguard. The ill-starred Vanguard has failed more times than it has been successful.

All must operate perfectly under torturous extremes. The flame in a rocket engine tops 5,000 degrees, and the pressure built up may exceed 1,000 pounds per square inch. Vibration swings from plus-100 G's to minus-100 G's and does so 400 times a second. Air friction heats the skin of a 3,000 m.p.h. missile to 1,600 degrees. The nose cone of a missile re-entering the atmosphere at 10,000 to 15,000 m.p.h. must withstand temperatures hotter than the surface of the sun. On the other hand, valves and pumps in the fuel system must operate at 297 degrees below zero, the temperature of liquid oxygen.

One Mistake Costs Millions

The $450-million shooting gallery at Canaveral is undoubtedly the world's most expensive classroom. The smallest errors are in the million-dollar bracket.

Thus, unbelievable care goes into the preparation of missiles for firing. The word "countdown" already has passed into the language. The countdown for a Thor intermediate missile, for instance, takes 12 hours and includes 1,000 separate checks. Before that, other checks have been going on for days. But the search for a weak spot in the complex of parts often is like looking for a needle in a haystack.

And there are still the unexpected "gremlins," like the cab dispatcher. One big missile was ready for launching when it was discovered that a fire-fighting party in the West had "invaded" a control frequency. The Canaveral radio room tried to persuade the firemen to switch to another frequency. "The hell we will!" was the reply. "You're on our frequency. You change." Canaveral did.

The tiniest flyspecks become important under the stress of launching. One Atlas failure was traced to air friction which burned insulation from wires leading to small rocket motors on the missile skin. The bare wires gave false signals to the main guidance system, which in turn ordered the main engines into such violent maneuvers that they ripped themselves loose.

An early trouble with the Thor and Jupiter missiles was a blow-back of scorching exhaust gases which burned out the main engine controls. At other times, it has been a generator, a pump or some tiny part which quit on the job. Many a shot has been canceled because valves have been frozen solid by the biting cold of liquid oxygen. Recently there has been trouble with metal crystallizing, causing the collapse of welded aluminum joints in the liquid oxygen tanks.

The Bomarc anti-aircraft missile, now a mainstay of U.S. defense, had its share of teething troubles. In one early shot, the missile leaped into the air, then snapped into two light-loops and crashed onto the control blockhouse, which fortunately had been built with just such a possibility in mind. Dampness in the guidance system had caused it to indicate "nose down" when in fact the missile was on course. The guidance control at once "corrected" by pulling the nose up, and the inevitable result was a loop.

Last fall, in Project Far Side, six attempts were made to send an instrument package 4,000 miles into space by means of a four-stage rocket launched at 100,000 feet from a giant plastic balloon. Only one shot was partly successful. The others failed variously because of a short circuit in the firing system, the bursting of the balloon due to intense cold and the destruction of the instrument package by a thick nylon grommet at the top of the balloon.

One missile failed even before launching. A Matador, all set to go, developed a fuel leak which started a serious fire. A fast-thinking control officer punched the firing button. Although the engine was not running, solid propellant boosters lifted the Matador off its pad and dumped it a few hundred yards away, where it blazed in safety.

Dr. Wernher von Braun, the Army's top rocketeer, showed remarkable aplomb when playing host at Canaveral to a group of visiting Congressmen. It was a beautiful, clear day and the visitors cheered as the missile cut a trail into the sky. They were rather surprised when Dr. von Braun gently insisted they go back into the blockhouse. "But it's still going straight up," they protested. That was the trouble. The missile had failed to tilt, as it should have. Dr. von Braun knew it would have to be destroyed and he did not want his guests showered with debris.

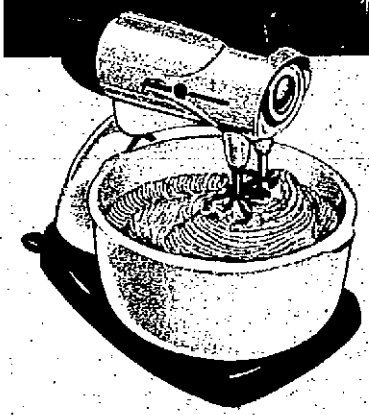

The Fear That Haunts Missilemen

The possibility of a missile running wild and hurling itself into some densely populated area on the mainland of Florida is a constant nightmare to the scientists at Cape Canaveral. Elaborate precautions are taken to prevent such an accident, including controls built into missiles to insure that they "fail safe." More than once missiles have "committed suicide," when perhaps they might have flown far enough to achieve most of their test objectives. A Thor cut itself off a scant six feet from the launching pad because its mechanical brains had signaled danger.

But each missile test flight, no matter how brief, contributes to the vital knowledge that makes for national security and progress into the new world of space. And as the missiles of today are brought nearer perfection—the goal is one failure in 10,000 tries—new missiles, more complex, more powerful and with ever more ambitious objectives, will appear.

Within 19 months, Cape Canaveral scientists will begin testing engines with a thrust of 1,500,000 pounds, compared with the 350,000 pounds of today's Atlas. A whole new field of problems will have to be conquered, and the failures will be even more spectacular than today's. But Cape Canaveral scientists are facing the challenge with confidence. They know that only through failure can they hope to find success. ■

CAN YOU IDENTIFY HIM?

He knew the real meaning of

ARMISTICE DAY

Rarely seen is the photo (above) of a famous American who rates special attention this Tuesday, Armistice Day. He died a decade ago, but his service to America will be remembered forever.

Can you guess who he is? A couple of hints: the photo was taken at Washington, D. C.'s famed Walter Reed Hospital where he spent his last years. In 1931, he won the Pulitzer Prize for his war memoirs.

Below is a list of clues. See how quickly you can determine his identity. (The answer is at the bottom of page.)

1 He was born in 1860 in Linn County, Mo., and began his career as a school teacher.

2 He yearned to be an attorney, but when an opportunity arose to take an entrance exam for West Point, he jumped at it.

3 In 1886, after receiving his commission, he was assigned to an Army unit in Arizona fighting the Apaches.

4 Later, he fought the Sioux. Despite distinguished service, he had progressed only as far as first lieutenant at the age of 40.

5 In 1893, he realized his early ambition to take a law degree. He received it while serving as a military instructor at the University of Nebraska.

6 He married the daughter of Wyoming's Sen. F. E. Warren in 1905.

7 But the marriage was marked by a terrible tragedy. While he was on duty hunting down Mexican outlaw Pancho Villa, his home in San Francisco burned. His wife and three daughters perished. Only a son survived. The year: 1915.

8 President Theodore Roosevelt caused a sensation by promoting him from the rank of captain to brigadier general.

9 In World War I, he is supposed to have said, "Lafayette, we are here." He denied ever having made the remark.

10 Troops under his command drove the Germans out of the Meuse-Argonne sector which they had held four years.

11 His nickname was "Black Jack."

12 In 1919 he was given the permanent rank of general, which was held previously only by Washington, Grant, Sherman and Sheridan.

13 He retired from active service in 1926 when his health began to fail.

14 Host to Washington dignitaries for many of his later years, he died just short of his 88th birthday.

15 His funeral, in Arlington Cemetery, was said to be the most impressive since that of the Unknown Soldier back in 1921.

ANSWER: It's General John J. Pershing, of course—the son of a Missouri railroad worker who became commander of the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe during World War I.

AMERICA'S FAVORITE WAY TO BREAK THE LAXATIVE DRUG HABIT

For irregularity due to insufficient bulk

Kellogg's All-Bran with Milk—nature's great food combination

Delicious, appetizing—solid nutritional benefits

It's nice to know that America's favorite way to break the laxative drug habit is also nature's way to break the laxative drug habit.

You see Kellogg's All-Bran enjoyed daily, is a wholesome food that corrects a common cause of irregularity. Lack of bulk in the diet. Since Kellogg's All-Bran is a whole bran cereal—nature's best bulk-forming food—it provides that bulk in an easy, natural way. This, of course, leads to easy, natural regularity.

You can't get this bulk from laxative drugs. Most of them contain no bulk, they can't really be expected to bring anything more than temporary relief.

Formula to help keep you in the "prime"—One ounce (half a cup) of Kellogg's All-Bran with milk daily gives you natural food bulk plus 5 vitamins, 3 minerals and high-quality protein.

Tastes good—good for you

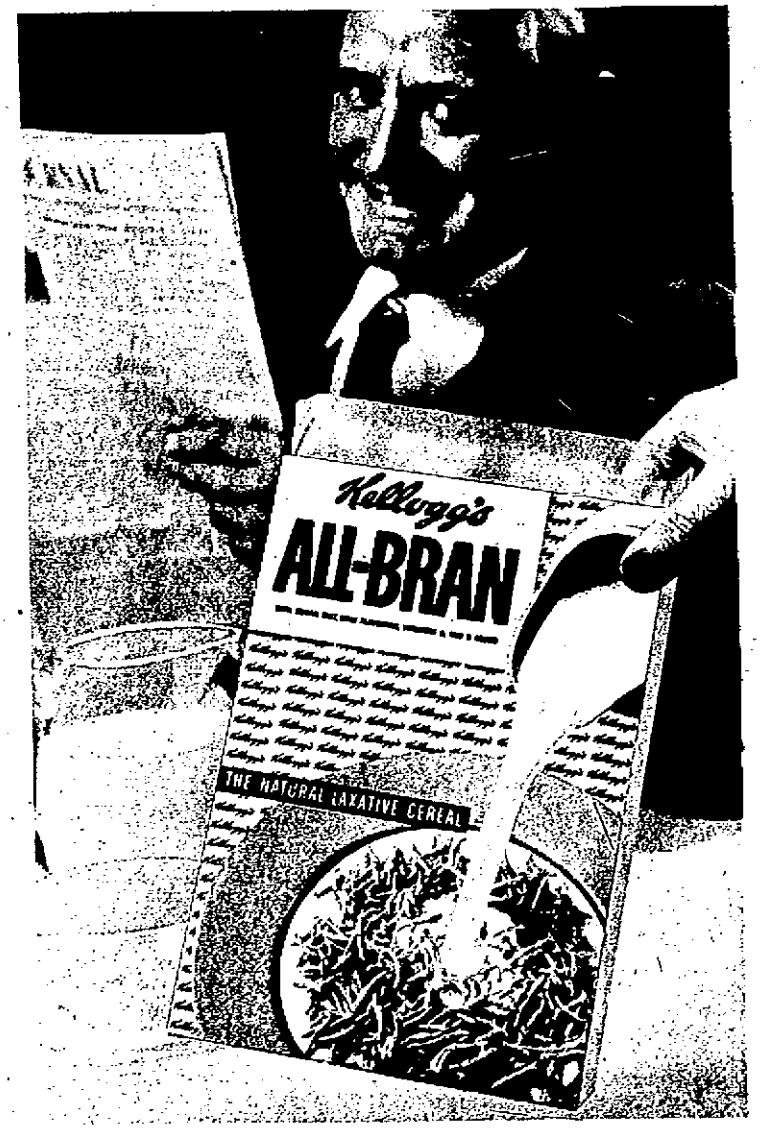

As a good food, Kellogg's All-Bran brings you important nutritional values and delicious flavor, too.

The flavor is just like that of old-time bran muffins. Remember what a hit that good bran flavor used to make at breakfast?

This flavor, plus its well-known effectiveness, has made Kellogg's All-Bran America's favorite bran cereal ever since W. K. Kellogg originated it more than 40 years ago. We've made a few improvements in form and flavor over the years, but no one has ever come up with a way to improve the effectiveness of nature's way to regularity . . . whole bran. So now, more than ever, Kellogg's All-Bran is the most delicious, convenient aid to regularity ever developed.

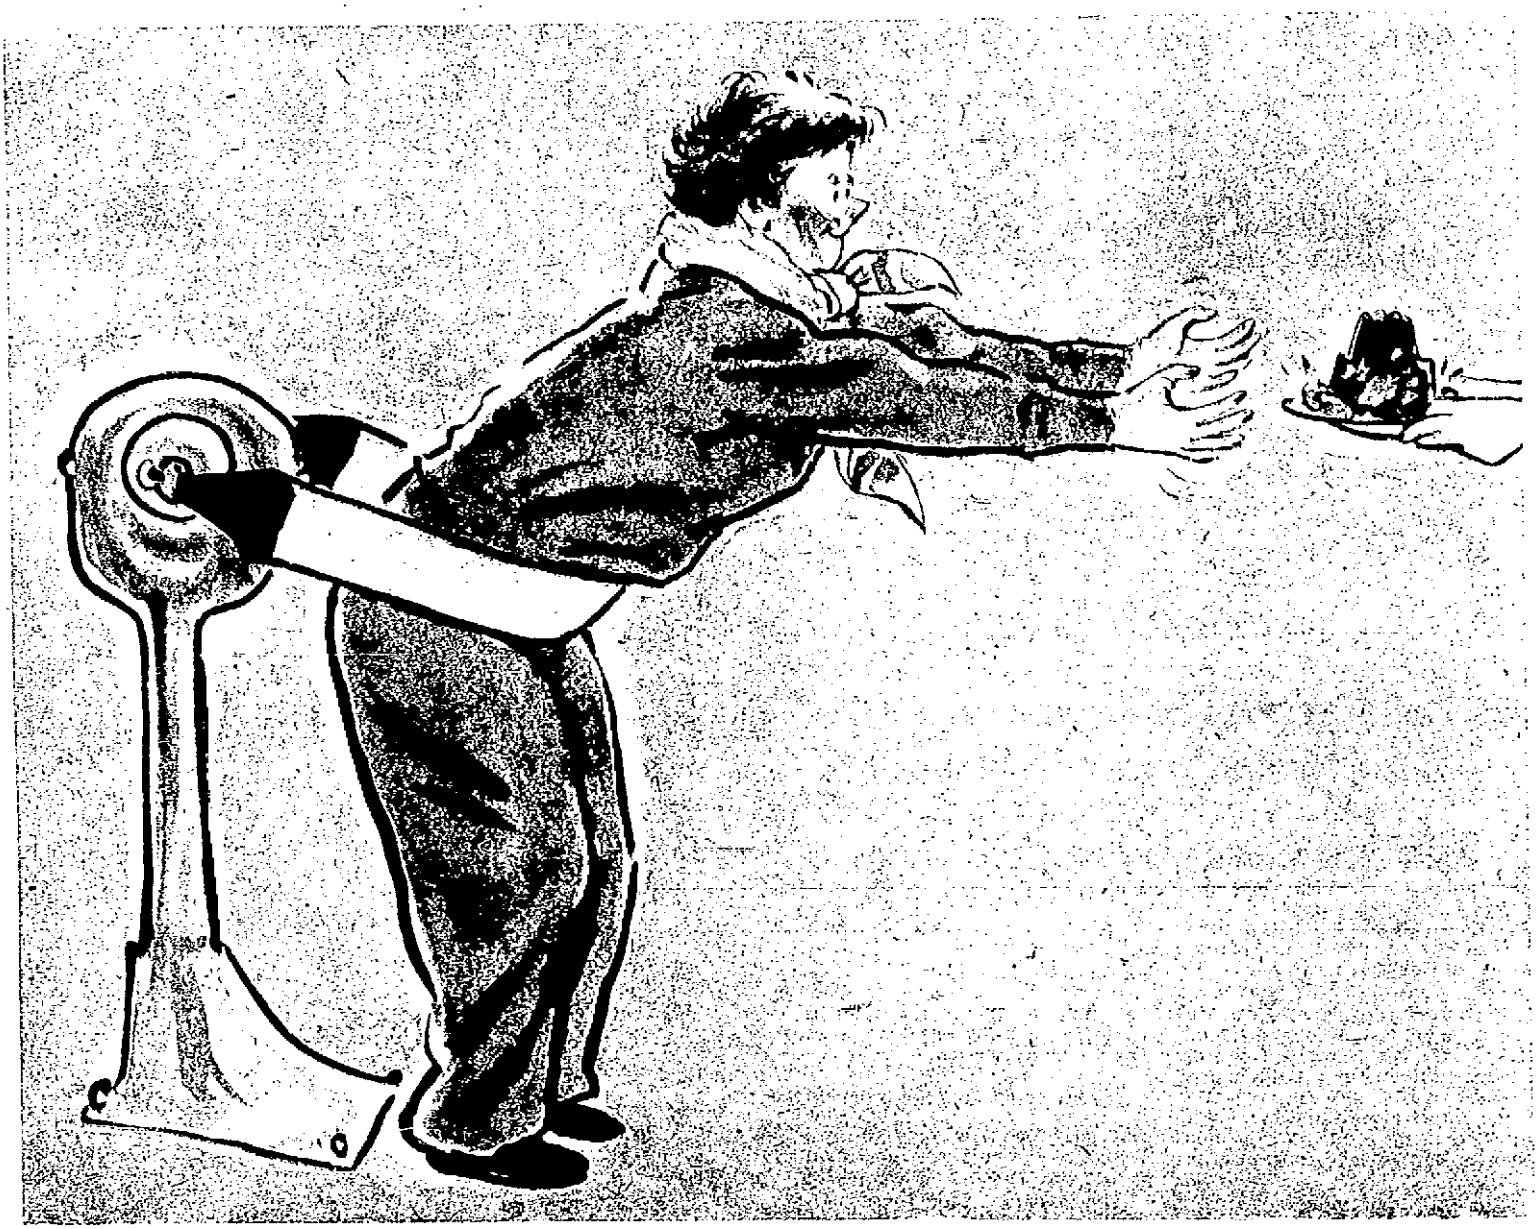

Kellogg's All-Bran scores well in nutrition, too. You see, it's made from the vitamin- and mineral-rich outer layers of wheat. Actually a single bowl, with milk, brings you 8 important elements plus high-quality protein.

To get the most from Kellogg's All-Bran you ought to try it for 10 days. Just enjoy an ounce a day (about half a cup) with milk either at breakfast or at bedtime. (Enjoy it with hot milk, if you like—that in no way hinders the effectiveness.)

Must satisfy or double your money back

If after your 10-day trial you're not completely satisfied, and we mean satisfied in every way, we'll give you double your money back. You just return the empty carton and we'll promptly refund twice what you paid. That's a promise from Kellogg's of Battle Creek.

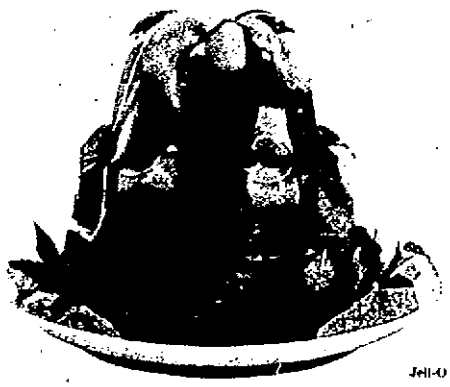

It's National Hips-Hips-Hooray-For-Jell-O Week!

If you're hip, you've just got to cheer for Jell-O! Where else can you find a dessert that keeps your sweet tooth smiling without taking up the slack in your slacks!

Lovely, light-hearted Jell-O—for dessert, snacks, or salads—makes dieting more fun than not. It's such a delight, your family won't even mind your calorie-counting.

But, slim people, take heart! You're allowed to have all the Jell-O you want, too. Make some today—every day!

Always smooth ...never grainy

Secret is Carnation –the double-rich milk that whips!

No ordinary milk can give pumpkin pie the wonderful smooth-as-cream texture you get with Carnation. For this milk is twice as rich – looks, pours and even whips like cream. In pumpkin pie, whether you use your own recipe or the famous one here, no other form of milk can give you the results you get with Carnation – world's leader by far. And for a better cup of coffee, "cream" it with Carnation – the double-rich milk that whips.

RECIPE CARNATION'S FAMOUS PUMPKIN PIE

(Makes 9-inch pie)

1 cup granulated sugar	1½ cups canned pumpkin
½ teaspoon salt	1⅔ cups (large can) undiluted CARNATION EVAPORATED MILK
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon ginger	2 eggs
½ teaspoon allspice	9-inch single crust unbaked pie shell
½ teaspoon cloves

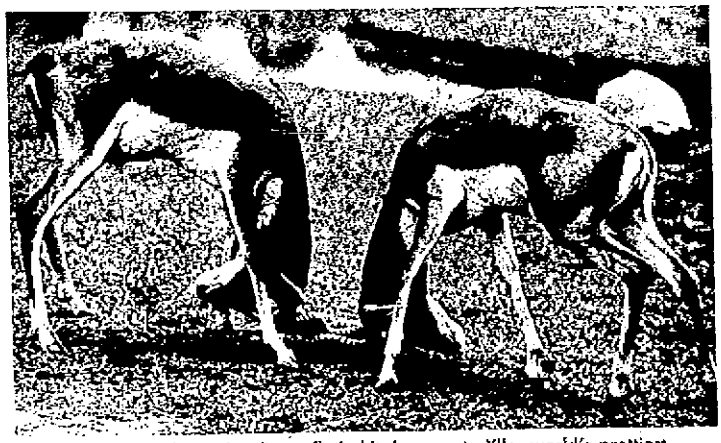

Mix filling ingredients until smooth. Place in unbaked pie shell. Bake in hot oven (425°F.) 15 minutes. Lower temperature to moderate (350°F.) and continue baking about 35 minutes or until custard is firm.

WE GUARANTEE RESULTS WHEN YOU USE CARNATION

Her pictures prove she loved animals

To get striking photos of animals, such as those shown here, a great woman photographer known simply as Ylla risked her life—and lost it. During her career, Ylla repeatedly exposed herself to danger. She wrote while photographing in India, "I confess, I was frightened." At one point a hippo popped up in front of her. At another she was menaced by a wounded elephant. Her death finally came when she fell from a jeep while shooting a bullock cart race. Her last pictures, including the ones on these pages, have been published in a new book, Animals in India (Harper & Brothers, N. Y.). ■

Embattled deer of India, called chital, were, to Ylla, world's prettiest.

CAN MEN BE TRUSTED IN THE SUPERMARKET?

by DEMETRIA TAYLOR
Parade home economics director

ALLENTOWN, PA.

Everybody knows the kind of husband who comes home on payday with grocery bags bulging in his arms.

As this fellow extracts the contents, his wife's eyes narrow and recriminations fly. His purchases may be such fancy delicatessen items as imported truffles, toasted grasshoppers, herring in wine, sugared almonds and a five-lb. salami. She threatens divorce. Icicles drip from his silence. And all because husband is a food buyer whose wife thinks he can't be trusted loose in a supermarket.

The picture of the irresponsible male marketeer is familiar. But is it accurate? Can men be trusted to spend the family's weekly food budget? Do they buy more on impulse? Is it true that men shop for themselves while women put family needs first?

PARADE has put these questions to an action test. We sent a young husband and wife, separately, to the supermarket, each with $25 and a reporter following behind to record their shopping habits.

He took 38 minutes and spent $28.93. She took 46 minutes and spent $23.24. But even more important are the choices each made.

The husband goes to market

Tom Weyer, 35, married to Madeline (see column at right), is father of two—Wendy, 6, and Tommy, 15 months. He is an electrician at the Bethlehem Steel Co. plant in Bethlehem, Pa. When he works the midnight shift, which he does frequently, Tom stops off at the supermarket on his way home. The doors have just opened and he can do the family shopping "without all those women around." In his bachelor days, Tom food-shopped for his parents and brother. A Navy veteran, he likes to cook. At holiday time, Tom takes command of turkey dinner preparations. His favorite food: steak.

His wife goes to market

Madeline Weyer, wife of Tom (the shopper whose biography appears in the column at the left), does her food shopping at a Food Fair under a slight handicap. She usually takes the children along. This fact may be a clue to some of her purchases (see page 20). Mrs. Weyer is a graduate of Slatington High School, near Allentown, Pa., and the Allentown Hospital School of Nursing. Her favorite foods are stews and casserole dishes. "I'm more price-conscious than Tom," she admits. "He will buy brands he prefers regardless of cost, but I buy less expensive brands if they serve the purpose."

To find out what each of them bought, turn to page 20

Dress up your home for the Holidays with those heavenly best buys by Lees

Ridgemore—A famous Lees tweed of handsome high-low loop pile in all wool—world's best all-around carpet material. In many room sizes. 9 x 12 about $125. Budgeted if you choose.

Dignity—Low-cost luxury. Embossed loop pile in all wool—finest carpet fiber for combined beauty, durability, crush resistance, easy care. In a wide range of sizes, 9 x 12 about $150. Budget terms.

You'll be happier with those heavenly carpets by LEES

Duraset—Remarkable for long wear, with its hard-twist yarn, nubby texture. Combines the beauty and springiness of wool with the wonderful durability of nylon. 9 x 12 about $155. Your choice of budget terms.

How to buy a carpet with confidence

Depend on a trusted name from a trusted store

Carpet is a purchase you expect to last for years. Yet you can't judge how long a carpet will wear by looking at it. Only a knowledge of fibers, weaves and textures will tell you that. For this reason, you're wise to go to a store where the people who serve you know carpets thoroughly.

Lees dealers, listed on the adjoining page, are such people—chosen for their ability to be your trusted advisers. And they are both able and willing to help you buy just the carpet that best suits your needs.

These men know that for beauty of design, for lovely colors, and long, long wear, you can't buy better carpet than "those heavenly carpets by Lees."® When you go to one of these stores tomorrow ask to see the Lees famous "best buys" shown above. In these three Lees carpets alone, you can choose from wide variety in texture and color: Ridgemore, a tweed, 8 colors; Dignity, embossed, in 9 colors; Duraset, 12 plain colors.

Lees prices offer variety, too: from $5.95 to $25.95 a square yard. (Budgeted, of course, if you choose.) Whatever price you pay, you can be confident when you buy a Lees that you're getting the most in beauty and value for every penny you spend.

New Dessert Tricks

with FRUIT 'N WALNUTS

HOT PEACH SUPREME

Fill canned peach halves with 1 tablesp. chopped Diamond Walnuts and 1 teasp. brown sugar. Top each with marshmallows. Broil just till golden.

CRUNCHY BAKED APPLES

6 red cooking apples
⅔ cup sugar
1 cup water
½ cup chopped Diamond Walnuts
½ cup seedless raisins

Heat oven to 350°. Wash and core apples. Mix sugar and water in pan and bring to boil. Mix walnuts and raisins together. Stuff core of each apple. Arrange in shallow baking dish. Pour syrup over them. Bake, basting occasionally with syrup, till apples are tender (45 to 60 min.).

EASY DESSERT CENTERPIECE

Arrange apples, bananas or other fresh fruit in bowl, with plenty of in-shell Diamond Walnuts and use as centerpiece. Let guests help themselves after dinner.

FRUIT GOURMET

Toast ½ cup chopped Diamond Walnuts in 325° oven till golden (8 to 10 min.). Cool. Add to 1 can chilled, drained fruit cocktail, ½ pt. sour cream, 1 tablesp. maple syrup.

You'll be discovering dessert tricks by the dozen when you keep Diamond Walnuts handy. They're California's choicest! Fresh, plump and flavorful kernels every time. You'll see with your very first munch.

Parade's food expert analyzes their purchases, gives advice to shoppers

What do Tom and Madeline's purchases prove?

For one thing, Madeline is lucky to have a husband who is more experienced than most in food shopping. His list shows that he likes to cook and thinks of food in terms of menus.

Impulse buying? Tom began his tour at the condiment shelves but bought only mustard, olives and mayonnaise. Thinking of himself? He didn't buy his favorite food—steak. She did. Thinking of the family? He didn't buy any junior foods. He went heavy on protein: meat, poultry, cheese. TV dinners were his only "convenience foods."

He remembered staples: butter, coffee, cereal, bread, cooking oil. He bought related items: spaghetti, grated cheese and mushroom sauce. He bought vegetables to accompany the meat, leaning heavily toward frozen products, passing up fresh fruits and vegetables in season, but including plenty of potatoes. She went easy on vegetables, but then she knows what's on hand at home.

Notice how much soup he acquired. Either he feels no meal is complete without it, or he spied a "special."

Madeline's tour was more planned. She began at the meat counter, the most logical base for menu building. She gave more thought to the family with baby foods and lunch box items, and hamburger and stews to balance her steak splurge. She relies on convenience foods, thinks of company coming (soft-drinks) and adds a few seasonably priced fresh fruits and vegetables. Tom bought cereal and juices for breakfast, but Madeline added bacon and eggs.

Since milk and bread are delivered to their home, they bought lightly of these items.

This is how one man and his wife stack up as food buyers. We'd say he can be trusted in a supermarket. But scientists don't form a conclusion on a single case, and neither do we.

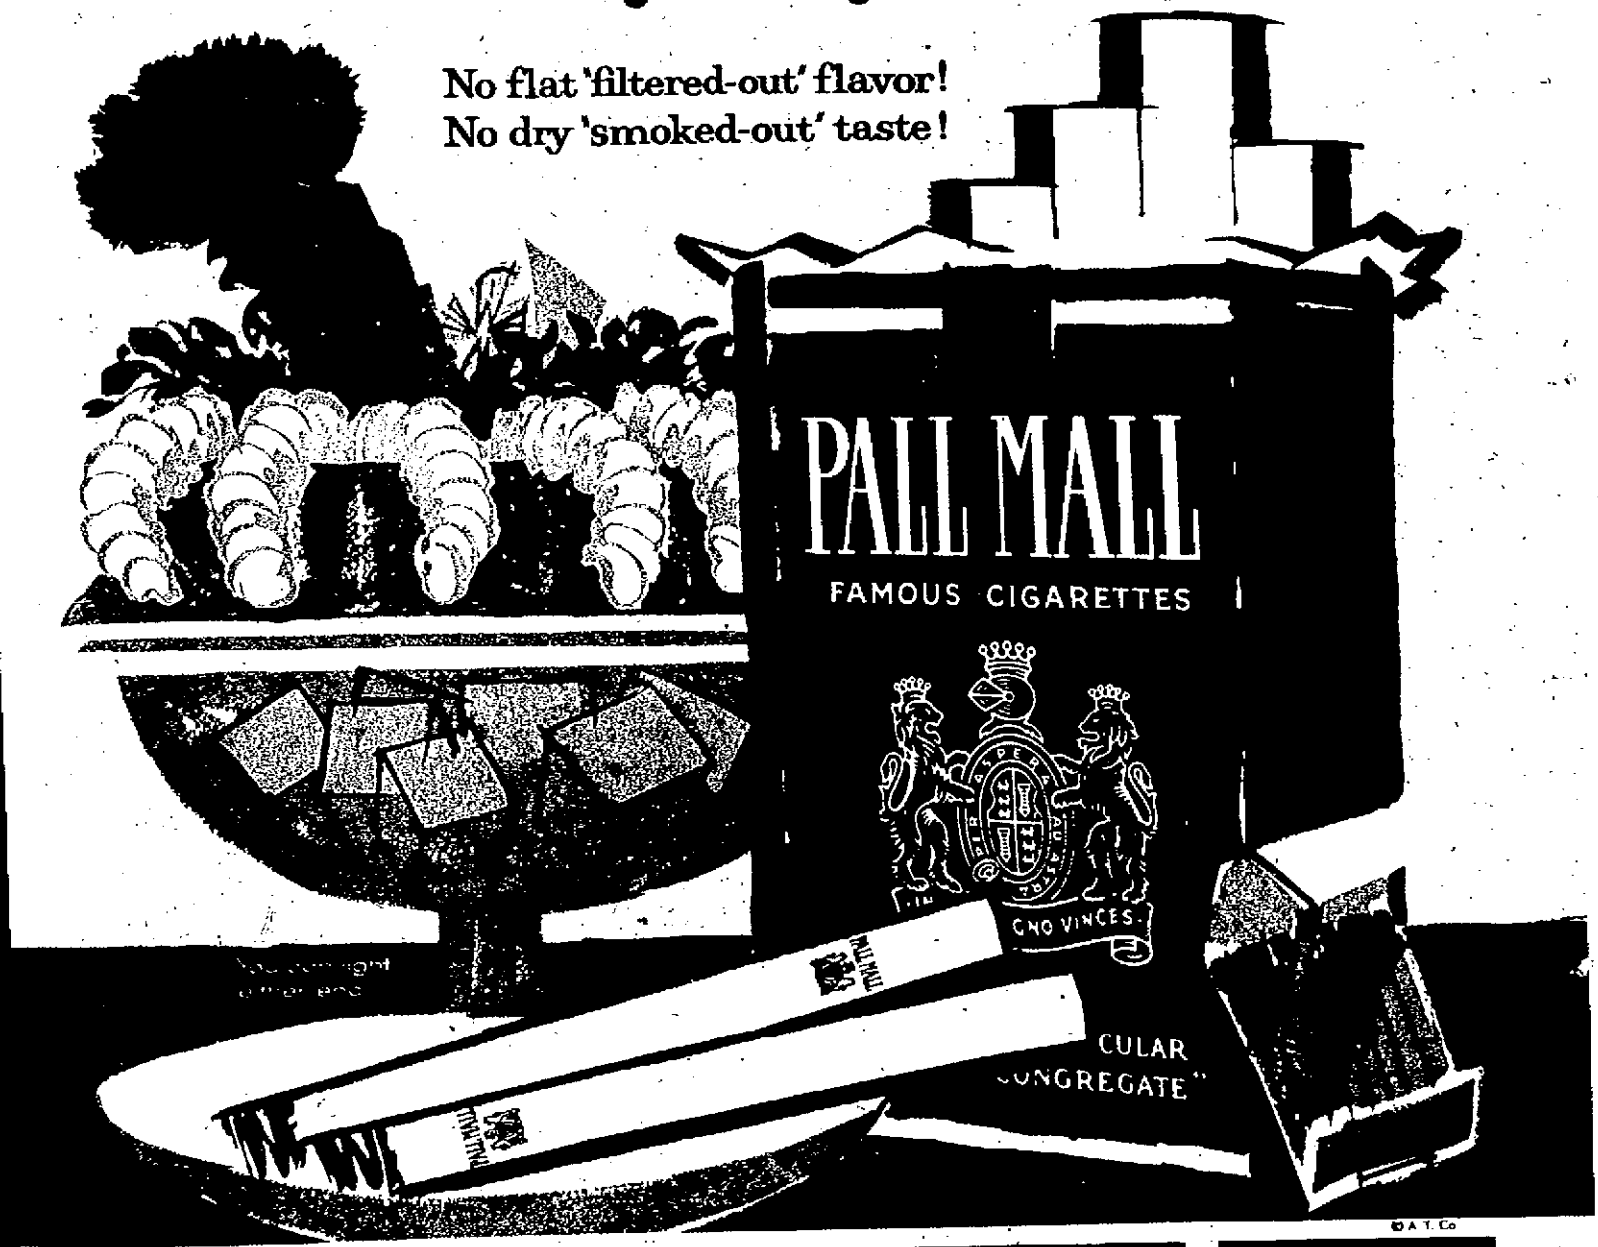

However, here's a bit of advice to wives: If your husband is willing to shop for food, let him. But give him a hand with a list of staples and tell him what you don't need.

Other tips for shoppers, regardless of sex: Be price-conscious according to use. Lower-priced peas will do as an ingredient but buy top quality if you're serving them "as is." Take time to read labels. Watch for new products and specials in your newspaper. ■

CHOOSING A DOCTOR

by HOLLAND T. JACKSON, M.D.
President, American Academy of General Practice

This is the eighth in a series prepared by family doctors for PARADE families. From time to time, typical doctors from all over the U. S. offer advice on everyday problems of health. Today's article is by Dr. Holland T. Jackson. A native of Texas, Dr. Jackson was named "Texas General Practitioner of the Year" in 1955. He practices in Fort Worth.

Step No. 1—get acquainted, but don't wait until you're sick

MOST AMERICAN FAMILIES rely upon certain persons to take care of their special needs. You pick your own grocer, your own druggist, your own bank. But do you pick your own doctor?

Many years ago, when most people lived in small towns, selecting a doctor was not a major problem. There was only one—or at best a few—available. But the picture has changed radically with the growth of cities and suburbs. How should families go about choosing a family doctor? The question is asked often, but lots of families fail to heed the answer. For, tragically, millions of Americans today do not have family doctors. They do not have a physician who acts as their health counselor in times of need.

In an emergency, a doctor can be reached by calling your local county medical society. Most county societies operate round-the-clock emergency services. In other words, doctors are available to cope with emergencies at all times of the day and night.

Freedom of Choice

Large communities (of about 200,000 or more) maintain an emergency physician list. It can be obtained by calling the county medical society, local hospitals or, in some instances, the chamber of commerce.

Let's say you move to a new town, or you suddenly need a family doctor after a long period in which everyone in your home has been well. Here are some steps to acquire one:

1 Plan a "get-acquainted" meeting with a doctor who has been recommended. More and more, doctors welcome such meetings. But you should arrange your visit when sick persons aren't kept waiting. Go to a doctor before anything goes wrong in the household. Meet him, talk to him, size him up. Very few doctors will charge for such a call, unless, of course, you receive treatment during the visit.

2 How to obtain a recommendation in the first place? Get in touch with your local medical society. Tell them of your personal wants and desires. List the qualifications that seem important to you. The society will furnish you with a list of doctors who fit in with your stipulations.

Seek Hospital's Help

3 Call one or more of the hospitals located near your home. The hospital administrator, or someone he can lead you to, will be happy to furnish a list of recommended doctors.

4 Seek advice from the executives of your company, people in your line of work—or from others who have had considerable experience in the community.

5 Seek advice from leaders in your church. And discuss these matters with neighbors over the back fence.

6 Then contact the physician of your choice and have that get-acquainted appointment.

When you have your appointment, don't beat around the bush. Speak frankly. If there is a question in your mind about the doctor's fees, discuss it.

All this may sound a bit complicated and time-consuming, but I feel strongly that it is the intelligent approach. No one searches out illness. But it comes, inevitably. A firm association with a family doctor who knows your medical history and that of your family is an invaluable weapon in combating illness.

Often you hear people say, "What I need is an ear specialist, or a skin specialist. My ailment is too complicated for a family doctor."

Of course, there are many specialties and sub-specialties, 51 in all. Naturally, the general public is confused by this maze, and so are some doctors.

My point is this: in recent years, it has become fashionable for laymen to discuss the merits of specialists. "Shopping" for specialists has become widespread in many of our big cities.

I deplore this for a number of reasons. First, the layman is not capable of selecting a specialist. Second, the patient may end up wasting time and money in a wearisome merry-go-round of "doctor-hunting."

The task of selecting a specialist is best carried out by your own family doctor. If he feels a specialist is needed, he will refer you to one. That way, there can be continuity of care, which is vital to the patient's well-being over the long haul.

I'd like to stress two more points.

First, avoid insurance or medical care plans which do not allow you to name your own physician.

There's no valid reason for surrendering this right.

Second, when you select a physician, choose one in whom you have complete confidence—a man to whom you will turn in any emotional or physical crisis.

A Final Tip

No American family should deny itself of the splendid facilities and trained personnel geared to maintain the nation's health.

An added thought: if you find that you do not have time to look around in your town for a family doctor, write directly to the American Academy of General Practice. We'll send you a list of qualified practitioners in your community. Our address is Volker Blvd. at Brookside, Kansas City 12, Mo. ■

Bob Hope gets 'congratulated'

WHEN ACTORS begin a new play or film, they are usually sent "good luck" wires by friends, relatives, agents and others they've helped support for years. A few weeks ago Bob Hope returned to Paramount to star in Alias Jesse James. Hope plays an insurance agent who sells a $100,000 policy to Jesse.

On the first day of shooting, a big welcome-home party was thrown for Hope in the studio commissary. During the festivities, true to show business tradition, he was handed wires sent by his wife Dolores, Paramount vice-president Y. Frank Freeman and others. A sampling of what they said—some signing their real names, others trying to be funny—is on the opposite page. ■

MEET BOB ANDERSON

The Treasury Secretary is quiet, shy—and influences Ike

WASHINGTON, D. C.

EVERY TIME Secretary of the Treasury Robert Anderson sees his signature on a dollar bill, it must give him cause for a quiet smile. For the man in charge of minting and printing our currency once had trouble raising $12 to buy a new suit.

That suit, long since worn out, is a symbol in his life. He wore it the day he simultaneously passed his bar exams and was elected to the Texas legislature. Thus began a career which has taken him to his present position of high responsibility.

Today, after only 16 months in office, Anderson is one of the main pillars of the Eisenhower administration. He is the strong, silent man in the Cabinet. His influence is growing—and it has been strangely unpublicized.

For instance, Anderson was the chief architect of Government policy toward the recent recession. Now Anderson feels—and experts interviewed by PARADE agree—that the economy is heading upward again. The policies for which he received little credit Anderson believes were fully justified.

"Our economy," he says, "has demonstrated its strong recuperative powers without resort to massive tax cuts or massive Government spending. The income of American individuals has risen steadily since February, and in both July and August exceeded the all-time record. Industrial production has regained more than half its decline and is still improving."

Anderson's weapons in the Washington melee are a soft Texas drawl, modesty, mildness and shyness. Yet he is a man of determination. When the most powerful voices of industry, labor, economics and politics clamored for a tax cut, Anderson stood firm. He listened patiently, answered quietly, opposed without offending anyone—but he stuck to his guns.

How to Oppose a Tax Cut

He convinced the President tax cuts were not the answer because the recession was concentrated in the manufacture of durable goods, such as cars and refrigerators. A maximum tax reduction would give the average worker only a few cents more a week. Anderson reasoned that this money would be spent on another steak, rather than on a new auto.

With President Eisenhower convinced, Anderson went to Congress and persuaded Democratic leaders not to chop taxes. As a result, fellow Cabinet members now regard him—correctly—as a man of influence on Capitol Hill and ask his help for their pet projects.

The maneuver also added to his prestige in Ike's eyes. It is not unusual for the President to pick up his phone and ask Anderson to step across the street from the Treasury Building for a chat. And although Anderson's field technically is Government financing, these huddles extend into many other subjects. For the President has learned that no matter what the subject, Anderson's advice will be cool and sound. The President thinks so highly of Anderson that he has appraised him, privately, as future Presidential timber.

With subordinates as well as superiors, Anderson has demonstrated tact. As Secretary of the Navy, his first Government post, he outmaneuvered the admirals who were determined to get rid of Hyman Rickover, father of the atomic submarine. The plan was to refuse Rickover promotion to admiral and force him to resign.

The admirals told Anderson they had no vacancy for Rickover. Anderson thanked them politely, but soon summoned them back. He explained he was creating a new admiral's post and handed them the qualifications—tailor-made for Rickover. The promotion board caved in.

But the political picture of Anderson is by no means a reflection of the whole man. Son of a small merchant in Burleson, near Fort Worth, he has taught school (Spanish, history, math, law); bossed the second biggest ranch in Texas (the Waggoner estate of a half-million acres); and headed Ventures Ltd., a multi-million-dollar complex of 200 companies whose properties range from Canada to Africa.

SOFT-SPOKEN SECRETARY Anderson testifies before Congressional committee. Leaders of both parties like him.

He held this $100,000-a-year job between Government assignments. In his first hitch, he rose as high as Deputy Secretary of Defense. Then, when George Humphrey resigned, President Eisenhower called him back to head the Treasury.

Anderson arrived just in time for the economic downturn. But having weathered that storm, he is confident that the economy will surge forward. He believes that now is the time for Americans to spend—but not to squander. With production rising and prices still reflecting the recession, there are good buys for consumers in houses, automobiles and large household appliances.

Tips for Your Pay Check

"The average American," Anderson says, "should do whatever is prudent in his circumstances on the basis of confidence in a strong economy. This means he should buy whatever he needs for his physical and mental well-being, within the limits of what his resources will let him buy. He should always, of course, save a portion of his earnings. Every individual should make his investments on the basis of prudence and merit and thrift."

The Secretary's advice to Americans is to invest in Government bonds, savings accounts or increased insurance. The argument that fixed savings lose value if inflation continues (Anderson, incidentally, thinks it can be controlled) may still be true. But like most experts, the Secretary believes no family should play the stock market until liquid savings have been set aside for emergencies and children's education.

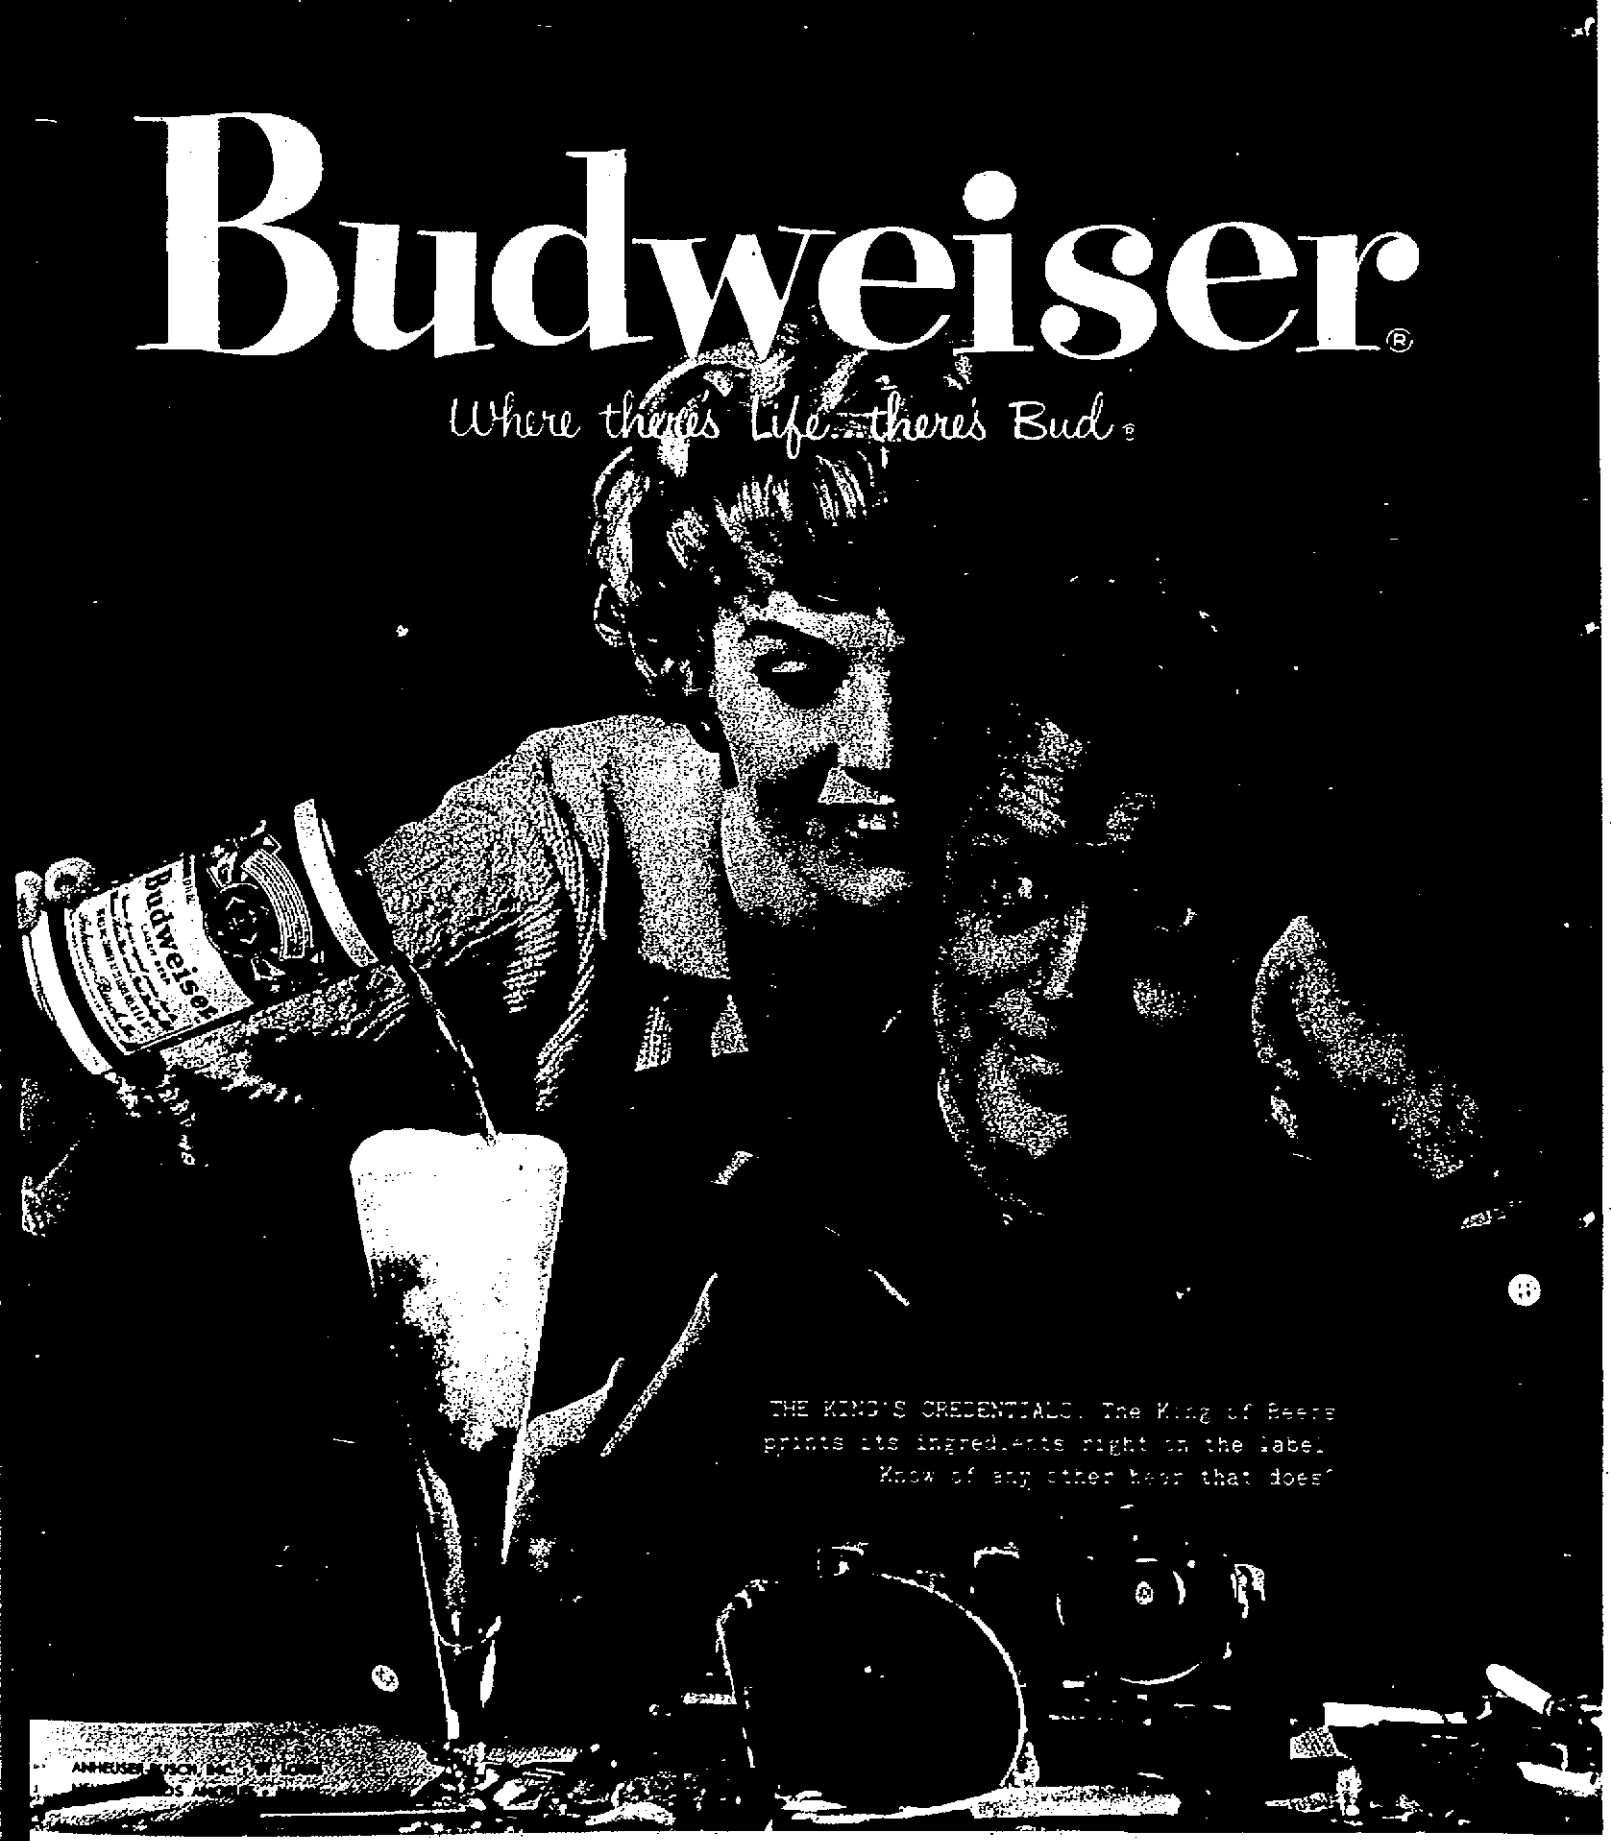

This kind of statement makes a great hit with Anderson's family. Anderson hates officiousness, and he is a Texan who never boasts about Texas. Consequently each time he makes an important statement, he is teased by his wife Ollie and sons, Dick and Gerald. Recently Gerald read a magazine account of one of his father's speeches. "Dad," he said finally, "why is it you never say any of these wise things around the house?"

Anderson likes to spend as much time as he can quietly enjoying his family. And he dresses the part of the modest man: most of his suits are gray and conservative in cut. Recently he has been calorie-counting in an effort to keep in trim. He has cut out gravy, potatoes and desserts. He has two other small vanities: a taste for expensive shirts and an effort to disguise the slight limp caused by a childhood polio attack.

In handling the demands of his job, Anderson resorts to no disguise. Normally he is a man who deals in hard facts and talking sense. He believes strongly that the U.S. economy has come through its recent difficulties. And he is unshakeably convinced that the economy will go on in wealth and opportunity so long as the American people go forward with courage and resolve. Typically, Anderson says this with firmness. But he also says it in a quiet, modest voice, and his words carry great weight.

ROPE-CLIMBERS swing aloft under direction of Larry Frankel, friend of asthmatics in Charleston, W. Va. To win award, they must climb 26 feet with hands only.

They all

For years—and for free—he has brought new hope to Charleston's sickly children

by SID ROSS

CHARLESTON, W. VA.

On a recent afternoon here, two gym-suited 8-year-olds dashed up to the physical fitness director of the local YMCA. They snuggled close and kissed him simultaneously. "I love you, Mr. Frankel!" they gushed in chorus.

Such unbridled affection is rare, but much of Charleston feels the same way about big-hearted, big-muscled Larry Frankel, 53. For 25 years, much of it without pay, Frankel has been teaching Charleston how to keep fit. He has taught exercises to kindergarteners and grandparents alike. He has given judo lessons to the West Virginia state police.

But most of all, Charleston loves him for bringing new hope, new determination and new interest to shy, sickly youngsters suffering from asthma and physical handicaps.

Exercise and careful, compassionate handling are the medicines Frankel uses to give new lives to hopeless "patients." Once a week, 34 members of his "Bucking Bronchos" gather to climb ropes, play medicine ball, work out on gym equipment. They compete against themselves to win gold medals and small trophies. Some of the current Bronchos have progressed enough to perform 150 to 200 sit-ups—many more than a normal child.

For an asthmatic, whose every breath is a battle, such a regimen sounds cruel. But Frankel, in his patient, quiet way, begins first with simple breathing "games." ("It's just like your diaphragm was an elevator," he tells asthmatic children. "We breathe in and the elevator goes up. Then we stop and let the elevator go back down as slowly as possible.") He may work on games like these for weeks, until pupils—who also practice at home—can prolong exhaling nearly a minute.

The Self-Taught Therapist

Not until then does Frankel progress to more vigorous exercise. Each routine is worked out to promote better breathing. Although he is not medically trained and is only self-taught in physical therapy, Frankel plans most exercises himself. In the Bronchos experiment, he has worked closely with Dr. Merle Scherr, a local allergist.

Dr. Scherr considers the results of the experiment dramatic. He points out that it does not "cure" asthma, which still is a medical problem. But none of the once-fragile Bronchos has been hospitalized since the experiment began. And for the first time, they are happy. Their grades have improved, they have come out of their shells and their personalities have changed markedly.

If Frankel cannot cure, at least his work leads to more normal lives. He is proud of ex-pupils who now play high school basketball, Little League baseball or have become champion gymnasts.

"A New Confidence"

Wrote the father of one boy, whom Frankel had taken over as a depressed, insecure teenager: "You took David at a time when he needed a new confidence, and gave him not only health but a belief in himself and in his future . . . That you have done this for countless others is wonderful to contemplate . . ."

Frankel became interested in rehabilitation almost accidentally. As an athletic youth, he used to "trade" his mother an hour of violin practice for an hour of sports. After college—he was a boxer and track man—he came here to operate a clothing store owned by a brother.

But his heart wasn't in business. Evenings, after the store closed, he spent at the Y. Five to seven evenings a week he taught gymnastics classes. His first students were teenagers and older men — some of them doctors. In the early 1940s, they began sending him special cases—a boy with bad posture, another with partial spastic paralysis.

As more and more pupils came, Frankel's wife and younger brother, an orthopedics specialist, urged him to quit business and "do what you really want." For the first time he began to take a small salary. Then came the experiment with Dr. Scherr. And recently 35 prominent citizens here set up the Medical Gymnastics Center, which will enable him to work without worrying about finances.

Frankel still has little heart for business, and he refuses to care. "My wife and I don't need very much for ourselves," he says. Frankel, who considers all his pupils "my kids," still cannot refuse "hopeless" cases and currently is working with a young muscular dystrophy victim.

"Children," says Charleston's best-loved man, "are the most wonderful thing in the world. All I want in life is to be able to help them in some small way." ■

SENIOR CLASS of asthmatics works out with medicine ball. Oldest of Frankel's pupils is 76.

DON'T LET CONSTIPATION ADD TO YOUR WORRIES!

As distressing as constipation can be in "normal" people without special conditions or illnesses, chronic irregularity can be extremely aggravating—even dangerous—in some cases. If you are on the list, you've probably been cautioned already by your own physician, to avoid harsh laxatives and purgatives. Your doctor may have indicated concern about the stress that goes with constipation (particularly in cardiac, high blood pressure, and similar cases), and he may already have recommended SARAKA. SARAKA works naturally, effectively, the way nature intended your system to work—gently, smoothly, without stress or harshness. SARAKA is easy and pleasant to take, after meals or before bed. Announce Way To Help Drain All 8 Sinus Cavities Without Discomfort

New decongestant tablet for sinus congestion sufferers acts both to drain clogged sinus cavities and relieve distressing head pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) Announcement has been made of a new tablet development which has the remarkable ability to help drain clogged sinus cavities and thus relieve congestion and pressure. The headaches, pressure pains, stuffed-up head, nasal drip, clogged breathing—all the unrelenting symptoms the sinus sufferer knows so well—are attacked directly by improving drainage of the sinus areas.

Most remarkable of all is the fact that this is accomplished with extraordinary speed and without discomfort of any kind. This new tablet does its remarkable work internally, through the blood stream. It deposits into every drop of blood plasma a new medication which is carried to the sinus area, where it shrinks the swollen doors to the sinus cavities and helps drain away the pain-causing pressure and congestion.

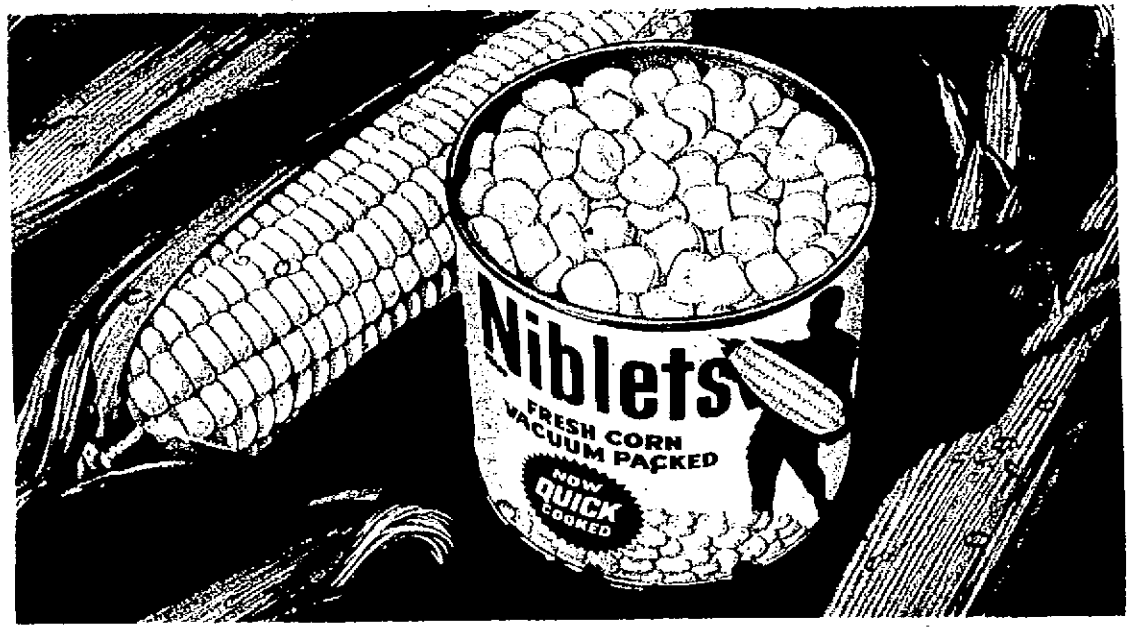

The shrinking substance in this new tablet has been so successful topically in promoting drainage of the sinus cavities that it is now prescribed more widely by doctors than any material for this purpose. This new medication is now available at drug counters without the need for a prescription under the name, Dristan® Decongestant Tablets. Dristan Tablets cost only 98¢ for a bottle of 24 tablets. Buy and use Dristan Tablets with the absolute guarantee that they will drain away pain-causing pressure and congestion of the sinus cavities, relieve the pain and distress, or purchase price will be refunded.

GREEN GIANT

even captures the sunshine

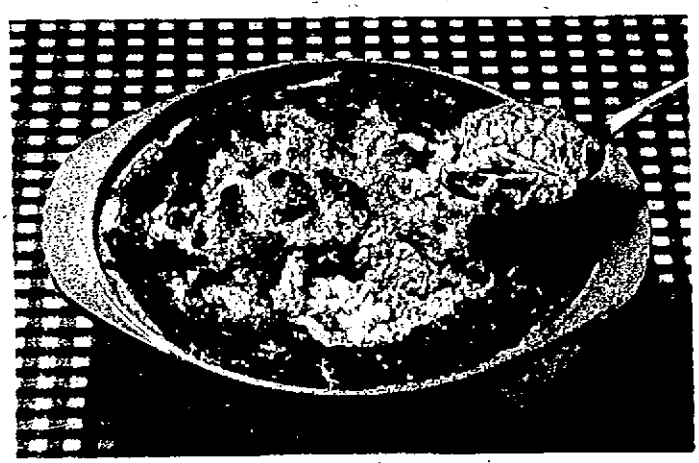

Quick-Cooked Niblets Corn BRAND captures the color, flavor, and "bite" of fresh-picked roasting ears

The less time you cook vegetables, the more you keep of the delicate color, flavor and nourishment that Nature put in. That's what the nutrition experts and cookbooks say.

And now the Green Giant has discovered a way to quick-cook corn. His Niblets Brand corn is now cooked in just one-fifth the usual time.

You have to taste the result to believe it. Here is corn with the color, "bite" and flavor of roasting ears fresh off the stalk. Quick-cooked Niblets, the one that's vacuum packed to stay crisp. Try some today.

Corn and Tuna Scallop created by James A. Beard, the Green Giant's creative cooking consultant. Combine 12-oz. can Niblets Brand corn, drained, 6½-oz. can chunk-style tuna and 2 tbsp. chopped onion. Add 1 cup cream to 2 lightly beaten eggs—season with ½ tbsp. salt, 1 tsp. pepper and ½ tsp. nutmeg. Blend corn and cream mixtures. Pour into buttered casserole. Top with buttered bread crumbs. Bake at 350° for 25-30 minutes, or until set. Serves 6.

Experts count kernels on thousands of ears. That's how the Green Giant gets identical ears for seed so Niblets corn will be the same, can after can.

A loaf of bread, a pan of rolls, a spicy tea ring—all from the one dough mixing. It's a corn meal yeast dough and all three products gain distinction.

Three breads from one mixing

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

Women by the multitude are discovering the joy of making bread, judging from the letters PARADE receives asking for more and more recipes. Here's a recipe to cherish. One mixing of this golden, corn-flavored dough can be baked up into three distinctive breads: 1) a loaf that's delicious, 2) a fancy tea ring, and 3) a pan of piquant cheese rolls.

CORN MEAL YEAST BREAD

2 packages compressed or dry yeast
1⅓ cups lukewarm water
1⅓ cups milk, scalded
½ cup shortening
¼ tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon salt
1⅓ cups enriched corn meal
6 cups sifted enriched flour (about)

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Pour scalded milk over shortening, sugar and salt; stir occasionally until shortening melts. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in corn meal and 1 cup flour. Add softened yeast. Stir in enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on a lightly floured board or canvas; knead until satiny, about 10 minutes. Round dough into ball; place in greased bowl; brush lightly with melted shortening. Cover and let rise in a warm place until double in size, about 1 hour. Punch dough down; cover and let rest 10 minutes. Divide the dough into 3 equal parts.

For a loaf, shape ⅓ of dough into a loaf. Place in well-greased bread pan (1-lb. size). Grease top of loaf lightly. Cover; let the dough rise until it is double in size; about 45 minutes. Bake in hot oven (400°) 35 to 40 minutes.

For cheese rolls, knead 1 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese into ⅓ of dough. Shape into about 1½ dozen rolls of desired shape. Place on greased cooky sheets or in pans; lightly brush tops of rolls with melted butter; sprinkle with sesame seeds. Let rise until double in size, about 45 minutes. Bake in hot oven (400°) 15 to 18 minutes.

For Swedish tea ring, roll out ⅓ of dough to form a rectangle 9" x 18". Brush with melted butter; sprinkle with brown sugar mixture*. Roll up tightly, starting with long edge; seal edge. With sealed edge down, shape into a ring. With scissors, make cuts every inch two-thirds of the way through the ring. Turn each section on its side. Place in 9" layer cake pan. Brush top with melted butter. Cover; let rise until double in size, about 45 minutes. Bake in hot oven (400°) 30 to 35 minutes. Drizzle top with thin confectioners' sugar frosting, if desired.

*Combine ¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar, ¼ teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg, ¼ cup each seedless raisins and canned slivered blanched almonds.

HOPE BENNETT talks with teenagers

How to talk to parents

"PARENTS SOMETIMES are very hard to figure out. I know mine love me. They do lots of nice things for me. But they never seem to have time to sit down and talk about my problems. How can I make them understand I need their help?" — Sylvia S., 14, Buffalo, N. Y.

I recently put this question to panelists—aged 16 to 19—at sessions in Harrisburg and Allentown, Pa. They all agree that the complaint is common to many teenagers.

On the other hand, Ginny Knorr, of Allentown, doesn't want "to sit down and talk." She insists that she wants her mother to be busy when they talk. "If we aren't both doing something," Ginny says, "I certainly am too embarrassed to blurt out my secrets."

The discussion then comes down to what is meant by "busy." The panelists all agree that for a parent to be too preoccupied is not good. But they also agree that you can talk while doing the dishes (this goes for the boys, too), shopping, washing the car or playing catch for 15 minutes before dinner.

Of course, it's important to know when not to try to talk with parents. As Gregory Berbert, of Harrisburg, puts it, "Naturally, you avoid talking to your father when he's reading the newspaper, unless you want just an 'ugh' for an answer." And you don't bring up a delicate subject when your younger brothers and sisters are around.

Don't Blurt a Problem

Jim Starliper, of Harrisburg, has still another important point: "Even when what seems like the perfect opportunity rolls around, don't blurt out your problem right away. If you do, you'll probably shock your parents to death. After all, they have no way of knowing what's been on your mind for days."

John Deitch, also of Harrisburg, feels that "you've got to be on your toes every minute to catch your parents just right. Sometimes you have to wait days for a good opportunity."

"And be extra careful to bring out your problems step by step," says Jim. "Select a good opener. Then bring out the problem gradually."

Ginny, however, argues that this isn't always possible, and sometimes you simply have to blurt something out. "When you do," she says, "be prepared to get a pretty hysterical response — especially if you're looking for sympathy. For instance, if a girl goes to her mother and says she might as well die since she and Joe have broken up, her mother may say, 'I never thought Joe was worth all your attention anyway.' This may be true, but it certainly doesn't help much at the time."

This brings up another question: Do parents understand teen-age problems?

John Deitch sums up what he thinks: "You can't let yourself think that your father doesn't remember being your age, or that he never had problems like yours. Try asking him how he faced his. You could start by asking him something specific—how he felt on his first date, maybe. He's sure to remember something funny, or embarrassing, which will be enough to break the ice. It's easy to go on from there."

Can parents really help to solve your problems? Yes, agree the panelists. And they suggest the following ground rules for both generations:

1 Give each other a break. Don't keep little everyday happenings from each other. Be interested in each other's doings. Talk about them. It's no use talking together only when you have a problem.

2 Do things together. Especially, do things with just one parent at a time. This makes it easier for each of you to unload what's on your chest.

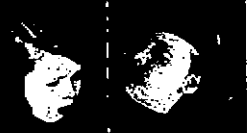

3 Pick the right time. And that will depend on you, on your parent—and the problem.

4 Bring up the problem gradually, or "in steps." This applies to both parents and teens. "What can be more embarrassing," says one panelist, "than to sit down with your mother and have her suddenly say, 'Now let's talk about sex.'"

5 Keep calm. You'll never get anywhere by shouting. Spend your energy in trying to understand the other person's point of view.

If you have a problem you'd like to see discussed here, write: Hope Bennett, PARADE, 285 Madison Ave., New York 17, N. Y.

Now—a special laxative for women!

Gives gentle relief more naturally than any ordinary laxative

Mrs. Harold Clifford Schenectady, N.Y.

"Thanks for giving us women a special laxative . . . and one that is so wonderful!" writes Mrs. Clifford. "In my opinion, none of the other laxatives I've tried ever brought relief as gently and naturally as Correctol does."

Correctol® has been specially developed for a woman's delicate system. It is completely different from harsh, all-purpose laxatives.

Its secret is a non-laxative miracle regulator that simply softens waste. Along with this, Correctol contains just enough mild laxative to give regularity a start.

Working together, these two gentle ingredients make Correctol bring relief more naturally than any ordinary laxative can. Even in pregnancy and following childbirth. In menstrual periods—and after middle age, too!

Do try Correctol soon. 30 tiny pink tablets, $1.00—at any drug counter.
